Hello everyone, my name is Halima Ferreira.

I'm a Chef Consultant/Detox Specialist/ Recipe & Food Developer and Plant Based Nutritionist.

My main focus is on food having the ability to heal and still be innovative, delicious and satisfying.

I'm passionate about educating people about the benefits of 'culinary medicine.' This concept blends the art of food and cooking with the science of medicine which, I believe can nurture, nourish and restore a sense of well-being.

My work now involves empowering clients to take charge of their health, manage food habits and live with any health conditions, from a point of strength and control.

Body-Matrix Specialist, founder

A Native Canadian and two time best-selling author in the Ignite Series, based in Germany. Fascinated by Fascia, the inner biological webbing, Annie is inspired by the Power of Touch and Movement. By combining her 15 + years experience of working as a Myofascial therapist and trainer, Annie has been educating, young and older, strategies and tools to rejuvenate and revive their inner body and rewire postural behaviours.

She created BMS technique, manual therapy and designed body training methods for anybody who wants to feel younger next year. Travelling the world presenting BMS Sessions, she is a wizard in empowering others in self-care. Convinced by the belief that our body's postural patterns shape our behaviours, stiffness and restrictions are holding us back. Her main concern: giving the body its boldness and awesomeness back.

Best-selling author, international speaker and double certified coach, Stacey Yates Seller helps parents of kids with ADHD learn the powerful, life-changing secrets to stop the insanity and win the battles with challenging behaviors. She is the founder of Happier By The Minute www.happierbytheminute.com where she breaks down the research and the rigor of Positive Psychology and Conscious Parenting into bite size morsels; easy to digest and implement for busy, stressed parents. Her motivational content began with one-minute videos and grew into a top-rated happiness Podcast, life-changing masterclasses, engaging workshops, private and group coaching plus international speaking engagements. Stacey already had 20 years of personal and child development experience but when she became a mom of a child with ADHD and learning differences, she immersed herself even deeper into research and application. She has had such great success with her own children that she knew she had to share the secrets of her success with other parents. She has positively impacted thousands of parents and children; improving relationships, decreasing stress and, hopefully, saving children from years of therapy later in life ;0)

Stacey left her successful corporate career in Silicon Valley, CA to pursue her dream of worldschooling her kids. She and her husband Barry and their two boys, Dashiel (10) and Declan (7) currently travel and experience the world with Boundless Life (#epic #bestdecisionever). Stay tuned (you can follow their travels Instagram/@followthesellers)

Joining my purposes of being an advocate for personal empowerment and a single father (50%) of two girls I understand the importance for me to help break the old paradigm in the way I raise them.

I spent 25 years in mostly entrepreneurial positions connecting and interacting with stakeholders. Those experiences serve me well in my current pursuits that started taking form in 2016.

Moving deeper into the human experience and exploring how I could use my experience, skills and knowledge to serve humanity, I started coaching and mentoring people and businesses on finding their purpose, as well as sharing my own discoveries and forays into deep consciousness.

This evolution would have been for nought if I hadn't accepted the challenge to also mature and grow personally. Spiritual and personal evolution go hand in hand, but one must choose to pursue them individually, and on this journey I has developed unique perspectives to the human experience that I now teach and share with many as many people that resonate with it.

People come to me for personal and spiritual guidance and coaching, business coaching and consulting, energy healing and meditation exploration.

My words come from deep within and find their ways into the depth of souls to heal, sooth, awaken and/or activate. I have been called to a global stage to share my teachings and wisdom. Get ready for your paradigm shift and allow me to help elevate your life.

Short Speaker Bio

Serena Brown Travis is committed to reaching the masses with her messages of positivity, overcoming obstacles, and moving towards success. Her passion in this arena stems from her father, the legendary motivational speaker, Les Brown and their family business focused on self-development and inspiration.

Serena's book series focuses on building self-confidence, pride, and a sense of self-worth among young readers, recognizing that children are dealing with challenging social, economic, and family issues having devastating consequences for their future. The goal of Serena's books is to shine a light in dark places and give solutions to conquer defeat and win.

As a speaker, best-selling children author, and international best-selling author, Serena earned her Bachelors of Arts from Hampton University and Masters in marketing and communication from Franklin University. She also accepted her call from higher power and is a student at Trinity Lutheran Seminary at Capital University pursing a Masters in Theological Studies.

Outside of reading, writing, and studying, Serena enjoys spending time as a volunteer, singing in the shower, and planting hugs and kisses on her husband Will and two daughters Sydnie and Sierra.
