New single: Alexa Play This Song Forever

Why does every generation think that their music is the best music? What is it about the music we listen to during our formative years that seems to seep into our consciences in a way music we discover in our later years just fails to do? Whilst listening to the radio an old song from my youth came on the radio (Don Henley's The Boys of Summer) and it hit me almost viscerally. Without thinking I asked Alexa to save it and the phrase really resonated with me. Later that day Alexa Play This Song Forever was born. With a driving backbeat, an epic guitar solo and vocals that explore why some tracks are so special to us, Alexa is a clear cut pop song. A simple performance video can be found on YouTube and a steampunk skinned vertical version on Instagram/IGTV.

All written, performed, recorded, mixed and mastered by Dirk Scarlett. Additional electric guitars Ry Jones.

Bio: Any music - as long as it's GOOD music!

From Sutton Coldfield, the green heart of the UK, Dirk Scarlett writes, records, mixes & produces all his own music. Heavily influenced by epic tunesmiths of the past (Beatles, ELO, ABC, Trevor Horn) he eschews genres, instead letting the music find its own path resulting in his unique sound that encompasses pop, rock, powerpop, country, folk, even a mariachi song. And his YouTube channel shows just what is possible with an old iPhone and a lot of determination. Later this year his first releases will be available as a debut album MYPersonic, whilst Dirk himself continues to work on tunes for the second album. Clear vocals, thoughtful lyrics, and oh so catchy hooks - that's the Dirk Scarlett way!
