Greeting Families and Supporters,

Winter has arrived, at least the snow! Yesterday as I waited in anticipation for our first big snowfall I was reminded of our waiting for the return of Christ. As a principal of a Lutheran school part of my job description is leading and guiding the children of God so that they come to know Jesus. Preparing them for Christ's return so that we all can be in heaven together. For me, that is just as important as preparing them academically for what they choose to do after high school. This week my son Jordan, a Marine, was home visiting his grandma who was quite ill (she is slowly getting better), which ended up being a blessing for Joe and I as we were able to spend time with him and Bridgette, his fiance. As we laughed and talked I was reminded of when we were in Nebraska and he attended a Lutheran high school there. I am thankful that through his educational journey he was able to grow in his faith to become the fine young man he is today. Thank you parents and grandparents for entrusting us with your children so that we too can help them grow academically and spiritually.

Blessings, Mrs. Kosmerchok

VERSE FOR TODAY: Some talk about "Mother Nature," but Christians should realize that Scripture identifies Jesus as the power behind the order and processes of our universe and the One Who sustains our world with his powerful word. Not only did he save us by the sacrifice on the Cross, but he now sustains our universe with his powerful words of loving grace. He sustains us spiritually through his words of teaching. And this Word, who speaks to us and to our universe, is the essence of God himself. He purified us from our sins, failures, and shortcomings while he was on earth and now reigns in glory until he returns to take us home!
