EKTELON NATIONALS

– An Informational Q&A

The Ektelon Nationals was terrific! To have moved the event to a new location after many, many years was a calculated risk, but the California setting proved very satisfying for the attendees, even those who traveled from the other side of the country to participate. Of course, with any undertaking of this magnitude, the potential for continuous improvement will always exist. We took the opportunity to solicit questions and feedback from players, sponsors and fans. Below are some common observations that arose...

Q. THE EVENT SEEMED TO BE SEPARATED – THE PROS ON ONE LEVEL AND THE AMATEURS ON ANOTHER.

A. The physical set-up of the venue dictated the layout. After Houston, we looked throughout the country to select a venue that could handle the event. The advantages of the Meridian Club in Fullerton (all matches in one location, large gym for hospitality and gathering, good location and hotels) seemed to outweigh the few negatives. Without an exhibition court with adequate seating, we wanted to bring the all-Lucite court to the event in order to maximize viewing for featured matches. The parking structure “up top” was the best location for construction, viewing and use of space.

Q. THE EVENT SEEMED LIKE A PRO EVENT RATHER THAN AMATEUR NATIONALS.

A. Other than IRT player Kane, the players who participated in Houston were the same as those who participated in Fullerton. In order to create another “grand slam” style event with potential for greater visibility (especially for TV filming) and sponsorship, we were pleased to be able to incorporate the IRT pro aspect as value added for this already-popular event. We hope the women pros will be there with us in the future as well.

Q. WHY DID PLAYERS AND FANS HAVE TO PAY TO WATCH THE PROS?

A. Many of the qualifying matches were free to players and spectators. Once we reached the quarterfinals, all pro matches did require a ticket, but amateur participants received a discount. Grand Slam events typically involve an admission price, but tickets were priced economically to reflect the overall status of the event as the amateur Nationals. Future plans include providing additional complimentary access to some early pro matches on the exhibition court.

Q. WE MISSED BEING AT ONE HOTEL LIKE IN HOUSTON, AND WHY WASN'T THERE A BANQUET?

A. Other than Disneyland, which is too far away and much more expensive, there exists no one hotel near the club that can accommodate all participants. The same situation exists for a banquet center that could hold 600+ people like in Houston. The venue and hotel restrictions preclude any large gatherings like in Houston, but future plans do include more social gatherings at the club.

Our gratitude goes to everyone who responded with constructive input, straightforward thoughts and creative ideas. As we move to next year's event, be assured we have taken your input seriously.

Plan to join us in Fullerton next May for an even bigger and better event in the California sunshine!

THE BLESSINGS WITHIN

By Cheryl Kirk • Photos courtesy of Tom Travers

What a beautiful thing – you become President of USA Racquetball and they give you a page in a magazine, and you get to write whatever you want (for the most part). Reflecting back on these opportunities as I enter my sixth and final year on the USAR Board (four as president), I've concentrated on keeping my articles upbeat, positive, and hopefully informational as well.

Racquetball is full of people who make a difference out there in the world and, as a pleasant by-product, bring honor and visibility back to our sport. For example, every time I attend a Racquet for the Cure event, I'm struck by the dedication of the players, sponsors and event staff who are using racquetball as a vehicle in support of a higher purpose. It's great to see so many events across the country – RFTCs and many others – that incorporate aspects of fundraising for various worthy causes and provide assistance to those who need it most.

The efforts of some even extend past our American shores. USAR-IP Master Instructor Tom Travers wrote recently, "Sometimes travel takes your life in different directions. I travel to Guatemala every other month or so to help coach their National Racquetball Adult and Junior Teams. Awhile back, I met an American pastor who has been working in a village for the past 35 years, and through this connection, I began sponsoring a child so she can go to school. Several months ago he took me to the village area to meet the little girl. I was overwhelmed at the conditions where these people live. After visiting their homes (shacks with dirt floors), it really made me realize how much we have here in contrast to the severity of poverty in Guatemala and all over the world. They really grip your heart, especially when you see them in person and witness firsthand what they have to endure year round. These experiences really make me realize how much we have here in the USA, and I appreciate it more and more with every passing day. I decided to commit a good portion of my salary back to Guatemala to help build a house in the village." Travers went on to say that any contribution is welcome, and anyone interested can write to him at coachtravs@aol.com.

Speaking of racquetball ambassadors, a shout-out to our US Junior Team that recently returned from the Junior World Championships in the Dominican Republic: You intended to bring home the gold rather than the bronze, but please know we are incredibly proud of you and the way you represented yourselves, your sport and your country. You are the best!

The IRT Satellite Tour:

More Stops to Play the Pros, Grow Participation

by Jennifer Sinclair Johnson • photos courtesy of Kim Roy

Major League baseball teams can pick from the minors, but amateur hitters are more than a field of dreams away from playing the top stars. Not so in racquetball. In addition to a full schedule of Grand Slam and Tier 1 tournaments, which are professional tournaments where competitors have to win their way into the pro draw, the IRT offers an expanding schedule of Satellite Tour Stops that provide an entry point to a higher level of competition, community, and energy for players, fans, and host clubs.

For those ready to test their skills against some of the best in the business, battling for purses reaching up to $15,000 in total prize money, these tournaments feature up to four top-8 players depending upon the tier level, 2-5. The chance to earn a higher position in a Tier 1 or Grand Slam qualifying pro draw also sends competitors to the courts. Kim Roy, Event Director and Consultant, has been involved with Satellite and Tier 1 tournaments across the USA. "In Florida, the Satellite events earn players valuable ranking points for the upcoming Tier 1's," she says.

Yet it's not just the challengers who can win. Clubs featuring IRT events enjoy more people on the courts and in the stands. Health and Fitness Director Stacy Crase has seen racquetball participation triple in the five years she's run programs at the Garden City Family YMCA in Kansas. "Every tournament gets bigger. Now, I get players from different states, more people are involved, and kids along with adults are picking up the sport."

Increased participation tightens the community within a club, helping it retain and add members. Crase appreciates this community of recreational and pro players. "When I first started, I didn't know where to begin. Now the players meet to help out every time, have my back, and help keep it all going."

She can also count on top ranked pros, like Shane Vanderson and Ben Croft, and retired professionals Mitch

Williams and Jason Thoerner who "just come," according to Crase. "It meant a lot to hear Croft announce that 'we're a racquetball family.' It's true - people just care."

The IRT is also ready to assist. Adam Karp, VP of Event Development, consults with state associations and governing bodies in order to schedule IRT events in conjunction with national and state calendars. Once the event is planned, Karp works with Event Directors to provide promotional material, discounted products like tee shirts and court stickers, and even free merchandise to help make events a success.

Long after the pop of rubber balls goes silent, the event champion collects his check and the stands clear, the energy continues to reverberate throughout the club. Regardless of who wins or loses, the pros' and local players' diving gets, ace serves, and did-you-see-that-shots are rehashed and relished in conversations outside the courts and around the club for months and years to come.

With more than fifty satellite events planned in twenty U.S. states, Canada, and Costa Rica this season, local fans and regional competitors can look forward to hitting the stands and the courts to battle with racquetball's tops pros and rising stars.

For more information on entering or hosting a Satellite Tour Stop, check out the IRT 2011-2012 schedule or contact Adam@IRT-Tour.com.

WPRO WIND-UP

2010-11: WHAT A YEAR!

There are many words that could be used to describe the end of the 2010-11 WPRO season - tumultuous, explosive, outrageous, thrilling, and controversial are just a few. The tour visited Herndon, VA, for the SCS Title and Escrow Pro Am; Stockton, CA for the In Shape WPRO Championships Presented by Ektelon; and New Orleans for the Louisiana WPRO Ektelon World Championships. Each stop ended with an epic battle between Rhonda Rajsich and Paola Longoria.

In Herndon at the SCS Title and Escrow Pro Am, previous action set the pairings for the quarterfinals: Susy Acosta vs. Paola Longoria; Rhonda Rajsich vs. Cristina Amaya; Christie Huczek vs. Adrienne Fisher; and Samantha Salas vs. Kerri Wachtel. All of the matches went quickly with Paola and Samantha moving into the semis along with Christie and Rhonda. The semis saw Paola defeat Samantha and Rhonda defeat Christie, both in four games.

In typical fashion, the final was a battle with Paola quickly winning the first game, 11-3. Rhonda turned it around and won the second game in convincing fashion, 11-5. The pivotal third game was a battle with Paola finally winning it, 13-11. In the fourth, it was all Paola who played consistently and precisely throughout. Rhonda had started the season with wins in the Grand Slam in Cali, the US Open, and a Tier 1 in Arlington, Virginia. Paola had now won three tier 1's in a row with her two previous victories at Canoga Park and Miami.

After a couple of satellite stops, the tour arrived in Stockton, California for another Tier 1. After Paola Longoria and sponsor Steve Cohen won the Thursday evening doubles, sponsors and players enjoyed a pasta dinner at the Ellis' house with Pat's famous hospitality. The party continued Saturday night with a "taquiza" hosted by Jose and Carolina Diaz. No fewer than 1,500 tacos were served to hungry tournament players!

The quarterfinals saw Paola defeating Angela Grisar in three games, Rhonda defeating Cristina Amaya in four games and Samantha taking out Susy Acosta in four. Adrienne Fisher also defeated Aimee Ruiz in four games. The semis that evening were routine victories for Paola and Rhonda, who moved into their fifth straight Tier 1 final.

It was certainly the match that everyone had come to see. Paola started strong, winning the first game, 11-3. She jumped to a big lead in the second, yet mid-way through the game, Rhonda seemed to gain the momentum. Paola held off the charge, taking the second, 11-8. The third and fourth games were mirror images of the first two with Rhonda moving the match to a tiebreaker with wins of 11-3 and 11-5. The fifth game looked as if it was going to be all Rhonda as she achieved a 9-3 lead. Point 10 continued to elude her as Paola hung on with sideout after sideout. Chipping away at the lead, all of a sudden Paola held match point at 10-9, and then it happened.

At the beginning of each WPRO match throughout the tournament, the players were notified of designated court hinders. These consisted of a microphone placed by the IRT Network and the ceiling sprinklers. The sprinklers had cages around them. As Acting Commissioner, I had declared that all of the sprinklers were designated as court hinders. At 10-9, Paola hit a Z serve to Rhonda's forehand. Rhonda attempted a ceiling ball return, which contacted something on the ceiling and pretty much dropped straight down. It did not make the front wall. Referee Fisher evidently thought the shot had hit the light frame, a surface that was not designated a court hinder. She called point and match. Rhonda appealed that the shot had hit the sprinkler. Both line judges disagreed with Fisher and a replay hinder resulted.

The result seemed to unnerve Paola. She was so sure she had won the match. Play continued with Paola having additional match points at the point of replay and again at 11-10. Rhonda earned a sideout and went on to score three points to win the tiebreaker, 13-11. The match was such a classic that it was a shame someone had to lose it. Paola was extremely disappointed, to say the least, and she caused a scene with her subsequent actions. These actions resulted in multiple fines and a suspension of the first tournament in the 2011-12 season.

DATE	TOURNAMENT	Level
Oct. 5-9	U.S. Open Racquetball Championships	T1+
Nov. 17-20	Puget Sound Challenge • Olympia, WA	T1
Dec. 8-11	Christmas Classic • Arlington, VA	T1

Two weeks later, the tour moved to New Orleans for a $20K end of the season grand slam. Throughout the tournament, Paola played as well as any woman ever has, never dropping a game. She had the consistency of Michelle Gould, the speed of Robin Levine, and the competitive drive of Lynn Adams. In three games against Laura Brandt she gave up seven points total; against Angela Grisar she gave up four; against Samantha Salas she gave up eleven; and in the final she gave up fourteen to Rhonda, with nine of those coming in the third game. It was as if her anger from losing the match in Stockton drove her to play with a vengeance.

With her victory in Stockton, Rhonda had only to defeat Kerri Wachtel in the semis to earn the #1 ranking for the season. The last time the two had played was in November in Olympia, WA. There, it was as if Kerri had voodoo powers, reading Rhonda like a book, and hitting shot after shot just out of Rhonda's reach. In New Orleans, Rhonda came out strong and won the first game 11-4. Kerri turned it around and won the second, 11-7. In the third game, Kerri jumped to a 5-0 lead. With her fans becoming nervous, Rhonda stayed composed and went to the drive serve. The drive serve was the weapon she needed, and her multiple aces and near aces carried her to a four-game victory. With that win, Rhonda had clinched the #1 ranking for the year.

This epic season also included notable changes in the end-of-the-year Top Ten standings. Samantha Salas moved from #10 to a solid #3 ranking. Kerri Wachtel and Cheryl Gudinas clinched #4 and #5, respectively, and veterans Susy Acosta and Jen Saunders moved into the 6th and 7th positions. Colombia's Cristina Amaya finished at #9 and Krystal Csuk finished at #10. Angela Grisar, Christie Huczek and Nancy Enriquez missed tournaments but still managed to finish #11, #12 and #13. For sure, these three ladies will do damage next year. The prediction here, however, is that again in 2011-12, the tour will see the rivalry between Rhonda and Paola play out to the fullest. Barring injury, one of these two will end up #1 and the other will finish #2. It will be a great show. Don't miss it!

AN INTERVIEW WITH GIGI ROCK, NEW WPRO COMMISSIONER

Shannon Feaster served for five years as WPRO Commissioner, but her job with the federal government and her role as a new mother fostered her decision to step away from the WPRO. Under her leadership, the WPRO provided a stable tour for the ladies. This year, ten Tier 1 and above tournaments took place along with four satellites, with an even more impressive schedule slated for the coming season. Commissioner Feaster left the tour in great shape, and the WPRO players extend heartfelt gratitude to her along with their best wishes in the future.

The search was on for a new leader who could continue to expand women's professional racquetball. Enter Gigi Rock! In its recent press release, the WPRO stated: "Known for her boldness, outspoken honesty, and no nonsense approach, Rock is President and Owner of Gigi Rock Productions, and will begin the day-to-day operations as Commissioner for the WPRO, effective July 12."

In her own words, Rock describes her entry into the racquetball world:

When did you first hear about the Commissioner opening on the WPRO tour?

Rhonda Rajsich brought it to my attention. She said she was going to throw my name into the hat for Commissioner of the WPRO. I thought she was joking and didn't think twice about it!

What enticed you to consider becoming the new WPRO Commissioner?

I was intrigued when I found out everyone was serious about my nomination, so I started researching the WPRO. I was amazed at the talent of the athletes and equally amazed that this sport is not in the public eye. This is in keeping with my background: marketing, selling, and getting elite athletes in front of the public. It was an ideal combination.

What are a few of your short-term goals?

Media, media, media! Without the media's attention, we will still be classified as a "small sport." We need to move these elite athletes into the public eye, get corporations to see their value and support them.

What is your long-term vision?

To make the WPRO as big as any other women's sport organization.

Where does Women's Pro Racquetball fit into the world of professional female athletes?

These ladies rank right up on the charts with Serena Williams, Natalie Gulbis, Lorena Ochoa, Misty May, and other great female athletes. Our women pros hit racquetballs that are flying around in a box at 120 mph. That's crazy – it's athletics at its finest. I would put Rhonda Rajsich up against Serena Williams any day – now that would be great television!

Who are the Women of the WPRO?

These women come from all walks of life – athletes, students, moms, wives, business owners, international players.

What are you looking forward to most about your first season on tour?

Just letting the world outside of racquetball know about these women – their stories, talents, ambitions. Having them treated fairly in the sport, building the fan base, you name it...we have room to make it grow. So bring it on...we are ready!

NMRA UPDATE

Article and photos by
Bruce Adams, NMRA Secretary

The National Masters Racquetball Association (NMRA) completed its International Championship at The Meridian Sports Club in Fullerton, CA, from July 27-30, 2011. The Meridian was "tested" by the NMRA in December for our Doubles Only event. It also hosted the USAR Ektelon Nationals in May. All three events were spectacular. The beautiful Embassy Suites in Brea served as the host hotel and held our event banquet. Participation at this event was 127 players competing in age group singles and doubles divisions.

The banquet was a little different for this event because we had TWO inductees into the prestigious NMRA International Hall of Fame. The Hall of Fame was started in 1996 and had 37 members before this ceremony. The latest inductees are Colonel Ben Marshall of San Antonio, Texas, in the category of Outstanding Service and Leadership, and John O'Donnell, Jr. of Champaign, Illinois as an Athletic inductee. Both inductees were fighter pilots in the service. Ninety-four-year-old Ben Marshall has been playing for a few years and has served in five wars. John O'Donnell served in two wars and started playing on military bases 40 years ago. (There will be more information posted on the NMRA website and in our newsletter.) Both inductees have been very positive and strong supporters of the NMRA and racquetball in general. John and Ben were humble in being selected to the Hall of Fame. John mentioned many other Hall of Famers that he had played with and against during his NMRA career. His award was presented by Cheryl Kirk, USAR President and fellow member of the Illinois State Racquetball Association. Ben's award was presented by NMRA President and close friend Tom Curran. Ben's daughter Alison was in attendance, as was his son Jack, who served with his dad during the Vietnam War. Congratulations to both Ben and John for your athleticism and service to the NMRA and the racquetball community.

The annual Board of Directors elections are coming this fall/winter for three positions: Tom Curran, Steve Cohen and Carmen Alatorre-Martin are rotating off the Board. Tom will not be eligible for re-election due to term limits. As of this writing, Carmen is undecided whether she will run again. Those interested in running for the Board should contact Cindy Tilbury and David Warner. We plan on using electronic voting via the R2Sports site.

The upcoming schedule is just about set for the next couple of years. The Doubles Only event will be in early December (2011) in Arlington, Texas at The Maverick Club. The March 2012 event will be in Orem and Provo, UT. The July 2012 event will be at North Carolina State University in Raleigh, NC. The 2012 Doubles Only event is scheduled for Pleasanton, CA. In 2013, we have some possibilities that are in the very initial stages of conversation. Please check back for more developments on these upcoming events and their locations.

▲ John O'Donnell and Ben Marshall

Come try out one of our events – you will be hooked like many others have after their first event! The NMRA is dedicated to the racquetball player 45 years. All matches (singles, doubles, and mixed doubles) are self-officiated and round-robin format – No More One Round and Out. Your first event does not require membership to the association, but we hope you will join. We look forward to having you join us at an upcoming event. The camaraderie and friendships you will establish will last a lifetime!

Remember to check out the association newsletter THE RACQUETRACKET - it is now up to 20 pages of entertaining and useful information and can be found online at the website under the NMRA News tab on the left.

For more information, please visit our website at www.NMRA.info and for tournament registration or watching the scoring after the matches, visit www.R2Sports.com; we also encourage our members and readers to visit the USA Racquetball website at www.usaracquetball.com.

Wounded Warrior TRANSITION UNIT

MRF made another impact in June as soldiers of the Wounded Warrior Transition Unit (WTU) had the opportunity to learn from The Legend, Ruben Gonzalez, and other great racquetball players who helped host another RRC (Rehabilitation Racquetball Clinic) at Fort Dix/McGuire AFB*.

The clinic was a huge success primarily because of our special guest speakers: Ray Davis, radio host of Racquetball Roundtable on WNJC 1360 AM (a live show every Tuesday evening on topics dealing with the sport of racquetball); Jonathan Clay, President of Rollout Marketing Solutions Clothing/Apparel line; and Tony Gattone and Aki Moore, who will be the RRC instructors for the WTU at Fort Dix as the program ends with another eight-week clinic schedule.

Joint Base MDL (McGuire/Dix/Lakehurst) is located 18 miles southeast of Trenton, NJ. Their primary missions include a center of excellence for training, mobilizing and deploying Army Reserve and National Guard units. The center also provides regional base operations support to on-post and off-post active and reserve component units of all services.

It is a high-quality community environment that includes 848 housing units for service members and their families. This base is also home to the 84th Air Base Wing and the 305th Air Mobility Wing, which has supported every major type of air mobility mission over the past 15 years. More than 13,500 persons live or work within the garrison and its tenant organizations.

WORLD FIREFIGHTERS RACQUETBALL

NATIONAL FIREFIGHTER GAMES

By Peter S. Berger

The World Firefighter Racquetball Association has been blazing through tournaments around the country this year. Florida led the way with their State Fire Games. Firefighters came from 15 different departments across the state of Florida and medals were earned in ten different categories. Representatives from the WFRA were in motion as well. Peter S. Berger, Jeff Weinstein, Adam Chevalier, and Adam Perry all earned medals in their respective divisions.

However, the best story of the tournament was the return of a firefighter after a seven-year hiatus. Bill Egan from Pompano Beach Fire Rescue came back from injuries to earn his first medal after fifteen years of competing. It was a great feeling for him, and a thrilling and inspiring story for the tournament.

In July, the California Fire Summer Olympics featured over 35 firefighters from 20 departments. Competition was tough but members of the WFRA did extremely well. Son Nguyen took home a singles gold medal and a gold in doubles, teaming up with Ryan Drumm. Son's doubles competition came from WFRA West Coast representative Danny Hernandez and his partner Steve Johnson who captured silver doubles medals. Greg Dorman, a newcomer to the WFRA, took home the bronze with his partner Richard Perron.

The Colorado Police and Fire Games continued to heat up the summer in Denver. Debbie Beldring and the Denver Athletic Club hosted a great competition July 31-August 2. Over 25 participants came out to compete and to enjoy the view at the foot of the beautiful Rocky Mountains.

This fall, all roads lead to New York for the 2011 World Police and Fire Games. As Racquetball magazine goes to publication, over 20,000 police officers and firefighters will have converged on the Big Apple for a two-week Olympic-style event. Directors Peter S. Berger of the WFRA and Bill Bearden of the NPRA are eager to fire up the 60 participants who have signed up to play at Lehman College in the Bronx on August 28-30. Besides a strong USA contingent, competitors are also traveling from Ireland, Spain, Mexico, Canada, England and Australia. Commemorating the tenth anniversary of the tragedy that occurred in New York City, the opening and closing ceremonies will be held at Ground Zero.

In other news, the Ektelon Nationals tournament in Fullerton offered a firefighter division this year, and we're hopeful that enough firefighter support will be realized to make this a permanent division at National Singles. In addition, in recent months the WFRA has been designated an American Heart Association training site. Anyone who is in need of certification via any type of CPR course (CPR, Basic Life Support CPR or HeartSaver CPR) can now be trained by WFRA certified instructors. We are proud to be able to offer this service to the racquetball community.

As summer passes, the WFRA is moving with great energy into autumn. State and national tournaments are on the schedule and more firefighters are coming on board all the time. It's a thrill to have so many members, and we look forward to adding more people as we promote and enjoy the great sport of racquetball!

CLOUSE

CLOSES OUT THE CPRT SEASON WITH ANOTHER TOUR TITLE

By Steve Lerner • Photo provided by CPRT

1-9, 9-2 victory. Clouse's domination of Aldinger in the finals secured him the title and the season-ending CPRT Tour Championship. He "three-peated" the Championship by winning the last three events of the season.

The exciting, upset-filled CPRT Nationals weekend ended with Jason Conway and Greg Solis defeating Singles Champion Woody Clouse and Craig Lane in the finals of the CPRT Doubles, 9-7, 9-8, 9-2.

The Classic Professional Racquetball Tour finished a great 2010-11 season at the CPRT Nationals, April 8-10, at the Las Vegas Athletic Club.

A draw of 16 players faced off for the largest purse of the season and bonus ranking points in the season finale. Leading the lineup were the two top ranked CPRT players, Woody Clouse of Highlands Ranch, Colorado and Cliff Swain of Boston. Seeded third was Hawaii's Jimmy Lowe and rounding out the top four was Californian Craig Lane. A full slate of amateur singles and doubles divisions with over 150 entries filled out a fantastic weekend that benefited the National Fibromyalgia Research Association.

The story of Friday at the 2011 CPRT Nationals was the upsets in the quarterfinals. Woody Clouse opened with a fairly quick win over Gerry Price, 9-2, 9-5, 9-6, ending Price's inaugural return to CPRT play after a yearlong injury leave. The next match was the shocker as Travis Aldinger, playing in his first CPRT event after recently turning 40, upset #2 seed Cliff Swain, 9-6, 8-9, 1-9, 9-8, 9-7. Swain came from 0-8 to win the second game and dominated the third game before Aldinger regrouped and hung on to win the last two close games. The upsets continued as Louis Vogel was blown out of the first two games by third seed Craig Lane before mounting a comeback with two tight wins, ultimately wearing down Lane in five, 1-9, 0-9, 9-8, 9-8, 9-2. The evening ended on a disappointing note as Dale Valentine was forced to forfeit to Jimmy Lowe due to illness midway through the match.

Travis Aldinger continued his run with a solid three-game win over #3 seed Jimmy Lowe, 9-7, 9-8, 9-4, earning the right to face Woody Clouse in the finals. Clouse avoided another Louis Vogel comeback with a 9-2, 9-2,

LET'S GET IT STARTED!

Mike Welch and Bill Bearden

The 2011-2012 season is upon us, and we can't wait to get started again!

Our first year on the racquetball scene was well spent making appearances in Nevada, Ohio and Minnesota. Over $6,500 has been raised at tournaments and benefits, and the opportunity to make a positive financial contribution to the lives of injured officers and their families is the foundation for everything we do. We have been contacted by officers interested in joining NPRA from as far as Rhode Island and our neighbors to the north in Canada.

The 2011 Texas Police Games were held in DeSoto, TX and officers came from all parts of the state to participate in this annual event. Great competition, a party and free gifts from Ektelon made it lots of fun for everyone. Next year, officers will invade our state's capitol as Austin hosts the 2012 Games. We're extremely excited to be a part of these outstanding events.

The candles continue to burn as we're always working and planning for the future. As Racquetball Coordinators with Peter Berger's World Firefighter Racquetball Association (WFRA), we look forward with great anticipation to the upcoming 2011 World Police & Fire Games in New York City. Police & firefighters from across the globe will fly in to participate in individual and team sports in what will surely be a week to remember.

These are just a few of the past and upcoming events on our calendar. As we continue to grow, however, we have not strayed from our #1 responsibility. NPRA was created to promote the game of racquetball and to use the sport to help raise funds for fellow police officers who have been injured while protecting the citizens they serve. As we make new friends everywhere we go, we believe it's valuable to have a network that stretches from coast to coast.

For more information, or if you would like to become involved with NPRA, check us out on Facebook and www.policeracquetball.com. We look forward to hearing from you and as always, we'll see you on the courts!

The 2011 WOR

RACQUETBALL WAREHOUSE OUTDOOR WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS presented by Ektelon

The 2011 WOR Racquetball Warehouse Outdoor World Championships celebrated fun and sun this year at one of the coolest events of the year in Huntington Beach, California. This is the longest-running outdoor tournament championship and attracts players from around the country. Led for the second year in a row by WOR's National Co-Director Vic Leibofsky, it has become a regular event for many professional racquetball players as well as some of world's top tier divisional players. Players and spectators alike were treated to high-level games with great food and hospitality.

With the ramping up of the level of play brought by professional players, outdoor players have seen a need to step things up in order to make it deeper into the charts. Rocky Carson, IRT's #2 player, again showed why he is the best outdoor player as he defended his Men's Pro Singles title against Scott Davis. Scott, who has progressively improved his results at the championships, took out Alvaro Beltran earlier in a semifinal.

The Men's Pro Doubles division was hotly contested as Jason Mannino and Cliff Swain had begun to dial in the big courts at Marina Park, battling through their draw and making it to the final where they lost in the tiebreaker to Alvaro Beltran and four-time National Doubles Champion Mike Peters.

The Women's Pro Division saw Rhonda Rajsich take home both Singles and Doubles titles, meeting a very game Janel Tisinger (who won the Mixed Pro Doubles title with Greg Solis) in the Women's Pro Singles Final. Rhonda paired with Martha McDonald of Gainesville, Florida in an exciting Women's Doubles Final as they defeated defending champs Aimee Ruiz and Jacqueline Paraiso to take back their title.

As is the norm, though, the Pro Divisions didn't hold dubs on action. Each division was filled with intense competition.

WOR has worked hard to aggregate the country's outdoor communities and draw indoor players out into the sun. At the biggest party of the year, fans hang out at the courts all day under tents and umbrellas, watching the exciting competition and mingling with some of the world's best racquetball champions.

The Making of a CHAMPION

by Fran Davis (The Coach) • Diana McNab (Sports Psychologist) • Dan Obremski (Fitness Expert)

Let's continue "Making You a Champion" using the core principles of "Building Your Racquetball Dream House" as you build your championship racquetball game one assessment at a time. This will allow you to continue to complete the "Racquetball Success Triangle" explained in the Winter 2010 issue of Racquetball magazine.

We wish to convey that the lull between seasons is the perfect time to take off from a long season and heal both physically and mentally; otherwise, you are susceptible to physical injuries as well as mental burnout – not a good combination! Most people overlook what we call the recovery cycle, but we advocate it.

POST-SEASON RECOVERY. Take three weeks off and then start back up with your aerobic conditioning and overall fitness. Slowly add strength training (weights) and cross training (other sports such as yoga, hiking, and biking). Never go longer than three weeks without exercise or you will lose a lot of your muscle tone and aerobic fitness.

Once you go through the recovery cycle, you'll be ready for the pre-season schedule that will start getting you ready for the fall schedule when tournaments and leagues start up again.

PRE-SEASON TRAINING. You want to focus on getting back into a routine. In the chart below, see how to set up a pre-season training program using the components of flexibility (FLEX), speed play (SP), aerobic conditioning (AC), strength training (ST), drilling (DR) and mental (MENT). Give yourself adequate time to prepare.

	MENT

As you come within 4-6 weeks of the beginning of your season, replace one day a week of DR with one day a week of playing. As you are within 2-4 weeks of your season, replace one more day a week of DR with another day of playing. As you are within 0-2 weeks of your season, replace one day a week of DR with yet another day of playing.

1-RACQUETBALL SKILLS

6-8 weeks out – begin practicing and drilling on the court by yourself (no playing yet), three to five times per week.

4-6 weeks out – continue practicing and drilling by yourself, but add some movement and service drills, plus play with someone once per week (choose a partner one level below you so you can work on your game and not feel pressured).

2-4 weeks out – continue practicing by yourself one or two times per week, and play two times per week with someone a level below you as well as someone a level equal to you so you can put your skills to the test.

0-2 weeks out – continue practicing by yourself once per week, and play three times per week with someone one level below you, one level equal to you, and one level above you to push you to get you ready for peak play and the season.

2-MENTAL SKILLS

6-8 weeks out – at the onset of 6-8 weeks from your season, your will be doing three times a week of "MENT," especially visualization.

4-6 weeks out – add in a 4th day of MENT

2-4 weeks out – add in a 5th day of MENT

0-2 weeks out – add in a 6th day of MENT

You can never be doing too much MENT!

3-FITNESS SKILLS

6-8 weeks out – start with an aerobic conditioning program of running, biking, stair stepping, and so on for 25 to 35 minutes and build up to 35 to 45 minutes, three or four times per week. Begin strength training with light weights for endurance and cleansing, two or three times per week

4-6 weeks out – continue the aerobic conditioning program three times per week, and add speed play for 15 minutes once a week. Continue strength training, and increase to heavier weights two or three times per week for power and speed.

2-4 weeks out – continue aerobic conditioning two times per week for up to 35 minutes and speed play one or two times per week for 15 minutes. Continue strength training two or three times per week with lighter weights and more repetitions to begin your maintenance program.

0-2 weeks out – continue aerobic conditioning one or two times per week for 20 minutes and speed play two times per week for 15 minutes. Continue strength one or two times per week, tapering to lighter weights and fewer repetitions to enter your peak play mode.

4-NUTRITION SKILLS

Often during the recovery cycle, people have a tendency to "treat" themselves and stray from eating well and drinking lots of water. As you enter back into your pre-season training, make sure you get back into the routine of eating right and hydrating as your body and mind need this in order to perform at their best.

ONGOING RALLIES

"... if the ongoing rally has to be replayed for any reason, it is first serve once again."

I was recently honored to be the first guest on a new weekly Internet racquetball show hosted by Leo Vasquez and Eddie Van. (The schedule of upcoming shows can be found at <http://www.racquetballjunkie.com>.) A listener called in and asked about making the proper call when the ball contacts one of the many junctures of floor, ceiling, or walls. I cited a general policy that can be applied when the ball hits very near or directly in those junctures – more commonly referred to as a “crotch.”

Let's first talk about that ten-foot-long joint where the front wall meets the floor. There are three possibilities: (1) the ball hit the front wall first; (2) the ball hit the floor first; or (3) the ball hit both the front wall and the floor at exactly the same time. Of course, making the ball hit the front wall first is a basic objective of the game (a good shot), and a ball that hits the floor first is to be avoided since doing so results in the immediate loss of that serve/rally (a skip ball) for the person who hit that ball.

But what about the ball that hits both the wall and the floor at the same time (or else so close to the same time that the difference can't be ascertained)? It has to be ruled as one or the other – either good or bad. Which is it?

If you hit two surfaces at the same time then you really didn't hit either one first! Therefore, since its inception as a sport, racquetball has declared that if the ball does NOT hit the front wall FIRST, then it is the same as having hit the floor first, i.e., NOT GOOD. This basic concept appears in the Rulebook as Rule 3.10(g), which addresses the effect when this happens on a serve.

This concept regarding the juncture of the floor and a vertical wall also applies in other cases. Take, for example, a serve that might be long or a 3-wall serve, except that it hits in the wall/floor crotch.

Applying the same concept, that serve is considered “GOOD” if it happens to hit both the horizontal and vertical surfaces at the same time. Only if it clearly hits the vertical wall first is it considered long!

The only remaining crotches that involve a “call” are the three that are formed by the two side walls and the ceiling with the front wall. In effect, these shots are judged the same as the front wall/floor crotch. If the ball hits the front wall and any of those other four surfaces at the same time (or so close the difference can't be determined), then it is ruled the same as if it had NOT touched the front wall first, i.e., NOT GOOD.

I began by saying that I cited a general policy covering all of this, and here it is: “For any ball striking a crotch formed with the floor, unless the ball hits the vertical wall first, then the ruling is that ball hit the floor first with the proper outcome – a skip ball when it's formed with the front wall and a good serve when formed with either the side or back wall. Similarly, all crotch hits involving the front wall are ruled as having NOT hit the front wall first if the ball hits both surfaces at the same time.”

DARYL WATERWALL ASKED VIA EMAIL:

“My question is about doubles play. In a rally, one person hits the ball and the other team makes a play on a ball, but misses, then the ball hits the partner of the person who originally hit ball. Whose point is it?”

ANSWER: If a ball that either you or your partner has struck then hits one of you before the other team touches it, your team loses that rally whether you were serving or receiving. Therefore, it could be a point or a hand out or a side out depending totally on who was serving.

BRUCE SALAZAR ASKED VIA EMAIL:

If someone first fault serves, but then serves again and a volley is played until a replay hinder occurs, does the previous fault serve “carry over” when the offensive player serves again making, it “second serve?”

ANSWER: Once a good serve has been made, then all previous faults by that server are erased. So, if the ongoing rally has to be replayed for any reason, it is “first serve” once again.

Always “Play by the Rules!” If you don't have a copy, you can find, review, and download them for printing online at: <http://www.usaracquetball.com/Portals/18/pdf/RacquetballRules2011.pdf>.

WESTWARD HO!

Ektelon National Singles Successful in Move to California

By Jeff Oliver • Photos by Geoff Thomsen

For 28 years, the USA Racquetball National Singles Championships called the Lone Star State home. This year the event moved west to the Golden State, where five hundred of the country's best players descended on Southern California looking for the chance to become a National Champion. In addition to the competition in the more than 70 amateur divisions, for the first time in more than 40 years the National Singles Championships also featured a Men's Professional division.

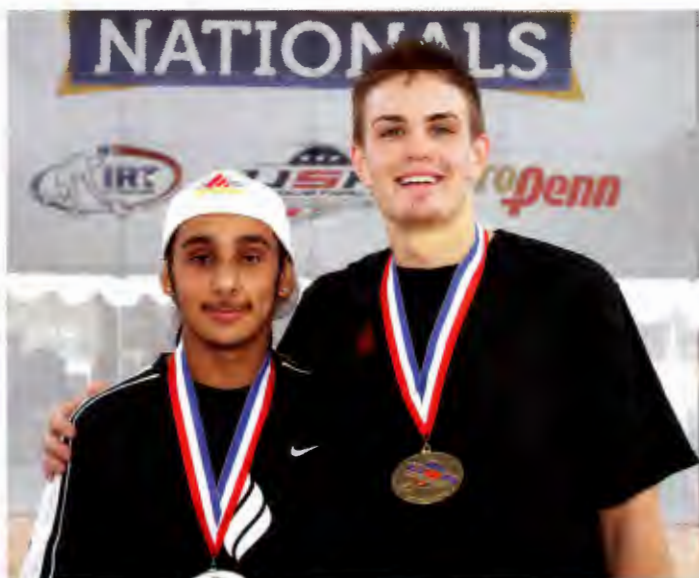

Hosted by Meridian Sports Club in Fullerton, it was a spectacular event. The Meridian offered a wonderful facility that houses 24 racquetball courts all under one roof! On top of the club's parking garage, USA Racquetball set up the all-Lucite portable court with a concert dome roof in an outdoor stadium environment that took full advantage of the splendid California weather.

This awesome court was within a lob serve of one the country's busiest corridors, California State Route 57, also known as the Orange Freeway. During the five days of the Ektelon Nationals, more than 1.2 million cars passed by the stadium court while the worlds' best racquetball players were putting their skills on display. Across the freeway sits the campus of California State University, Fullerton, where more than 27,000 students hit the books. In addition, Fullerton sits in the middle of a metropolitan area of more than 17.8 million people. Great potential exposure for the sport of racquetball for many years to come.

Next to the stadium court sat the Players Village where all the sport's top manufacturers displayed their newest product lines for the upcoming season. The outdoor setting allowed players, families and fans to socialize under California's sunny blue skies. Often the Players Village was where everyone gathered to pre-funk before heading out to one of the nightly parties!

On Thursday evening, the women got the off-the-court fun started with "Ladies Night Out" at Don Jose's. On Friday, everyone was invited to the pool at the Marriott, the tournament headquarters hotel, for the PENN Pig Roast. After "porking out," the party migrated to downtown Fullerton for the PENN Pub Crawl. On Saturday before the professional semifinals, Ektelon hosted a Fiesta in the Players Village with free beer for all!

On the court, the top divisions offered thrilling play, both expected and unexpected. In the Men's Professional Division, Kane Waselenchuk extended his consecutive-match winning streak to 113 after defeating hometown hero Rocky Carson in the finals. Kane last lost a match in 2009! While the final predictably pitted the top two players in the world, other up-and-coming players made statements by going deep into the draw. Chris Crowther, also playing close to his home in Riverside, CA, reached the semifinals. Oregon's Taylor Knott reached the quarterfinals, as did Colorado's Tony Carson.

In the Men's Singles US Team Qualifying Division, youth shined its way through the draw as 23-year-old Alex Ackermann from Texas knocked off reigning High School Champion Jose Diaz from California in the final.

The Women's Singles US Team Qualifying Division featured two of America's most celebrated female players as Arizona's Rhonda Rajsich won her fourth US Singles title over eight-time winner Cheryl Gudinas of Illinois.

While everyone came to Fullerton to compete on the court, one of the best features of the event was all the off-the-court activities the beautiful surrounding region has to offer. Just seven miles from the stadium court sits Disneyland, which makes a future trip to the Ektelon Nationals ideal for any racquetball-playing family. If your second favorite sport is baseball, MLB's Los Angeles Angels play just down the road, making catching a game after your matches nice and easy. California's top beaches, including the surfing capitol of the world, Huntington Beach, are just a 20-minute drive away. And if you're looking to make an extended stay, Los Angeles, Hollywood and San Diego are just a little over an hour's drive away!

Start making plans now for the 2012 Ektelon Nationals -- you'll have a blast...we guarantee it! ■

RAM HALL OF FAME INDUCTS THREE AT ANNUAL HALL OF FAME AND AWARDS BANQUET

ARTICLE AND PHOTOS BY TWAYNE M. HOWARD

▲ Mike Anderson

▲ Sharon Huczek

▲ Jack White

An annual tradition was revisited at State Singles as friends and family came together to celebrate Michigan Racquetball's past, present and future at the RAM Hall of Fame and Annual Awards Banquet. This year we found we had much to celebrate.

Masters of Ceremonies Jim Easterling, Twayne Howard and Don Schopieray hosted an outstanding evening and dinner that were enjoyed by all. Don kicked off the formal awards with an update on Junior Team Michigan. Our Junior National Team had a top ten finish, establishing us as one of the country's top programs. Three of our long-standing juniors, Lucas Arias, Andrew Price, and Bryan Schopieray, aged out of the division and competed in their last Junior Nationals tournament this year.

Finally, the highlight of the evening was induction of the RAM Hall of Fame Class of 2011.

First up was Sharon Huczek, who is one of the most accomplished women in Michigan Racquetball history, period. Sharon is a tough competitor on the court with dozens of local, state, regional and national championship wins. Off the court, she has been a member of the RAM Board of Directors for over two decades, serving as Secretary for most of that time. This was a well deserved and long overdue honor for Sharon.

The second inductee was Jack White, who has also amassed a huge list of championships at every level. He served on the RAM Board of Directors for a decade, including many years as Vice President. In addition to being a racquetball instructor at the highest level for many years, Jack has been a significant contributor to our Juniors program.

Final inductee Mike Anderson's qualifications can be summed up in one word: excellence. Mike is a tremendous athlete who quickly rose to the top of the racquetball world and has yet to leave. Incredibly, he has won Open Championships in five different decades, and he competed on the Pro Tour playing many of the greats in our sport. Mike has been a huge supporter of racquetball, generously contributing his time and talent. But, as he stated in his speech, his greatest accomplishment is the many friends he's made over the years.

That says it all. Racquetball is about the friendships and relationships, and that's why we are so lucky to be involved with this great sport.

Congratulations to all of our deserving winners and nominees!

MISSOURI RACQUETBALL HALL OF FAME

ALOHA OPEN

The Aloha Open's tenth anniversary tournament, held on June 17-19, was one of the best yet. Among the total 129 participants, including a record 31 women, competition was strong in all divisions. Players came from as far as Louisiana, South Carolina, Georgia, Virginia, and Tennessee to compete at the beautiful Winston Salem Athletic Club in North Carolina.

Number one seed Jason Bledsoe captured the Men's Open top prize in two well-styled final straight game wins over #7 seed Dereck Dirks. Dereck was the upset of the tournament, taking out last year's winner Brent Walters in a thrilling tie-breaker. Youssef Bouzidi provided some exhilarating moments with his just plain crazy drop shots in the front corner. On the women's side, #4 seed Leigh Gintert defeated #3 seed Maria Swedeen in straight games for the Women's Open title.

For those who don't know the history of this event, The Aloha Open began in the late eighties, but after the club changed hands several times, the tournament died. Then in 2001, Lynn Stephens and Bobby Thore, a couple of hard-core racquetball players, decided to revive it and really step it up with the Hawaiian theme. It is now one of the most popular tournaments in North Carolina.

This year was no exception! Topping off three days of outstanding competition, the Party by the Pool on Saturday night was a huge success, highlighted by amazing food, a tiki bar, music by the Tsunami Wave Riders, and of course hula girls. Players received souvenir Hawaiian shirts and got to participate in a silent auction and raffle. A few brave souls even took a few hula lessons from band leader Ronnie Tsunami.

Thanks to everyone, especially Mike Bourgeois, Paul and Joy Job, Donna and Clay Matthews, Bobby Thore, photographers Jeff West and Sheldilyn Boelsche and our many great sponsors for an unforgettable week! For more photos of the event go to www.tmtevents.com

2011 NATIONAL JUNIOR OLYMPIC CHAMPIONSHIPS

June 22-26, 2011 • Sunset Athletic Club (Portland, OR) and Griffith Park Family YMCA (Beaverton, OR)

by Jim Hiser • photos by Kirk Jones

The 2011 Junior Nationals was one of the best junior events in recent years. This spectacular event's success was due in large part to the efforts of the tremendous local organizing committee led by Paul Maduell and Annette Knoth. Great clubs, great hospitality, fun poolside banquet!

THE EVENT

OUTSTANDING PERFORMANCES

Boys - Nick Montalbano - Upset favorite Jose Diaz to take the singles, and won the doubles with Josh Hungerford.

Girls - Kelani Bailey - No one scored double figures against her!

GREAT MATCHES

Boys - Adam Manilla beat doubles partner Nick Riffel in a very close tiebreaker in Boys 16's.

Girls - Kaitlyn Simmons snuck by Lexi York in Girls 14's. An awesome battle between two great friends.

GREAT POTENTIAL

Spencer Shoemaker (Boys 14) - Great athlete! Spencer has all the skills to be a pro if other sports don't sidetrack this great talent.

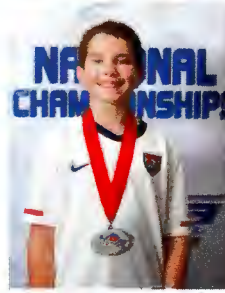

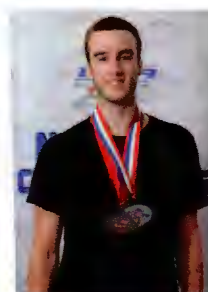

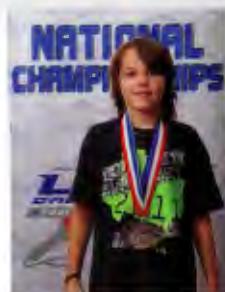

Sebastian Fernandez (Boys 10) - Outstanding skills for such a young player - keep an eye on this kid!

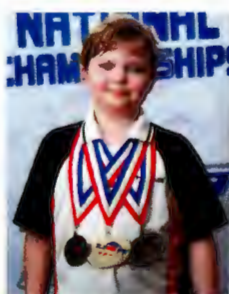

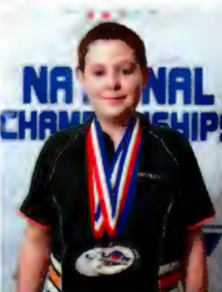

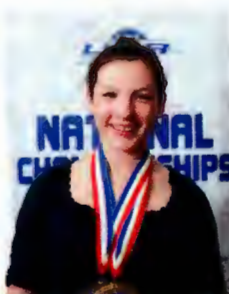

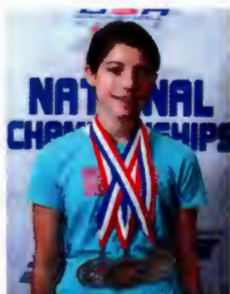

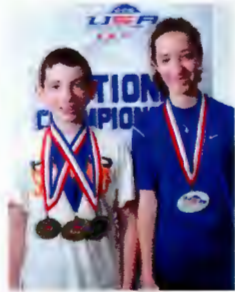

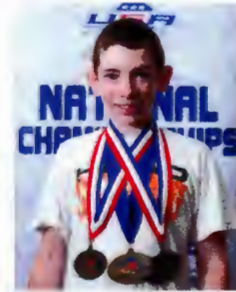

FUTURE AREAS OF OPPORTUNITY

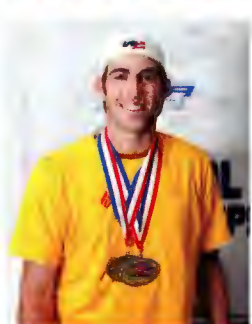

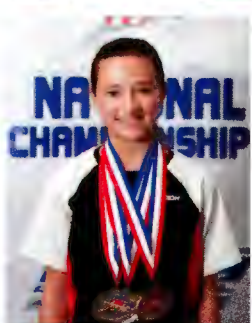

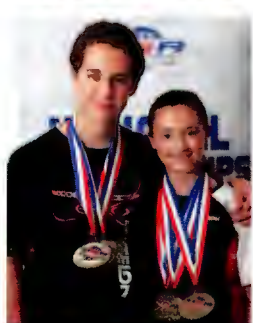

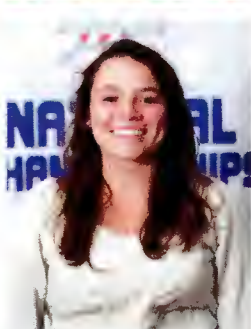

Girls - The number of young girls entering the sport maintains its downward trend. This will likely continue without the promotion of junior development by clubs and state organizations.

Skill level and coaching - The overall skill level of players continues to fall. This seems due to the reduced playing time available for juniors as well as a lack of skilled coaches.

Young players - Only three players signed up for the 8 & Under division, which indicates a drastic reduction of the number of young players entering the sport.

Building Champions, Changing Lives

Dear Friend,

Competition, fitness, fun, and friendship are the cornerstones of the racquetball experience. Racquetball already makes a difference in the lives of millions in the U.S., but we know with additional resources we could do so much more to create awareness of and increased participation in our sport.

USA Racquetball is recognized by the USOC as the National Governing Body for the sport of racquetball. However, although we are a Pan American sport, we do not receive outside funding from the USOC or other government entities.

A not-for-profit 501(c)(3) association, we depend upon three major sources of funding — membership, events, and fundraising. To support the ongoing success of our mission, we announce the creation of the USA Racquetball Champions Club. Three levels of participation are available — Lifetime Member*, Benefactor and Patron.

Help support the sport of racquetball in America. Please consider joining USA Racquetball's most distinguished and loyal giving community — the USAR Champions Club.

Huczek Signs On As Product Development Advisor For Ashaway

Retired Racquetball Superstar To Help Direct UltraKill Evolution

Ashaway Racket Strings has announced that recently retired racquetball superstar and former World Champion Jack Huczek has agreed to help the company steer the development of UltraKill® and other product lines.

Huczek announced his retirement from professional racquetball last May and leaves an impressive legacy in the world of racquetball. Since he picked up his first racquet over 25 years ago, Jack has amassed 22 World Championships and 42 National Championships. After joining the IRT Tour and winning the first of his 29 IRT tournaments in 2002, he ranked among the top five players in the world for the next ten years and in 2006-07 captured the coveted No. 1 spot on the IRT Year End Rankings.

"Being an ambassador for my sponsors has always been an enjoyable part of being a professional racquetball player," Huczek said. "I've worked with Ashaway on the UltraKill family since its inception and play-tested the string very early. I'm very pleased with the opportunity to continue working with Ashaway and perhaps helping out with other products as well."

While no travel plans were announced as part of Jack's advisory role, he says don't be surprised to see him turning up at a tournament near you!

Ashaway Introduces UltraKill® 16 Racquetball String

Ashaway Racket Strings has introduced the newest member of its popular UltraKill® family of racquetball strings. New UltraKill 16 utilizes the same Zyex® core polymer as other members of the family, but in a special, multi-stranded monofilament Zyex construction that maintains tension throughout the life of the string for reliable performance. The rugged 16-gauge (1.30 mm) thickness maximizes durability for chronic string breakers.

"UltraKill 16 is the workhorse in the family," said Steve Crandall, Ashaway's

Vice President of Marketing. "It's designed to provide exceptional power and ball control. The Zyex core minimizes tension loss for more consistent performance, and the braided surface maximizes control and increases spin."

Because of its tension holding properties, Ashaway recommends stringing the glossy black UltraKill 16 up to a maximum of 35 lbs tension, approximately 10-15% less than standard racquetball strings.

Gearbox Introduces New Line of Racquets and Racquetballs

After Owner and CEO Rafael Filippini spent over a year developing new and improved frame technology, Gearbox Racquetball recently announced the introduction of its innovative new line of racquets.

The Solid 1.0 features the patented Solid Head technology united with new Displacement Channel and String Dimple Technologies. The Displacement Channels add stiffness to the frame's enhancing power and control while reducing deformation of the racquet. Distributing impact loads along the frame's channels augments durability as well.

The String Dimples' soft beveled edges reduce string angles to improve structural resiliency. Solid Head technology, shared with the GB 250, has revolutionized racquetball racquets in durability by doubling the wall thickness and increasing impact resistance.

Offered in both a quadraform and a teardrop-style frame, the Solid 1.0 racquet quadraform frame comes in three different weights: 165g, 170g, and 185g. The teardrop frame is available in 165g and 170g.

Along with these new racquets, Gearbox is thrilled to release a new ball to the market, one that has received tremendously positive feedback. It offers great durability, true bounce, terrific playability and a mid-range speed.

Asia Racquetball Federation By Yuni Cobb

The Asia Racquetball Federation became an official member of the IRF in 1999. Since then, Japan, Korea and Saipan have hosted numerous championships, and many international players, including juniors, have played in tournaments hosted by the ARF. We were proud to host the Asia Open in June, with six Asian countries and players from the USA, Colombia and Canada participating.

The ARF's fifth and most recent president, Dr. Cho Wang Ki, continues to promote the sport with the same passion as his predecessors. After only seven months, Dr. Ki has:

- A. Developed a racquetball program for underprivileged children in Korea with plans to expand into other Asian countries.
- B. Attended the Junior World Racquetball Championships in 2010 in Los Angeles to develop relationships with the presidents of racquetball federations around the world.
- C. Built portable outdoor racquetball courts in two Asian countries. Dr. Ki firmly believes this is a great way to promote racquetball in countries that do not have indoor court facilities due to cost and space limitations.

Ultimately, with the help from not only Asian members but also players around the world, we hope to become a member of the Olympic Committee of Asia.

Ektelon Introduces Three New Racquets For Summer 2011

Three new EXO3 Frames Join a Completely Revamped Racquet Line with New Manufacturing Process

Ektelon has launched three new frames to its line of performance racquets this summer, including the EXO3 RG Toron (named after racquetball legend Ruben Gonzalez), EXO3 Attack Lite and EXO3 Re-Ignite. All three feature the company's patented and revolutionary EXO3 technology, eliminating conventional grommet holes to literally lengthen the strings to the frame's exterior edges and suspending them to create the largest functional hitting area of any racquet on the market. These four high performance frames provide the largest sweet spot possible for ultimate power for competitive to recreational racquetball players.

These racquets (excluding the RG Toron) offer weight and balance customization options with EXO3 String Suspension Inserts which provide up to four different swing weight combinations per frame. All are available from authorized Ektelon dealers.

The entire EXO3 and O3 line features a new Ektelon manufacturing process highlighted by a new resin material that bonds graphite fibers together. This makes them stronger and more resilient for improved frame strength and power.

These EXO3 racquet models and the revamped Speedport and O3 frames are now available at retail locations where Ektelon products are sold. For more information about EXO3 technology or to view the full line of Ektelon products, visit www.ektelon.com.

Junior Worlds Team 2011

2011 IRF Junior World Championships

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, July 24-30, 2011

By Kelley Beane, US Junior Team Head Coach

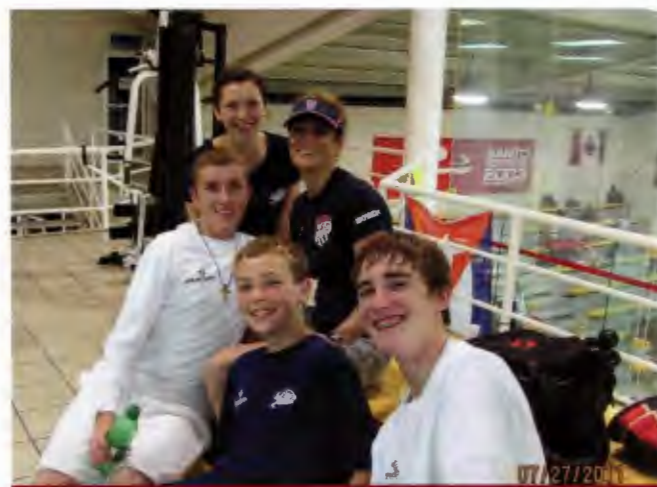

Team USA arrived in beautiful Santo Domingo on Saturday and got right down to the courts to practice. The setup is very nice - we could either take the buses or the subway to the Olympic Park where the courts are. The subway proved best as the tropical rains came every day in the afternoon - and when it rains there, it means business! After practicing Saturday and Sunday we got the team together, and, along with our helpful translators Nancy and Victor Manilla, went downtown to the markets since it was our only chance during the week to buy gifts and see what the local vendors had to offer. Then it was back for the opening ceremonies which featured music and dancers and included local dignitaries.

Pool play started Monday morning and continued through Wednesday night. This established our place in the regular draws that started Thursday morning and finished up Saturday night. Mexico took the top spot, followed by Bolivia and the USA.

The last evening we went out for a team dinner with Team Ireland and then enjoyed our remaining time left in the Dominican by the pool.

We only had six returning members of last year's World Championship Team, which made for some tough play out there, but I'm proud to say that our athletes gave everything they had out on the court. It was good to see some of the other countries like Bolivia and Guatemala start posting some serious results at the event. The talent is deep worldwide and we here in the USA need to continue to support our junior programs. We have a year to train and rebuild, and that's exactly what we are going to do.

A big thank you goes to our gracious hosts, the Dominican Racquetball Federation, and to the IRF for your hard work putting on this event. Special thanks also to our coaches and parents and to everyone for your continued support!

Multiply Your Options With Hybrid String

“Hybrid stringing” is using one string for the mains and another for the crosses. It’s been recommended for many years as an option for chronic string breakers or for finesse players who want more touch or control. But longtime coach and age group champion Tom Travers recommends hybrid stringing for all players.

If anyone should know, it’s Tom. He has been on the racquetball circuit for the past 35 years, playing, coaching, teaching, and stringing. Now 58 and a well known figure in Masters tournaments, he holds 21 National and World Titles in Singles and Doubles age group divisions. He’s also written a book, Real Racquetball, produced two popular instructional videos and was inducted into the Ohio Racquetball Hall of Fame in 1999.

According to Travers, hybrid stringing can benefit any player regardless of playing style or the tension at which they normally string. The benefits, he says, include more string durability, a racquet that has a softer feel, and a string bed that delivers better control and improved power.

Hybrid strings can come ready-made, but, says Travers, you can just as easily make up your own combinations. “I like the new Zyex-based UltraKill® 18 for my mains—which for me is just stiff enough—and a softer 18-gauge nylon string for my crosses.”

The key, he says, is to combine a stiffer string for the mains and a softer string for the crosses. Most players break their mains first, so a stiffer string there adds durability, while using softer crosses improves playability. “Combined, the strings have more resilience. They let the ball sit on the strings a bit longer, so you have more feel and more power. The ball compresses more as the strings come back. To my mind, stiff cross strings make the whole racquet feel stiff. Soften up the crosses, and you soften the whole racquet.”

Another benefit of hybrids is that the strings don’t move as much, according to Travers. “The strings tend to lock together better and don’t abrade against each other as much. A more stable string bed improves playability and increases string life. Also, you don’t need those little spacers people sometimes use.”

Who should use what gauge for hybrid stringing? Travers has it pretty much down to a formula. “Generally speaking, players who hit the ball harder—above 140 mph, for example—should use a 16-gauge for both mains and crosses, but still with the stiffer main and softer cross combination. For moderate hitters with speeds between 120 and 140 mph—and this includes most players—a 17-gauge stiff/soft combination should work. Light hitters who hit under 120 mph should go for an 18-gauge combination.”

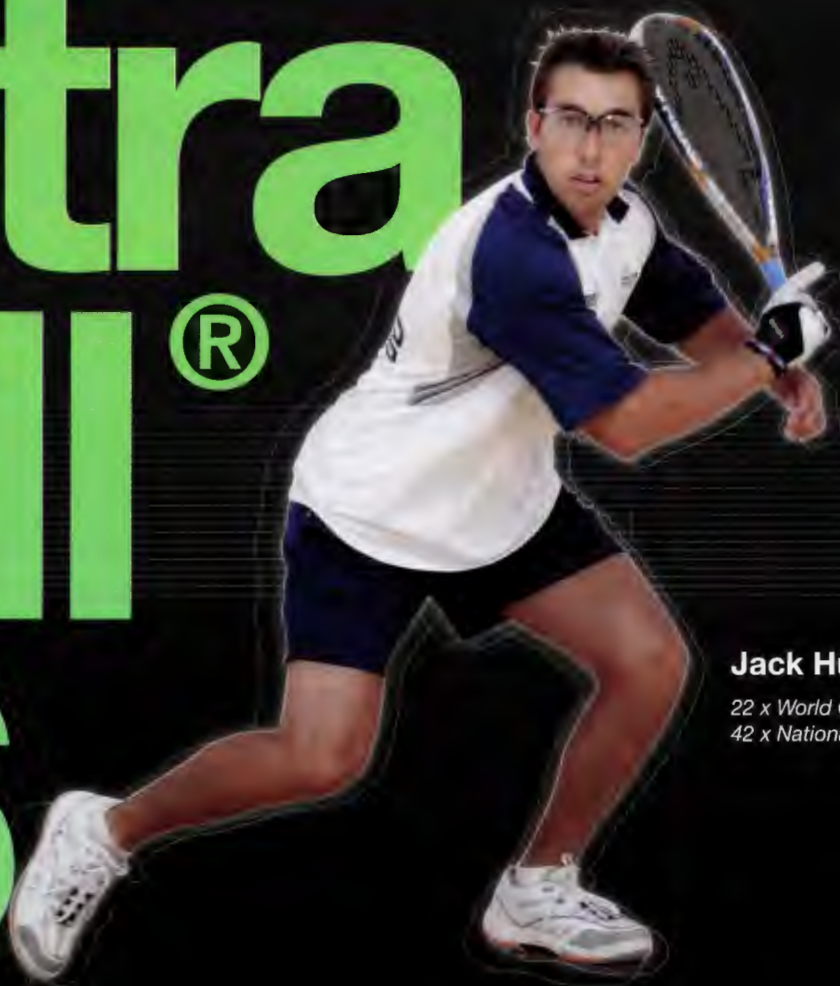

Players who really want to fine-tune their racquets can mix gauges by half steps, using a heavier string for the mains and lighter string for the crosses. “It depends on what you’re working for. The thicker the gauge, the more durable the string, and a thinner gauge will give you more feel. Just because you’re a hard hitter and need a thicker string doesn’t mean you don’t still need to feel the ball. Mixing gauges lets you do that.”

What combination you use also depends on how you hit the ball. Irrespective of power, strings last longer with experienced players who tend to hit on the sweet spot of their racquets. Players who hit all over the face of the racquet go through more strings, so they should opt for a heavier main combination.

To find the best combination for you, here’s what Travers recommends. “Tournament players generally have several racquets. Let’s say you’re happy using 17/17 and you want to get a bit more playability. Have one racquet strung 18/18 and another strung 17/18 and count the number of matches you get out of each. See which lasts longest. This will give you good, objective criteria.”

In summary, hybrid stringing offers you more choice of string type and additional options for string gauge. Hybrid string beds provide more feel, more control and better string durability than traditional stringing. Travers believes all players need control without giving up power. Hybrid stringing helps accomplish this goal.
