Why hire an Executive Coach?

Companies use Executive Coaching for a variety of reasons. A majority of companies (53%) use it for individual development. Some companies use it for staff leadership development (21%) and some use it for development of senior leadership (19%).

99%

99% of coaching clients were satisfied or very satisfied with the overall coaching experience. In fact, 96% of coaching clients said that given the same circumstances, they would repeat the coaching process.

Proof…

Individual Performance

Time 57%

Relationships 73%
Communication 72%

Coaching clients report an improvement in time management, interpersonal relationships, and communication skills.

Team Performance

51%

Executive coaching of team leaders resulted in an improved overall team performance.
Work Performance

70%

Coaching clients and their managers reported that there was a marked improvement in work performance.

Work/Life Perception

67%

Coaching clients indicate there is a large shift in their work/life integration and how they perceive stress.

Self Confidence

80%

Coaching clients indicate that their self confidence during decision making increased dramatically.

Return on Investment

700%

Companies indicate there is a return of 7x the initial investment with 25% of companies reporting over 10x.

KCOACH
PERFORMANCE CONSULTING