On behalf of the USAR Board of Directors and our national staff, welcome to the 2021 UnitedHealthcare US OPEN Racquetball Championships.

This marquee event represents the very best that racquetball has to offer and brings together all facets of the sport for one glorious week. Amateurs from 18 different countries have joined our 25th Anniversary celebration, along with all the top IRT and LPRT pros.

I would especially like to thank Director Doug Ganim, his outstanding Tournament Committee, and the more than 100 volunteers for the countless hours they have spent to make this event what it is today. In each of the last 24 years, it has grown in size and reputation to become the sport's most prestigious event.

The success of the UnitedHealthcare US OPEN helps make it possible for USA Racquetball to do all that we do, including organizing the Adult and Junior USA National Teams, overseeing the Official Rules, administering National Player Rankings, managing a college scholarship program, and supporting the introduction of new players to the sport.

It has been our goal for many years to garner major corporate support for our work, so I'm pleased to add my sincere thanks to UnitedHealthcare, KWM Gutterman, Inc., Life Time Fitness, Lewis Drug, Sports Minneapolis, Plaskolite, Mueller Sports Medicine, My Pillow and all our other US OPEN partners for stepping forward to associate with this prestigious event and the sport of racquetball.

Have a wonderful week here in Minneapolis, then stay connected with USA Racquetball year-round for breaking news, tournament updates, and player info!

Sincerely,

Mike Wedel
 Executive Director, USA Racquetball

Welcome Players & Fans!

It is with great pleasure that I welcome you to the long-awaited 25th Anniversary UnitedHealthcare US OPEN. This historic event has come to be known as racquetball's premier "Grand Slam" and represents the future of the sport. All the top men and women pros in the world, over 650 amateurs, and top industry leaders have traveled to Minneapolis to celebrate racquetball.

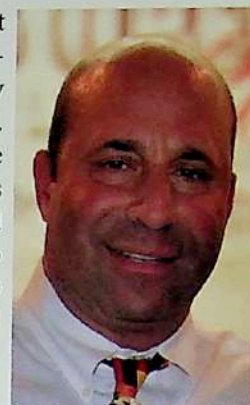

I am thrilled to welcome back UnitedHealthcare as our Title Sponsor. This global leader in healthcare insurance truly cares about the health and well being of their customers. In addition, they are dedicated to helping us raise needed funds for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital and Rapha House. In return, it is extremely important that we all step up and support UnitedHealthcare in recognition of their investment in our great sport. Please visit UHC.com to learn how you can get a private health insurance quote for your family or a business policy to cover your employees.

Special thanks to all our other corporate sponsors for making this event possible including Sports Minneapolis, Life Time Fitness, KWM Gutterman, Inc., Plaskolite, My Pillow, Mueller Sports Medicine, and Lewis Drug. The leadership role they have taken by supporting the UnitedHealthcare US OPEN deserves our year round patronage of their fine products and services. See a complete list of sponsors and Gold Patrons on page 16.

We have named St. Jude Children's Research Hospital and Rapha House as the charities to benefit from our event fundraising. Caring for children is what each of these institutions do, so please support our special donation and auction events throughout the week so we can all make a difference in the lives of children and families in need.

An event of this size would not be possible without the dedicated support of over 100 volunteers and staff, along with an incredible Tournament Committee (above). Please take some time this week to let these folks know how much you appreciate their outstanding efforts.

Lastly, many exciting activities are planned for your enjoyment this week. This Souvenir Program and our daily newsletters will keep you well informed. I hope you will take advantage of all that the 2021 UnitedHealthcare US OPEN has to offer. Feel free to contact me, or anyone on my staff, if we can be of assistance in any way. Have a great week at Target Center in beautiful Minneapolis!

It's hard to believe that the 2021 UnitedHealthcare US OPEN Racquetball Championships marks a FULL quarter century for this incredible Grand Slam!

With such a devoted Title Sponsor, we're primed to celebrate that milestone in ways that are bigger and better than ever ... so let's get ready to preview what you can look forward to this coming week!

To usher in our delayed 25th Anniversary, we've gone all out to craft new special events, like a once-in-a-lifetime Legends Potluck Doubles draw featuring 16 of the greatest players to ever play, a Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony breakfast on Friday morning, special "History of the US OPEN" bar stool talks with Doug Ganim and Jim Hlser plus an upscaled Saturday evening Party with the Pros featuring celebrity DJ and Mexican racquetball legend Javier Moreno ... and more!

Commanding Center Court

There's simply no better place to enjoy pro racquetball than at the UnitedHealthcare US OPEN since every top touring pro in the world is present and committed to giving their all-out best performance. In this spectacular venue, you're certain to see (and hear!) all your favorites in incredible matches right from the round of 32. The men's International Racquetball Tour (IRT) and Ladies Professional Racquetball Tour (LPRT) feature the very best athletes on their circuits – in both singles and doubles – and they're all here, all week.

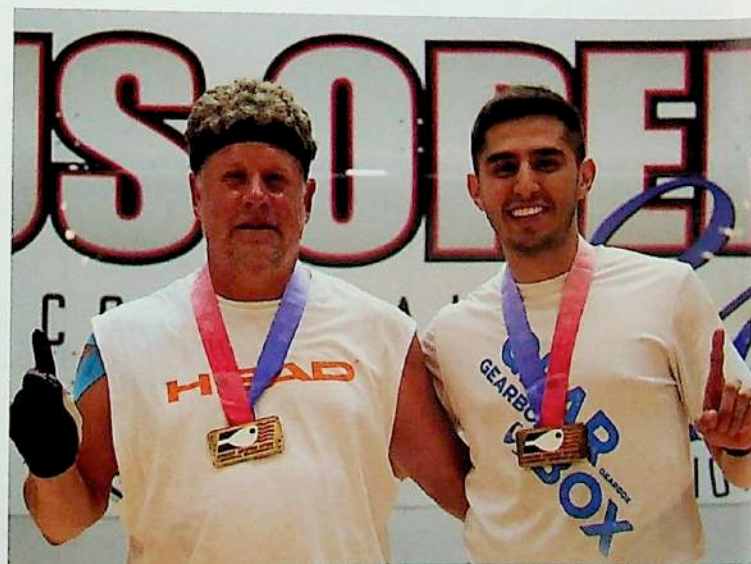

All featured pro matches take place on the dazzling portable stadium court, within four walls of crystal clear Lucite acrylic configured to be optically correct and stunning to view. This seamless perspective makes you feel like you're right inside with the players and the exceptional sound quality lets you overhear every grunt, groan, mutter, and heated exchange.

The stadium sells out early to about 1,400 fans, so – if you didn't get them in advance – you'll be lucky if any VIP Gold Box seating or Preferred Ticket Packages (for all sessions) are still available. But it might still be worth a try, so head straight to registration to see if you can make last-minute arrangements.

Our main host facility and nerve center is the Life Time Fitness Target Center, where players can access quality fitness amenities including upscaled five-star locker rooms, a first-rate restaurant and bar, a four-star spa/salon, a swimming pool, plus numerous warmup options and fitness studios. With its metropolitan footprint and a multi-million dollar high-end facelift throughout the facility, our main venue is among the finest athletic clubs in the world!

Worldwide Title Seekers

We welcome elite level athletes from across the globe to compete in singles and doubles divisions for every age and skill level, plus offer five Centurion Doubles divisions (with team ages totalling 100+). We also honor our brave service members with specialty playoffs and recognition of current and retired military, police, fire, and EMT professionals who are on hand to compete and celebrate.

Rosco Halsey of Olathe, Kansas, teamed up with top pro Rodrigo Montoya to win the 2019 US OPEN Pro-Am Charity Doubles Benefit. More than $10,000 was raised to support the children and families at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

Life Time Fitness Target Center and Life Time Fitness Fridley will host the hundreds of USA Racquetball (USAR) amateur matches scheduled for the week. If needed, early rounds on Thursday may be played at the University of Minnesota Recreation Center. Other than the Heroes divisions, no consolation divisions are scheduled due to the huge draw and limited court time. When the dust settles in these top-level playoffs, each division's top four finishers will be awarded hefty commemorative US OPEN medals to back up their bragging rights.

Socializing in Real Time

Among the many things the UnitedHealthcare US OPEN is best known for is its camaraderie and socializing. If you've attended before, you know what we mean, and you can look forward to more of the same!

Start with the free admission Pro-Am Doubles for Charity on Wednesday night, followed by the fun "Late Night Players Gathering" at the Lyons Pub at the Embassy Suites on Thursday, then on to the Friday Night Players "Meet and Greet" Party at Rock Bottom Brewery. Finally, celebrate with us on Saturday at the sport's largest bash of the year - the Party with the Pros, featuring celebrity DJ Javier Moreno - at The Pourhouse, the city's hottest downtown nightclub for 21 and over.

Throughout the week - between matches on the show court (or your own!) - you're invited to explore all 8,000 square feet of the UnitedHealthcare US OPEN Players

CONNECT WITH FRIENDS!

ALL WEEK LONG ... Whether you're playing or spectating, meet up with long-lost buddies and gal-pals in the Players Village between matches. Shoot the breeze, check out some new equipment, enter an auction bid, grab a bite, take a selfie, or plan a get-together. You'll be right at the hub of all the action in Target Center.

WEDNESDAY at 6:00 PM ... CHARITY DOUBLES pairs top pros with amateur partners to kick off the week's festivities and jumpstart fundraising. Be on hand to support your hometown favorites and their new best friends as these randomly-paired teams race to the finish. The benefit playoff is one-night-only, open to everyone, and spectators are welcome!

THURSDAY at 10:00 PM ... The Lyons Pub at the Embassy Suites will become the evening hotspot for US OPEN players and guests to enjoy special food and drink discounts along with plenty of post-match socializing.

FRIDAY at 10:00 PM ... Meet up at Rock Bottom (a short stroll from Target Center) for no cover charge, generous food and drink specials for players and guests all night long, and lots of prizes and contests.

Visit www.auctionusopen.com to register as a bidder, then get ready for battle. The auction opened in September and will conclude at 8:00 pm on Saturday night.

Ready, Set, Enjoy

The incredible entertainment served up by the world's top pros as they seek the sport's highest honor is always the focal point of the UnitedHealthcare US OPEN. Every tour athlete agrees that the prospect of winning this Grand Slam title brings out 120% of their best effort in every match, of every round. And that's just singles!

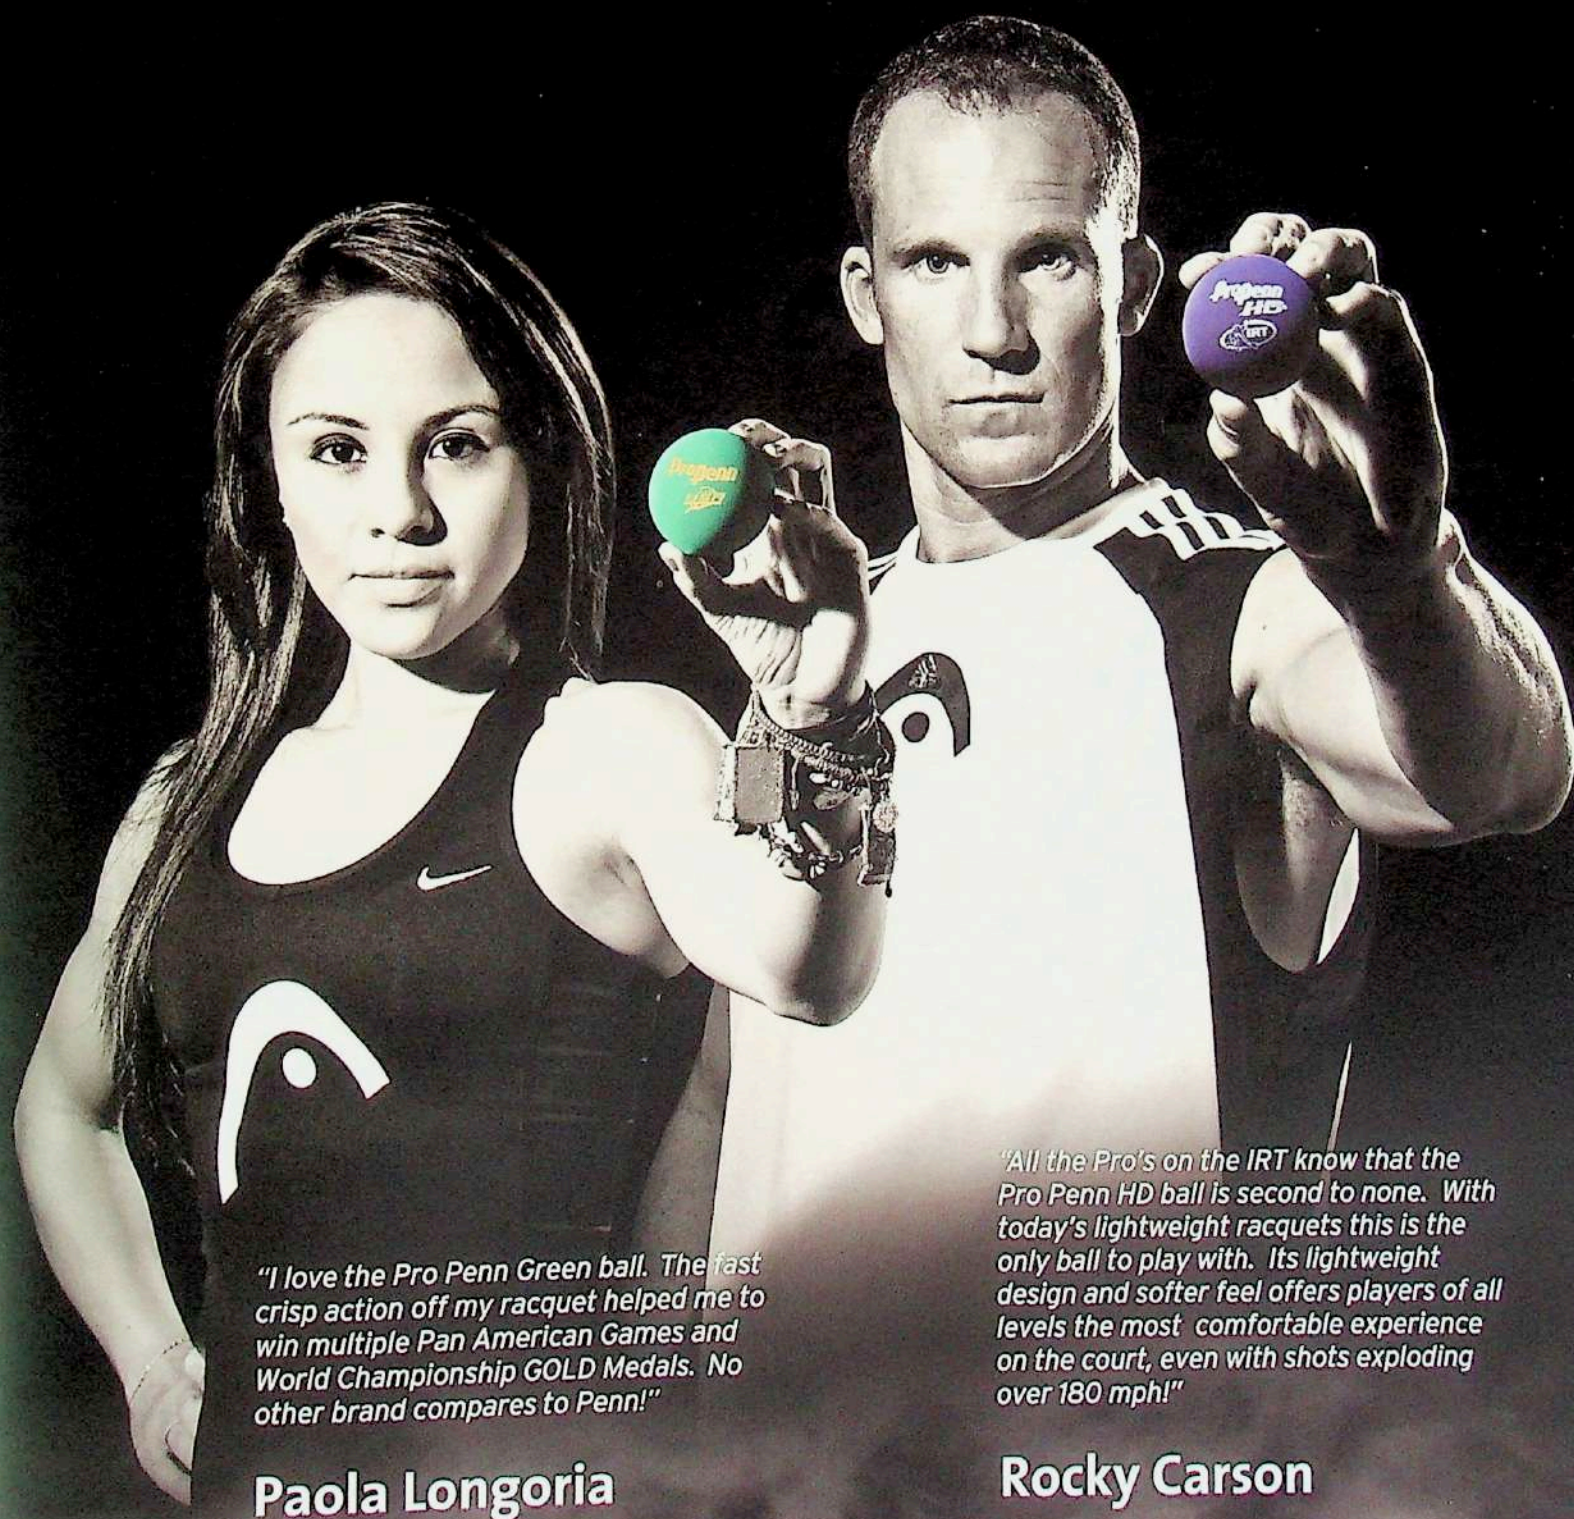

There's also Pro Doubles to deliver plenty of high-flying, fast-paced action, down-to-the-wire upsets, and thrilling acrobatics. You'll see even more of the same exceptional talent and drive that you've come to expect from all of the top players as they pair up and compress twice as many big swings into the same small court.

Check out the tour previews and features for the latest insights on the contenders, their lineups, and their chances. We've been waiting patiently for way too long, so now is the time to sit back and relax ... the excitement is just beginning. Welcome!

What a Ride!

A Fond Farewell from Doug Ganim

It was just over 27 years ago when I huddled in a room with Jim Hiser and Luke St. Onge to map out the vision for what we hoped would become the world's greatest racquetball tournament, the US OPEN Racquetball Championships. We went on to pull off the first event in 1996 at the beautiful Racquet Club of Memphis, Tennessee. The tournament featured a new made-for-TV portable Stadium racquetball court, live entertainment, laser light shows, booming player introductions, wildly fun evening parties, an Industry Trade Show, Players Village, hundreds of amateur players, the largest prize money purse in the sport, and all the best men and women pros in the world. The racquetball world would never be the same!

With Mary Beth at a 2019 concert in Columbus, Ohio.

As most of you know, this year marks the 25th Anniversary of the US OPEN and will be my last as the Executive Director of this incredible event. I am retiring so my wife and I can begin the next chapter of our lives together. The journey has been incredible and is filled with so many amazing memories. What a ride it has been!

I have so many people and organizations to thank that it would take a dozen pages to list them all, but I would remiss if I did not formally recognize some of the most important. First and foremost is my wife Mary Beth. When I started this project we had two young children at home. I was constantly traveling with my other jobs, and then I needed another 15 weeks a year on the road to make the US OPEN happen. She had to quit her own dynamic career because of the added travel demands for me. It was the only way we could raise our kids the way we wanted, so she made the sacrifice and never complained, supporting me in every possible way. In no uncertain terms, without her full support I would not have been able to take on this project and most likely there would never have been a US OPEN in racquetball. We all owe her a huge thank you.

Next I have to thank all the US OPEN Staff and Committee members who have worked for me all these years. Many of them have been involved for all or most of the US OPEN tournaments during the last 25 years. There are way too many to list here but I do want to mention Jim Hiser. He has been my right hand man and Assistant Director for the US OPEN since the beginning. And when I say the beginning, I mean the very beginning. When I first had the vision for the US OPEN Jim Hiser was the first person I called. I explained all the crazy ideas I had and we immediately set up meeting after meeting to brainstorm how he could help me pull this off. These meetings started a full two years before the first US OPEN took place in 1996. He jumped on airplanes and visited sites with me for possible host cities with facilities, encouraged me in every way, and rolled up his sleeves behind the scenes to do a lot of the detail work that was needed to make the tournament a reality. I truly don't think I would have been able to do it without him. I will never forget his unrelenting friendship and support.

Familiar Faces! Early on, top-ranked athletes took time to visit the St. Jude Children's Hospital in Memphis, bringing gifts and big smiles to help cheer up the little ones. The first big donation check presented to the hospital was $11,560 and the cumulative total grew to top a half million dollars donated to select children's charities over the remaining years - all thanks to generous giving by US OPEN players, fans, and supporters. Well done!

I added up all the corporate and individual sponsorship support the US OPEN has enjoyed during the past 25 years and the total came to a whopping $9.1 million. Again, way too many companies and people to list (over 600) but I do want to call out the Title Sponsors that led the fundraising charge ... Promus Hotel Corporation, Hilton Hotel Corporation, Choice Hotels International, and UnitedHealthcare. Just these four companies contributed over $4 million of the total raised. I have been truly blessed to enjoy these amazing partnerships and many of the executives at these companies have become personal friends.

Lastly, I have to thank all the amateur/pro players and spectators that have attended the US OPEN over the past two and a half decades. You have come from every corner of the world to build the US OPEN into the greatest racquetball tournament in the world. Your energy - and sheer volume (!) - have never ceased to amaze me. It is really so many of you that have made the US OPEN what it is today, and I will forever be grateful.

After our 20th anniversary retrospective in 2015, we selected a few more of these old photos to share, including these from the very first US OPEN. I hope these images help you enjoy another quick trip down memory lane with me. In closing, it has been the honor of my life to serve as the Executive Director of the US OPEN and I am certain the folks at USA Racquetball will keep this event rolling forward for many years to come.

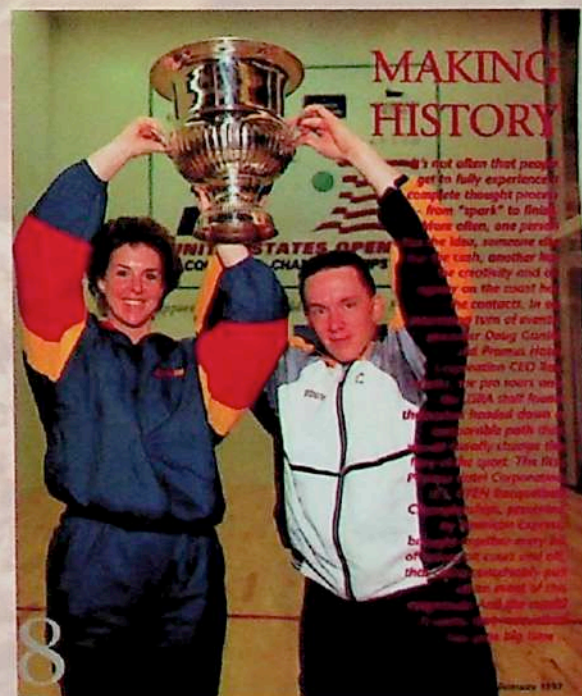

*Douglas J. Ganim
Executive Director, US OPEN Racquetball*

The first US OPEN was held November 13-17, 1996 and coverage in the Jan/Feb 1997 edition of RACQUETBALL Magazine was largely black-and-white. At the time, the magazine was published bimonthly, printed on 64 pages of glossy stock (plus cover!) but ... the USRA could only afford to run color on ad placements and limited interior pages, in very specific positions.

So, the first US OPEN was reported with a full page color lead-in featuring the photo below, plus headline and this intro:

MAKING HISTORY ... It's not often that people get to fully experience a complete thought process from "spark" to finish.

More often, one person has the idea, someone else has the cash, another has the creativity, and an agency on the coast has the contacts. In an interesting turn of events, promoter Doug Ganim and Promus Hotel Corporation CEO Ray Schultz, the pro tours and the USRA staff found themselves headed down a comparable path that would literally change the face of the sport. The first Promus Hotel Corporation US OPEN Racquetball Championships, presented by American Express, brought together every bit of talent, on court and off, that could conceivably pull off an event of this magnitude. And the result? It seems that racquetball has gone big time ...

Foreground: Back in 2019, reigning champ Kane Waselenchuk faced Conradp Moscoso in the final.

In the Grand Slam spotlight of the UnitedHealthcare US OPEN, the IRT singles and doubles draws always deliver the excitement that fans around the world crave. Follow energetic and fearless young stars as they face off against wily veterans – all vying for their shot at a coveted US OPEN title.

Even more determined than ever to go out with a record that will stand the test of time, defending champ Kane Waselenchuk intends to make history again and claim his 16th US OPEN title on Sunday. It still seems like pretty good odds!

Men's Pro Tour Preview

Conrado Moscoso's debut US OPEN final didn't seem to rattle Waselenchuk, who seemed intent on securing his 15th title victory.

Every year, the UnitedHealthcare US OPEN offers racquetball fans the deepest draws, the widest international fields, and all-around best opportunity to see unpredictable results. The ante has been raised even more this year since players from around the globe are now itching to return to the sport's biggest stage. Working around pandemic spikes and venue lockdowns, the IRT has hosted only three events since March of 2020 (Atlanta in January 2021, Denver in August, and Chicago in September), with athletes facing competitive challenges like never before. The quality of play has been incredible as the pros work themselves back into top form ahead of the season's biggest event, so expect some fireworks this week.

Currently #1 in the world, Kane Waselenchuk will battle for his 16th US OPEN title, but the landscape of Men's pro racquetball has changed significantly since his last win. Bolivian phenom Conrado Moscoso, who faced Kane in that 2019 final as a lowly #15 seed, comes into this year's US OPEN with far better positioning and greater confidence about advancing deep into the bracket. Some top players from the 2019 event stepped back from touring, and their spots are now held by some of the sport's younger, budding stars.

So let's take a closer look at the top contenders for the 2021 title and lay down some odds.

#1 KANE WASELENCHUK

Born: 11/09/81 (age: 39)

Birthplace: Edmonton, Canada

Resides: Austin, Texas

Height: 5' 10" Weight: 175

15x US OPEN Champion (2008-2019, 2003-2005)

Kane's talent and determination is unsurpassed. He has a career win-loss record of 608-53, good for a 92% winning percentage; however, there's another stop that will have been played (September 2021 in Chicago) that could tilt the scale a bit more in his favor before his US OPEN bid.

In addition to his 15 US OPEN Singles titles, Kane also holds 4 US OPEN Doubles titles with Ben Croft. He has 123 top tier titles, 50-plus more than the next player, cementing his legacy as the Greatest of All Time.

Kane was showing no signs of slowing down before the shutdown. When he will finally end his brilliant career is anyone's guess as he seems ready to continue adding to his impressive collection of titles.

There is a strong case to be made that Kane is one of professional sports' most accomplished athletes. His game is technically skilled and creative. The master of deception is extremely focused, hard-working, and has killer instincts. Having proven he is the best racquetball player on the planet, maybe the only question is how long he will extend his dominance. [2019 Headshot: Kevin Savory]

#2 ALEJANDRO LANDA

Born: 3/20/88 (age: 33) Birthplace: Chihuahua, Mexico

Resides: El Paso, Texas Height: 5'9" Weight: 163

Best US OPEN Finish: Semifinalist (2019, 2017, 2014)

Alex has developed into a consistent top performer on the tour over the last two years. Capturing four tour wins has improved his ranking from #10 in 2017 to #2 currently.

Starting part-time, he began the 2016-17 season ranked #45 and finished #10. Playing full-time 2017-18, he finished at #3 before becoming the first-ever Mexican player to overtake the #1 spot, briefly, at mid-season.

Landa began playing at age 12 in Chihuahua, Mexico, and represented Mexico on both the Junior and Adult national teams. He earned a silver medal in the Boys 18- at the 2006 Junior Worlds and a gold medal in doubles at the 2016 Pan American Championships. With his dual citizenship, he is currently representing the US National Team in singles.

Landa has an aggressive high-risk/high-reward game style and is at his best under pressure. He plays with an edge and a never-say-die attitude that allows him to always be in a match, regardless of the score. With another impressive season behind him, Landa remains determined to close out the year on a high note.

In the 2019 semifinals, Alex Landa (far left) struggled against Kane, and Conrrado Moscoso (below right) defeated Daniel De La Rosa in straight games. But Daniel returned the favor only recently to win Denver, so their next faceoff could go either way.

Kane Waselenchuk (1:5 odds) — The chances of #16 slipping through the defending champ's fingers remain slim. Kane won the final IRT event prior to shutdown in March of 2020 but then struggled with court access near his home in Austin and missed the first two stops of 2021. A substantial lead in the rankings held him at #1 heading into Fall, allowing him to skip both Denver and Chicago and still retain his top seed here. How has the layoff affected him? As Kane nears 40, he has to be thinking about the next phase of his career, and he's launched a new clinical series with Sudsy Monchik as well as an online store featuring boutique sportswear at krowningmoments.com. But the new ventures won't distract him from his primary goal of winning the US OPEN, since he's always held a special place in his heart for this Grand Slam. It was his big "coming out" party to the racquetball world in 2000 and where he broke Cliff Swain's all-time tournament wins record in 2013. We may yet hear "big news" related to his future, but in the meantime if Kane is here and healthy, he's the man to beat.

Conrrado Moscoso (4:1 odds) — Many in the sport believe (especially in Bolivia, where racquetball rivals soccer as the national pastime), that Conrrado is the heir apparent to the throne. He has ascended from South American obscurity to reaching the finals in four of his first eleven pro events and winning the 2019 Bolivian Grand Slam on home soil. He made the US OPEN finals in 2019 and the finals in the first two IRT events of 2021 (Atlanta and Denver). At both, Moscoso was favored going into the finals, only to lose each to Samuel Murray and Daniel De La Rosa, respectively. Many suspect that he had over-committed by playing the doubles finals the same day ahead of the pro singles finals. It's no surprise that his extended on-court time seems to catch up with him, both physically and mentally. Here in Minneapolis, he'll need his full focus, in every match, to top the players who have beaten him in recent months.

Daniel De La Rosa (5:1 odds) — Fresh off an exhilarating win in Denver, Daniel appears to be in top form. Playing through a leg injury, he held off

#3 DANIEL DE LA ROSA

Born: 7/4/93 (age: 28) Birthplace: Chihuahua, Mexico
Resides: Gilbert, AZ Height: 5'7 Weight: 170

Best US OPEN Finish: Finalist (2018, 2015)

Daniel continues to ascend in the rankings and is fresh off a sterling performance in Denver with a win over Conrado Moscoso to claim a career fifth top-tier IRT title. With partner Alvaro Beltran, they are currently the #1 and #2 ranked doubles players in the world and are certain to make a serious bid to repeat their 2018 US Open Doubles victory this week.

He pivoted a junior career into a tour debut at 16, launching a meteoric rise up the ranks. He broke into the Top 8 at the end of the 2013-14 IRT season with a #5 finish, rose to #4 on the heels of his first Tier 1 title the next year, then finished the next season with a solid hold on the #3 spot. He then slipped to #4 after winning one T1 event and reaching the finals in another in 2017-18, before dipping to #6. He has now reclaimed #3.

Daniel is a gifted shot-maker with a powerful serve who is quick, collected, exudes confidence, and embraces high-pressure moments. His energetic and durable game style features lots of hang time as he contorts his body to retrieve balls with apparent ease. Off court, Daniel is married to LPRT pro Michelle Key De La Rosa and the couple enjoys spending time with their two children, along with golfing and excelling at pickleball.

#4 SAMUEL MURRAY

Born: 6/04/92 (age: 28) Birthplace: Brossard, QC Canada
Resides: Baie-Comeau, QC Height: 6'0" Weight: 215

Best US OPEN Finish: Round of 16 (2018)

Sam made a major breakthrough in capturing his first IRT title at the Atlanta Grand Slam stop in January. He barreled through four straight tiebreakers, including upsets over Daniel De La Rosa and Alex Landa, before beating Conrado Moscoso in the finals 11-9. The career best made him the first Canadian, other than Waselenchuk, to win a T1 stop.

On tour, he's been in the top 10 in each of the last three seasons and is just the third Canadian to reach that level after Kane Waselenchuk and Mike Green. He had been touring for the past several seasons and was ranked #7 when the tour was suspended due to the pandemic.

Murray is a member of Racquetball Canada's national team and has been Canadian Champion six times: twice in singles and four times in doubles, each with different partners. Internationally, Murray has been on Team Canada 10 times and won four medals. Known as a power player and an extremely intense competitor, this latest Canadian prodigy has become a solid player on tour. He gives the top players trouble, rarely loses to lower seeds, gains confidence with each advance, and continues to chart a steep performance curve.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Jake Bredenbeck: Looking for a breakthrough year, this power player looked fit and strong in Denver despite losing a tiebreaker to Portillo in the round of 16. Jake and his brother Sam have also begun their own clothing line, Beast Made Clothing, so he's gaining style points, too.

Javier Mar: At his every US OPEN bid, Mar has been underseeded, upset top players and made runs into the quarters. In 2017 he beat two top-8 seeds before falling to Carson. In 2018 he scored the highest game points (12) against Kane, then ran into the GOAT again in 2019. In many ways, this controlled and tactical player is similar to fellow Mexicans Landa and De La Rosa. With excellent touch on his serves, he can control matches by putting even the most aggressive and skilled receivers on their back feet. He could reach the semis given the right draw.

Rodrigo Montoya: Even boasting amazing international success (the reigning World Champion, 2019 Pan American Games gold medalist, and 2021 Mexican National champion), Montoya has struggled to make his mark on the IRT or at the US OPEN and needs to focus on the task at hand. He has the ability to go deep in any pro draw, but needs to leverage a spotless career record over Moscoso and beat the players he should in order to fulfill his promise.

Eduardo Portillo: Lalo made it to the semis in Denver, the semis at Mexican Nationals, and the semis in Atlanta. His lanky frame disguises an agility that rivals some of the best athletes on tour, and he's made incredible strides in all aspects of his game lately. He's gone from being "that kid" who happened to work his way into a final in early 2019 to being a threat to make Saturday or Sunday at every event. His just needs to find a favorable path; in the #8/#9 slot, he'll be heading home early at the hands of Kane in the quarters.

Carlos Keller Vargas: This Bolivian Team member has toiled in relative obscurity for years, despite high visibility on the international circuit. He holds two major IRF singles titles (the 2018 and 2019 Pan Ams) and made a strong push to compete on the cratered pro tour last season. Hot on the heels of a great showing at Bolivian Nationals, he made a deep run into his first pro semifinal in Denver with wins over Murray and Mercado. His unique game strategy relies more on placement over power on his drive serves as a way to set up subsequent rallies.

Eduardo (Lalo) Portillo in the semis and beat Moscoso in the finals in a textbook display of rally control. De La Rosa has bounced back from a stretch of difficult play in late 2019 that even had him questioning his future on tour. Now he is in the midst of a fantastic run of form that includes multiple pro titles, the 2020 Mexican National Singles Championship and several major outdoor titles. All the while, he's been growing his presence in pickleball, where he's a teaching and touring pro-level player, plus he has transitioned to a new project management career to support his growing family. Ironically, the balance between these activities has only sharpened his resolve, and he's thriving in both sports. Daniel has reached the US OPEN finals twice before and he's hungry and motivated. Could this be his breakthrough year?

Alejandro Landa: (6:1 odds) — In Kane's absence, Landa has been the #1 seeded player on tour but has not able to take advantage and add to his career title totals. He lost a close 11-10 tiebreaker to eventual champion (and long-time doubles partner) Samuel Murray in Atlanta, then suffered a back injury that caused him to lose the quarterfinal to Eduardo Portillo in Denver. Landa recently switched country allegiances from Mexico to the USA, and promptly qualified for the US National Team. Landa plays a controlled, tactical game on the court and is incredibly adept at putting away setups. He has some curious losses on his resume and can struggle with pace, a good sign for some of the tour's harder hitters who might fancy their chances at an early round upset. Landa plays with passion on the court, seeming to embrace the bad boy narrative that was on full display during a rather "spirited" match against Andres Acuña in Denver. If he's healthy, no one wants him on their side of the draw, and it'll be a huge upset if he isn't in the semis come Saturday.

#5 ROCKY CARSON

Born: 05/21/79 (age: 42)
In: Newport Beach, California
Resides: Ladera Ranch, Calif.
Height: 6'0" | Weight: 175

Best US OPEN Finish:
Champion (2007), 7x Finalist

Atop the ranks for most of his career, he fought back from injury last season to reclaim a US Team spot with USAR singles and doubles wins. But he lost a close quarterfinal to Moscoso recently (as well as an OPEN upset in 2019), which may haunt him. He holds 27 pro titles, made the US OPEN finals 8x, and is the only player to hold #1 IRT, WOR, and IRF titles concurrently.

#6 CONRRADO MOSCOSO

Born: 9/25/1995 (age: 26)
In & Resides: Sucre, Bolivia
Height: 6'0 | Weight: 175

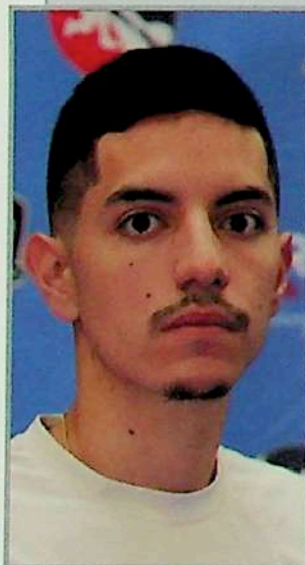

Best US OPEN Finish:
Finalist (2019)

Junior and international success led to an IRT debut at 22 with upsets into the quarters of the 2017 US OPEN. He brings fantastic power, incredible shot-making, and great hands. This streaky player depends on a huge serve then often dares to take (and make) low-percentage shots that demoralize opponents. The key is to limit his foot faults, take more smart shots, and stay consistent.

#7 ANDREE PARRILLA

Born: 7/23/96 (age: 25)
In & Resides: San Luis Potosí, Mexico
Height: 5'6" | Weight: 137

Best US OPEN Finish:
Semifinal (2018)

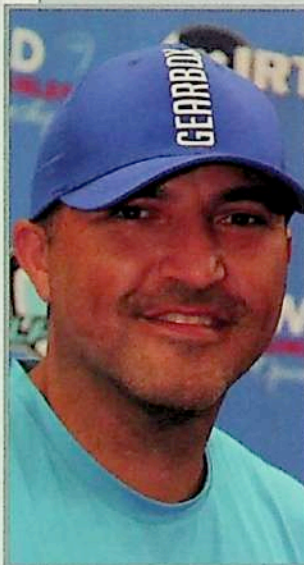

Working on a solid 2021 after rocketing up the ranks in 2019, this former junior star's style is less about power than it is around placement.

Among the best retrievers in the game, he can kill any ball where he can set his feet, makes in-game adjustments easily, and his confidence is growing. Probably doesn't hurt to drill with his sister Jessica (LPRT #8) either.

#8 ALVARO BELTRAN

Born: 10/15/78 (age: 43)
In: Tijuana, Mexico
Resides: San Diego, CA
Height: 6'1" | Weight: 190

Best US OPEN Finish:
Finalist (2014, 2010)

This elder statesman has only dipped below the top-10 twice since 2004 and still plays the same smooth game of touch, skill, and exquisite shot-making. A veteran member of the Mexican National team, this crowd-pleaser manages to cruise through points to preserve energy with style. He also holds 11 major outdoor doubles titles since 2010.

Samuel Murray (10:1) — Murray has been one of the tour's most covid-impacted players in terms of restricted court availability in his native Canada. Against all odds (and with precious little on-court prep), he won four tiebreakers in a row in Atlanta to earn his first Grand Slam championship title in January. He wasn't able to repeat in August, and suffered a surprise loss to Carlos Keller Vargas in the 16s in Denver. But his personal best title has catapulted him to a career high ranking, which will help with early round matchups in the large US OPEN draw. With the depth of players here, he'll have to raise the level of his game to advance to the later rounds, which will demand that he find a way to train consistently with solid play and practice time before setting foot in Target Center.

Rocky Carson: (12:1 odds) — After a decade of reigning near the top of the IRT ranks, Carson has begun to feel the steady advance of fresh pro talent. In the 2018-19 season, Carson made the semis or better in all nine pro stops. Since then, he's made the semis of just 3 of his 10 events competed, getting knocked out seven times in the quarters or earlier. Father Time won't be ignored, and this latest run of form exactly coincides with his turning 40. That being said, he remains in the top 8 and is one of the fittest athletes out there, of any age. And he's still a threat to make a deep run. In a close match he no doubt thinks he should have won, he nearly made the finals in Denver but couldn't hold on to a commanding lead in a tiebreaker that went to Moscoso. He continues to compete at a top level while furthering his real estate career, combining surfing into his everyday workout routine, and being a spokesperson for the budding sport of Torques.

Andree Parrilla: (long odds!) — Definitely on the brink of great things, it's just too strange to consider someone who finished the last two seasons ranked No.4 on tour as a dark horse. Parrilla has been operating under the radar lately, outshined by the sudden rise of Moscoso, the resurgence of the veteran De La Rosa, and the international exploits of long-time rival Rodrigo Montoya. Parrilla suffered through an awful stretch of form in early 2020, but he was able to turn things around with an excellent run to the 2021 Mexican National finals. In Denver, Andree suffered an early defeat at the hands of eventual winner De La Rosa, but he continues to deliver solid, consistent performance and will be a difficult opponent for anyone in the quarters or semis here in Minneapolis. He certainly bears watching as he continues to make his mark on tour and especially at the US OPEN.

IRT Pro Doubles – It's always difficult to write an accurate doubles preview since we often don't know who is playing with whom until a week or two prior to the tourney. The two top teams are likely to be Waselenchuk/Croft and Beltran/De La Rosa. However, there are as many as twelve other potential pairs capable of teaming up to capture the title. So you can expect everyone to be in the doubles draw, and you can bet your last dollar there will be upsets. Nothing in all of sports compares to watching highly-motivated pro athletes compete for cash!

The UnitedHealthcare US OPEN spotlight shines brightly on the Ladies Professional Racquetball Tour as it prepares to crown a Grand Slam champion in pro singles and doubles this week.

The odds-on favorite remains World #1 Paola Longoria from Mexico, whose record at the US OPEN has become legendary. Between limited court time and the challenge of fresh new faces, she'll have her hands full battling for her eleventh singles and sixth doubles titles.

Ladies Pro Tour Preview

Paola Longoria didn't let Maria Jose Vargas get any closer in her second challenge for the US OPEN crown.

The record held by Paola Longoria may never be broken, since she's captured this title more than any other woman in the sport's history.

The UnitedHealthcare US OPEN finally opens the door for returning LPRT athletes, and they'll likely face the deepest draw of competitors in recent memory. Heavily favored is World #1 and defending champion Paola Longoria, who will be difficult to beat on a stage she considers her home. After a surprising upset in the 2019 doubles final, expect her to be just as intent on reclaiming that crown, too. Both singles and doubles draws are strong, and she'll be pushed hard by a young generation of rising tour stars.

Paola Longoria: (1:2 odds) — It's hard to truly comprehend the statistics that place Longoria as the odds-on favorite for another title. Undefeated for a decade, this ten-time winner has not lost a singles match on the big stage since 2010. It's very hard to suggest anything otherwise this year, with her 86-4 (95.5%) win ratio in tour finals since the 2010 season. She is, and may always remain, the most successful racquetball player to ever pick up a racquet, male or female. And this is the US OPEN, a place she has simply dominated. Odds aside, who would bet against her?

But while history lends credence to the expectation that Longoria will once again retain her title, recent months suggest that it may not be routine. First, Longoria lost in June to fellow Mexican Montse Mejia in the TeamRoot.com SuperMaxSlam final. She also lost in the doubles final, leaving a tour stop without a title in hand for the first time since 2013 (when the tour began fielding doubles on a regular basis). Let that sink in for a minute. Second, her drive to dominate didn't seem as sharp, which might give her opponents some hope that her aura of invincibility is fading. Third, she elected to skip the August stop altogether following a lengthy period in Tokyo providing TV coverage of the Olympics. It remains to be seen how the three-month break from competition, not to mention the recent tour losses, will affect her performance.

#1 PAOLA LONGORIA

Born: 07/20/89 (age: 32)

Birthplace: San Luis Potosí, Mexico

Resides: Monterrey, Mexico

Height: 5'5"

Began Playing: 2006

Best US OPEN Finish: 10-time Champion (2011-2019; 2008)

Longoria continues to solidify her place as one of the greatest professional racquetball players of all time. She has 11 season-ending finishes as the #1 player on the LPRT and is vying for her 11th United Healthcare US OPEN title.

Setting records unbelievable for most sports, she earned her 100th career win at the 2019 US OPEN Championships. Her victories include winning streaks of 36 consecutive tournaments and 152 consecutive matches and most recently a streak of 37 match victories for the LPRT 2018-2019 season. In addition to LPRT titles, her singles resumé includes three gold medals at the World Championships, two gold medals at the Pan Am Games and six gold medals at the Pan American Championships.

On top of all her outstanding racquetball accomplishments, she is a true sports star in Mexico. From magazine covers to TV shows, she is one of the most recognizable athletes in the country. Forbes magazine twice named her one of the most powerful women in Mexico. She makes regular appearances on ESPN Deportes, and this year she went to Japan with a Mexican Broadcast team to cover the Tokyo Olympics.

#2 ALEXANDRA HERRERA

Born: 01/10/95 (age: 26)

Birthplace: Tijuana, Baja California, Mexico

Resides: Monterrey, Mexico

Height: 5'6"

Began Playing: 2007

Best US OPEN Finish: Quarterfinalist (2019, 2018, 2017)

This hard-serving lefty has been quietly consistent as she has made her name known at the top of the ranks. Herrera is a steady top-3 ranked tour player and a near-guarantee for LPRT event semi-finals. She is a former IRF World Junior champion and has one of the most consistent forehands on the LPRT.

Herrera is a very tough left-side doubles player who, along with partner Montse Mejia, is the reigning US OPEN Champions. This duo also won the silver medal at the IRF World Championships in August 2018, and Mexican Nationals in 2018. They share a coming-of-age past lined with junior singles and doubles titles.

After having first stepped onto the pro tour at the US OPEN in 2012, she has made it to the semifinals 22 times and the finals 6 times. Her most recent final was at the World Singles and Doubles Open Championships in August 2021 where she fell short in the tiebreaker to Gaby Martinez. Her enthusiasm on the courts is unbounded, and this young lady is expected to keep ascending in the rankings with dedication and commitment.

With all that said, if you know Longoria, you know that she's highly motivated by losses. If you know Longoria, you know that little gives her more pleasure than beating the rising stars on tour. If you know Longoria, you don't expect her to hand over her US OPEN championship easily, or anytime soon.

Maria Jose Vargas (4:1 odds) — After taking time off in 2020-21 for the birth of her son, Maria Jose Vargas has been working her way back into top form. A finalist in 2019 and 2014 at the US OPEN, Vargas has demonstrated the ability to showcase her skills on the big stage. Now as #3 on tour, even after a significant absence, she will be a favorite to challenge the champ. Admittedly, she looked a bit shaky at the TeamRoot.com SuperMaxSlam back in June; however, the rust appeared to be gone by August when she lost a tough semifinal to Gabriela Martinez in Denver.

Vargas has one more important element working for her – she is one of the few players to have ever won a match against Longoria. In the fall of 2019, Vargas defeated Longoria in a tight tiebreaker at the By the Beach final. She had another chance at the Christmas Classic, leading 6-0 in the tiebreaker, but Longoria rallied to close it out for the title. So, while Vargas

Athletic, powerful and strategic. Top down: Vargas reaches; Salas crushes a forehand and doubles takes it up a notch. Samantha Salas and Longoria (foreground) suffered a rare loss to Montse Mejia and Alexandra Herrera in 2019.

#3 MARIA JOSE VARGAS

Born: 03/18/1993 (age: 28)

Birthplace: Santa Cruz, Bolivia

Resides: Buenos Aires, Argentina

Height: 5'8"

Began Playing: 2001

Best US OPEN Finish: Finalist (2019, 2014)

Vargas is one of the most aggressive shot takers on the LPRT and one of an elite group who has won against Longoria. Her highest pro rank was #2, right before taking time off to start a family. Vargas has 4 LPRT Tier 1 titles and added her first Grand Slam victory to her resumé by winning the first-ever LPRT event in Bolivia in 2018.

Vargas, who is coached by Carlos Cuadri, is a fun player to watch. She is a formidable opponent for any player on tour and has one of the most challenging drive serves in women's professional racquetball history. Her willingness to dive for every ball creates exciting, long rallies. Since Vargas came onto the LPRT at the US OPEN in 2012, she has made 24 trips to pro finals, winning the title a total of five times.

Since Vargas made her LPRT debut at the US OPEN in 2012, she has made frequent trips to pro finals and taken games off of Longoria but has yet to beat her, making her a strong contender for an upset. Be sure to follow this mom's bid for a groundbreaking title win this week, cheered on by her husband, young daughter, and (hopefully napping!) infant son who was just born in April 2021.

#4 GABY MARTINEZ

Born: 8/2/1999 (age: 22)

Birthplace: Guatemala City, Guatemala

Resides: Guatemala City

Height: 5'0"

Began Playing: Juniors

Best US OPEN Finish: Semifinalist (2018)

Martinez is the most recent LPRT event winner and a rising star with plenty of international experience. This talented, explosive player is known for her incredible court coverage and a fearless, aggressive game style. And she is all of 5 feet tall.

Martinez' tour debut was at the age of 15, at the 2014 Great Balls of Fire Pro-Am in Miami, Florida. She won her first pro event at the World Singles and Doubles Open Championships in August 2021. Her brief resumé also includes 6 pro semifinals and 8 quarterfinal appearances.

A veteran member of the Guatemalan National Team, she had been expected to win Girls 18&U at the IRF World Junior Championships in her last year of junior eligibility but lost to Mexico's Montse Mejia. That same year she had been fresh off a rare win over Longoria at the 2018 IRF World Championships when she reached a US OPEN high point with a semifinal berth. Although she took a brief step away from the sport a few years ago, in what was thought to be a very early retirement, she is back and better than ever.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Rhonda Rajsich is a crowd favorite who always seems to be enjoying her time on tour. She turned back the clock at the US National Championships, claiming both the singles and doubles titles in July. A knee injury in 2019-20 seemed to hamper the veteran, but she remains fit, fast, and will use her vast guile and experience to challenge anyone. Expect the four-time champion to give her all.

Natalia Mendez quickly established herself as a top-eight player on tour yet has not had that breakout tournament. Full of energy and an unorthodox game, she can surprise with her athleticism and power. Her recent semifinal berth will give her plenty of confidence. So, could this be her moment?

Valeria Centellas exploded onto the scene with a 2018 IRF World Championship title in doubles at age 16! And, she has not disappointed since. Making waves in any draw, Centellas has soared up the rankings and now sits at #9. Her aggressive style and explosive play can beat anyone.

Angelica Barrios has a unique style that combines a little power with incredible touch. Rarely unsettled, she uses her opponent's pace against them and wins through control and percentage play. Do not be deceived by the almost casual looking shots and attitude; the Bolivian #1 knows exactly what she is doing.

Veronica Sotomayor-Monchik has not played on tour since the 2016-17 season, so how she will do in her first event in over four years remains to be seen. However, with a final and four semifinals to her credit, two of which were at the US OPEN, she is more than capable of making some noise.

certainly has the skills it takes to win, can she actually do it on the big stage? If so, her serve will simply have to dominate. Always entertaining, winning or losing, she'll be sure to pull out all the stops.

Gabriela Martinez (6:1 odds) — The defending 2018 world champion has had mixed results and roller coaster finishes on tour. A big-name win has often been followed by a poor showing, and a shocking "retirement" from the sport a few years ago made many question the long-term motivation of such a talented athlete. However, no one could ever question the effort exhibited by Martinez on court. At times, tactics and mental slips have cost her in big moments. That appears to have changed this year, and a different Martinez has emerged. Supported by Guatemalan coach Aaron Palomino, Martinez has developed an ability to adapt and focus on a strategic game plan. The result was a semifinal appearance in June, followed by her first pro title in August.

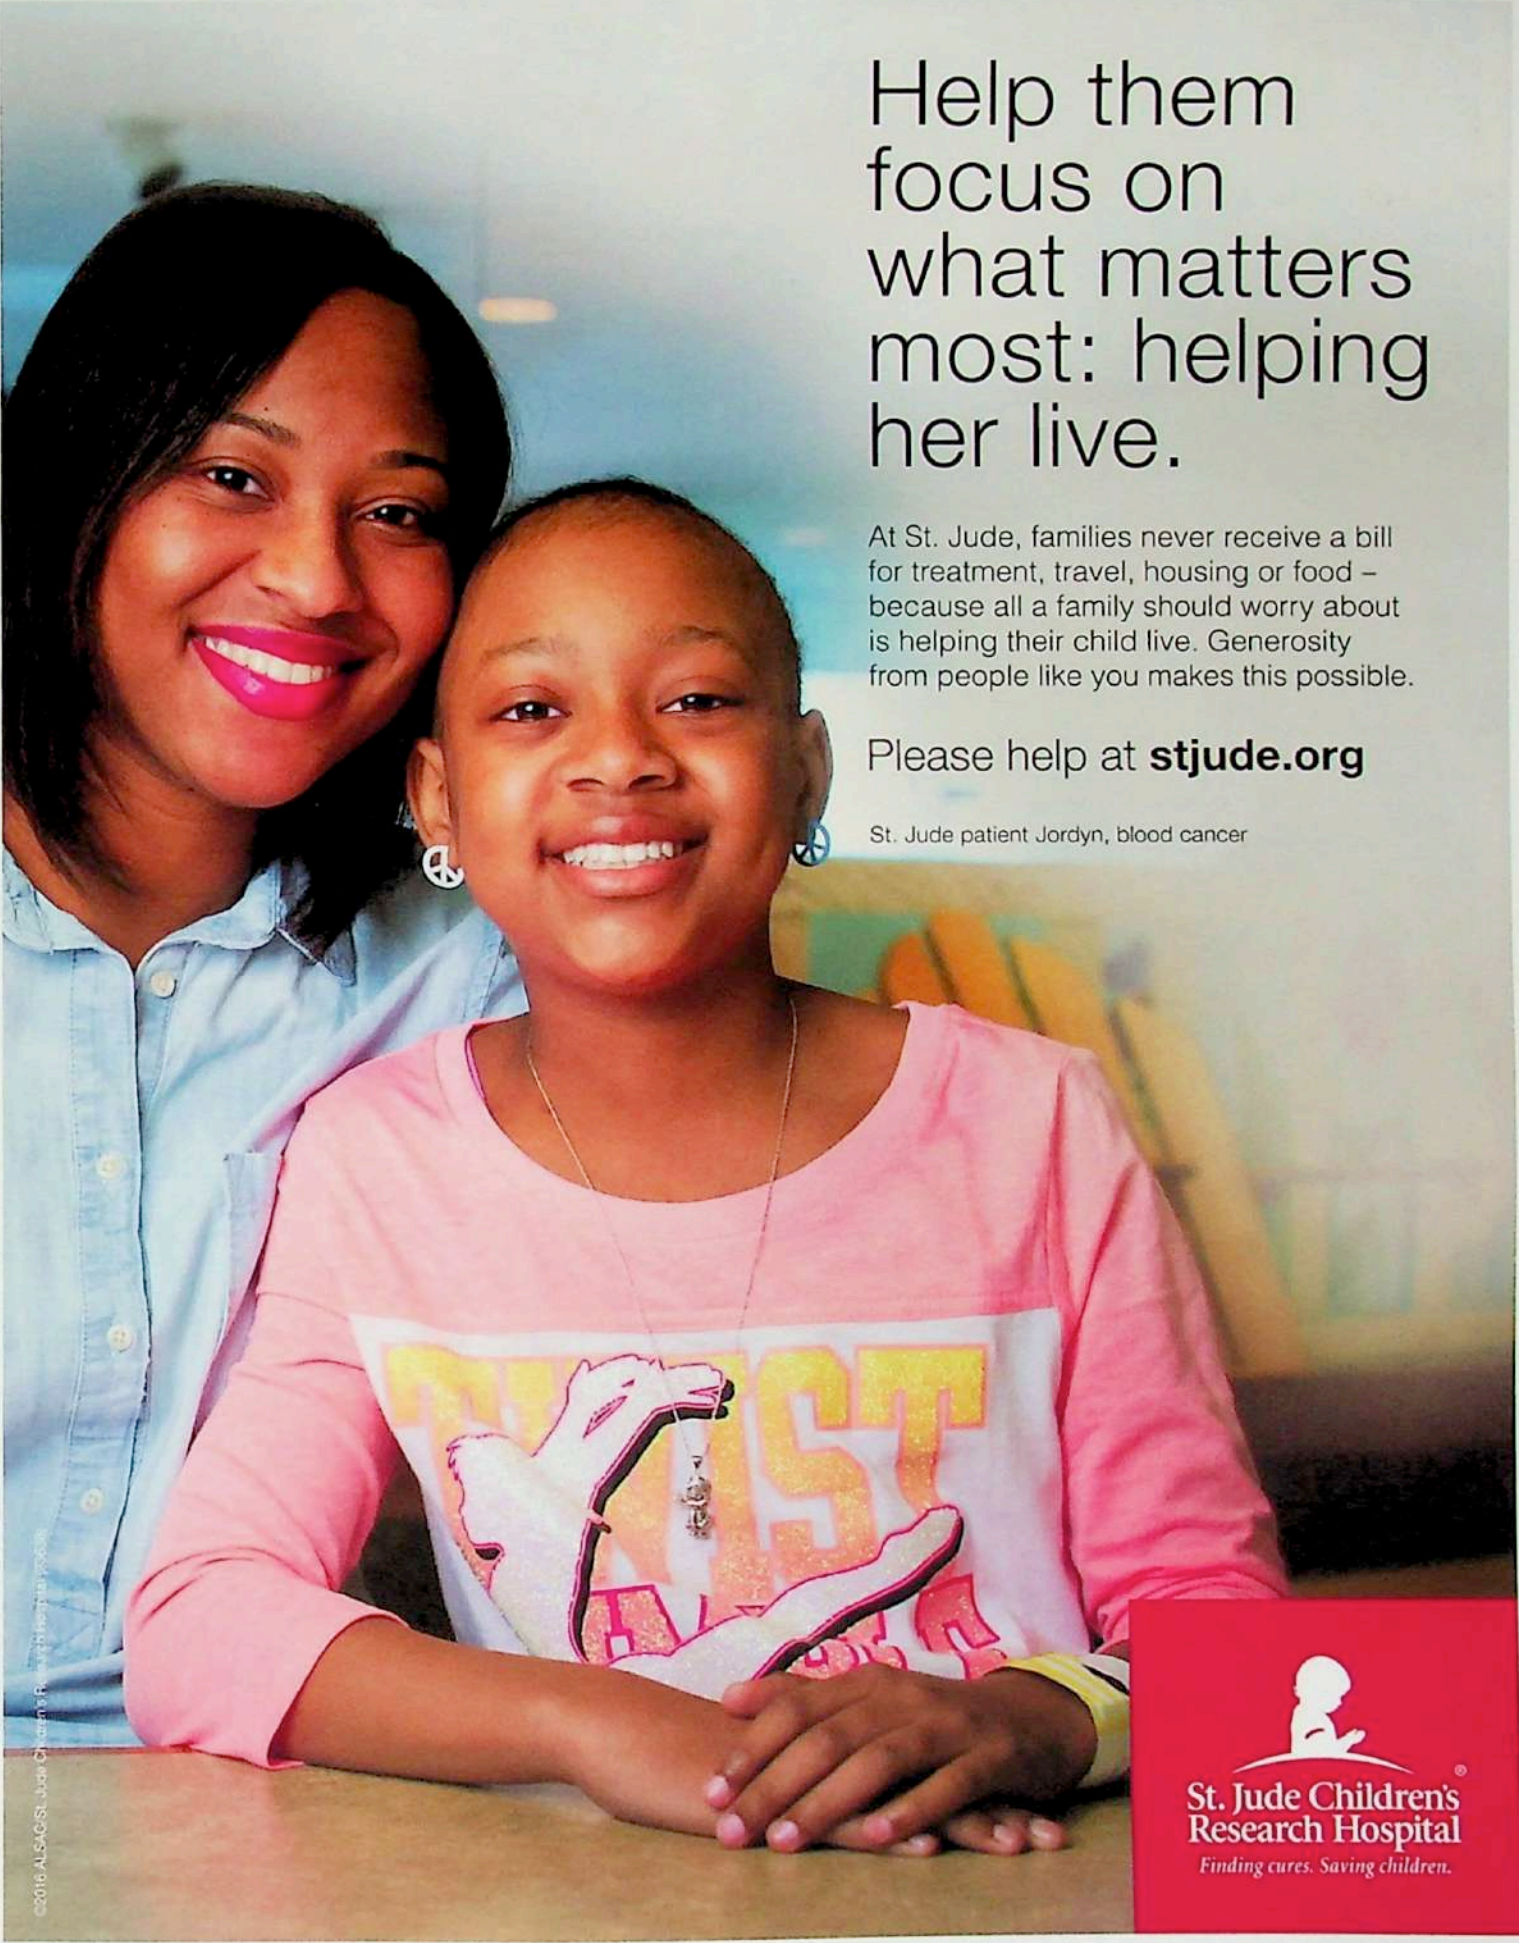

A pocket-sized spitfire, expect Martinez to shine on the big stage. Intimidated by no one, she'll scratch and claw her way to a victory if she must. What makes Martinez worth the odds given her? She has beaten Longoria, and in doing so won a world title. Can she do it again? Yes. Will she? Watch and find out.

Montse Mejia (7:1 odds) — Like Martinez, Montse Mejia is another prodigy that had not been living up to her potential. However, from almost nowhere, she roared through a huge draw at the TeamRoot.com SuperMaxSlam in June to defeat Longoria in two epic games and claim her maiden title. Fitter and faster than she's ever been, Mejia showed dogged determination to beat the best and do so in the big moment.

In the last three US OPENS, Mejia's hopes were dashed by Longoria. But her recent singles win, not to mention being the defending US OPEN doubles champion, will give her added confidence. A word of caution, however. Success is often followed by catastrophic failure, and Mejia, who was picked by many to win in Denver, fell early in the round of 16. Which Mejia shows up in Minneapolis remains to be seen, but she has the tools and experience to go all the way.

Alexandra Herrera (10:1 odds) — Ranked #2 on tour might suggest Herrera should have better odds, but her results at the US OPEN are not her best. Having never advanced beyond the quarterfinals, she has lost to Mejia, Martinez, and Rajsich the past three US OPENS, so history is not on her side. Plus,

#5 Montse MEJIA

Born: 12/4/99 (age: 21)
In & Resides: Monterrey, NL,
Mexico Began: Juniors

Best US OPEN Finish:
Semifinal (2019)

This up-and-comer is known for her smart play, control, and skill at front court touch shots that can be deceiving in singles and doubles. A Junior World Champion with depth of experience beyond her years, she is always a threat to any opponent, in any draw.

She made her LPRT debut at 14, then logged 6 trips to the semis and 2 to the finals, right up to a defining title win over Longoria In June.

#6 NATALIA MENDEZ

Born: 01/28/97 (age: 24)
In: Santa Cruz, Bolivia
Resides: Buenos Aires, Arg.
Height: 5'6" Began: Juniors

Best US OPEN Finish:
Semifinal (2017)

With regular trips to the LPRT quarters, and an increasing number of semis, this mentally tough player is always a threat in the draw. She has a unique forehand swing that can be deceptive and a challenge for her opponents. In 2018 she became one of the youngest lawyers in her country, where she plans to seek advanced degrees and do some modeling.

#7 SAMANTHA SALAS SOLIS

Born: 12/15/86 (age: 34)
In: Guanajuato, Mexico
Resides: Monterrey, Mexico
Height: 5'7" Began: 2000

Best US OPEN Finish:
Finalist (2018, 2016)

Salas made it to every final of the 2018-19 season to earn a #2 finish. This veteran player claims ten, top-10 year-end finishes and is among the handful of players to defeat Longoria. "La Violenta" is one of the strongest athletes on tour, thanks to Crossfit training, an explosive big swing forehand, and a fearless approach to going airborne to retrieve shots. Always a contender.

#8 JESSICA PARILLA

Born: 04/23/92 (age: 29)
In & Resides: San Luis Potosí,
Mexico
Height: 5'5" Began: Age 12

Best US OPEN Finish:
Semifinal (2016)

Exciting to watch may be an understatement, since she's been known to channel her acting abilities to dazzle fans with amazing court coverage and athleticism. This TV personality, model, and talent show competitor was named Miss Cosmopolitan World Mexico in 2017. A knee injury sidelined her in 2018, but she stayed sharp while pursuing other low-impact career paths.

she is 0-15 against Longoria, and if you want to win in Minneapolis, Longoria is the player you must beat.

That said, Herrera is stronger than at any point in her career. Pushing Martinez all the way in Denver's final, she fell just a few short points away from her maiden pro title in what turned out to be a classic battle. She is #2 for a reason, and her consistent serving and shooting cause havoc for most players. To win, she will have to execute to perfection.

Samantha Salas (15:1 odds) — Salas has been competing at the US OPEN since 2003, and while she has made it to two finals and four semis over the years, Vargas, Rajsich, and Longoria have each denied her bid for a win. Intense and hard-hitting may describe her play, and there is absolutely no question she will have done everything possible to be her best when the lights come on. Known for a dominating forehand, Salas has worked on a less effective backhand over the past two seasons, but it remains unclear whether its improvement will carry her past long-time nemeses. With 9 finals in 10 tournaments in the 2018-19 season, Salas was the clear #2 on tour. But, with only 1 final berth in the last 12 tournaments, Salas will have to revive her old form to shock the world.

LPRT Pro Doubles – This preview is always difficult since it's nearly impossible to predict who will partner with whom; however, it's fair to assume that defending champs Herrera and Mejia will stay together to defend and take on the odds-on favorites of Longoria and Salas. That still leaves many potential pairings, which can create an incredible depth of field. However, as most folks know, doubles is wildly unpredictable and upsets are the norm. Look for plenty of fireworks in every round of the LPRT doubles.

The US OPEN is where magic happens, and with a tour deeper and more competitive than any time in recent memory, do not wait to the latter rounds for the upsets. With significant swings in rankings over the past 12 months, the seedings are unlikely to reflect current player form. So, strap yourselves in for a pulsating draw full of drama and action!
