

PLANTING SEEDS OF HOPE, HARVESTING LIVES OF PURPOSE

For over a decade, Masada House has been the field where women recovering from substance abuse come to plant the seeds of recovery. With our safe and supportive home, countless women have grown strong roots, risen above struggles, and reaped the harvest of a transformed life.

HOPE, HARVESTING LIVES OF PURPOSE

Recovery from addiction takes courage, but with the right support, women can transform their lives. At Masada House, we create a safe, nurturing environment where women find the strength to overcome addiction and build a purposeful future. Our resources empower women to re-establish meaningful relationships, pursue independence, and find joy in sobriety. As they achieve their goals, they plant the seeds of hope and harvest lives of fulfilled dreams and purpose.

The triumph lies in the harvest: 59% of these women successfully completed the program, embarking on a journey to a purposeful life free from addiction. As the women achieve sobriety and independence, they harvest lives of fulfilled promise and purpose.

Celebrating Recovery Month

Masada House hosted its annual Community Open House during National Recovery Month. The Hodgman Serenity Garden was officially dedicated. The garden, made possible by our community's generosity, represents the hope and peace found on the journey to recovery.

Inspiring testimonies from women who have overcome addiction were a reminder of the transformation possible with support. The Open House celebrates the community's role in nurturing these seeds of hope.

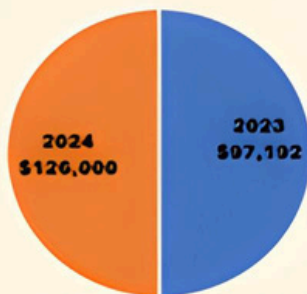

Together, we are harvesting lives of purpose, creating a healthier, more compassionate community. Join us in making a difference, one life at a time.
