*Disclaimer: This directory was created to help Boston Children's Hospital patients and families find a provider. The Autism Spectrum Center is not recommending or rating these providers, and this directory is not a representation of a full listing of all agencies accessible to families in Massachusetts. The information in this guide was correct at the time that it was created. Please email us at AutismCenter@childrens.harvard.edu if you find information that needs to be updated, or if you have any questions or concerns.

Look for the GREEN CHECKMARK ✓ indicating that an agency has recently updated their information with a Patient & Family Educator from the Autism Spectrum Center

Evaluations for medical or developmental reasons

Neuropsychological evaluation

- A neuropsychological evaluation looks at how your child's brain is working. The evaluation is actually a group of tests that measure intelligence, academic skills, attention and concentration (mental focus), learning and memory, processing speed (how long it takes your child to take in and understand information), visual-spatial perception (understanding where objects are in a space), language skills, visual motor and fine motor skills and sensory perception (your child's senses). It also looks at your child's executive functioning (planning, organization, initiating and inhibiting behaviors) and emotional functioning.
- The neuropsychologist who does the testing keeps your child's developmental phase and medical history in mind. The neuropsychologist then looks at all the results to outline your child's strengths and weaknesses and makes a plan for next steps.

Psychological evaluation

A psychological evaluation looks at your child's psychological functioning, intellectual and academic strengths and weaknesses, personality patterns, behavior and adaptive skills, and possible psychological diagnoses. These evaluations usually include an interview and some standardized tests or rating scales.

Evaluations for school or educational reasons

Special education evaluation

- A special education evaluation (sometimes called a Team or Core evaluation) happens when there is a concern that your child may have a disability that is making it hard for them to do well in school. The evaluation usually includes psychological, academic, speech/language, OT, PT and (sometimes) a home assessment. Evaluations are free for families.
- After the evaluation, there will be a team meeting with the school and parents/guardians to talk about creating an educational plan. If your child is eligible for special education services, an Individualized Education Program (IEP) will be created.

- Many families choose to have their child privately tested for school purposes. Families usually have this done if the school needs more details about a student's needs or if a family is not satisfied with the school's testing. Private neuropsychological, psychological or psycho-educational testing can be covered by insurance, covered by the school district (in the case of an Independent Educational Evaluation) or paid for by the family.
- Insurance will usually only cover 1 test a year and will not cover educational testing. While private testing can help to show more clearly what your child needs in school, the school district does not have to follow any recommendations made using outside tests unless the test is an Independent Educational Evaluation.

Independent Educational Evaluations (IEEs)

- Independent Educational Evaluations (IEEs) are requested through the public school district. You have the right to request this evaluation if you are not satisfied with the school district's testing of your child. You must request it within 16 months of the school's testing. If you share your financial information with the district and qualify for assistance, the district must pay for the evaluation. If you choose not to share your financial information, the district may agree to cover all or some of it, or the decision may go to a hearing.
- Make sure that all decisions, timelines and payment plans are clear and understood by your school district before scheduling the evaluation. The school district should be able to give you a list of organizations that accept school contract rates for doing the evaluation.
- For information about the special education process in Massachusetts, see the Federation for Children with Special Needs' resource, A Parent's Guide to Special Education: fcsn.org/parents-guide

“How to use this Testing Directory” & Understanding Healthcare Plans and Behavioral Health Coverage

Some insurance plans have separate coverage plans for “Medical Services” (ex: primary care doctor appointments, lab work, etc.) and “Behavioral Health Services” (ex: mental health services, therapy, counseling, ABA, etc.). When an insurance plan has separate coverage plans for each of these types of services, your primary insurance plan may use a “carve out” service for behavioral health services. Services like testing are covered under “Behavioral Health Services.” It is important to find out from your insurance if your plan has a “carve out” and what the carve out is, as this information will determine which agencies you may be able to work with. For example, if Harvard Pilgrim’s behavior health carve out is “Optum,” when looking for an testing agency that accepts your insurance you will be looking for agencies that accept “Optum.”

When working with an agency, the agency will obtain a prior authorization from your insurance before beginning services. The process to obtain the authorization can take 3-8 weeks - so even when an agency has “no wait-list,” families will need to wait for an authorization to be completed before they can begin services.

For families who have a “secondary insurance plan” : If you intend to use both insurance plans to cover the cost of testing services, you will need to ensure the agency accepts BOTH insurance plans. Example: A family with Blue Cross Blue Shield as a primary insurance and Masshealth as a secondary insurance will need to ensure an agency accepts both insurance plans. If the agency only accepts your primary insurance plan, you will be responsible for any associated costs that your primary insurance does not cover.

Insurance Definitions & Terminology
ABA	Applied Behavior Analysis
“Carve Out”	If an insurance plan has separate coverage plans built into your plan for medical services (ex: primary care appointments, x-rays, etc.) and behavioral health services (ex: ABA, counseling, etc.), your health insurance plan may use a “carve out” program to manage specific services
Co-Payment	An amount of money that you are responsible for paying for each visit/appointment.
“Commercial Plan”	Commercial health insurance is a type of health insurance that is sold and administered by a private company, not the government. It’s also known as private health insurance or group health insurance.
Deductible	An amount of money that you are responsible for paying before an insurance company will pay for covered expenses
Prior Authorization (or “PA”)	Prior authorizations
