Sharon Ann

Sharon Ann is an artist, songwriter, vocal producer, and worship leader with roots that run deep. Raised in her parents' church, Committed to Christ International Ministries in Pantego, TX, she spent over two decades serving under their tutelage; shaping her artistry.

Over the past 10 years, she has brought her dynamic gifts, pen, and voice to stages and studios alongside gospel legends like Tye Tribbett, Kirk Franklin, Tamela Mann, Fred Hammond, The Clark Sisters, Marvin Sapp, Donnie McClurkin, and Israel Houghton.

Her songwriting credits include collaborations with Tye Tribbett ("Mighty," "I Want More"), Jonathan McReynolds ("Best Thing"), and James Fortune ("Here2Hear"). As a Grammy-nominated vocal producer and arranger, Sharon Ann has contributed to projects for Martha Munizzi (Best Days) and Melvin Crispell III (No Failure). She also appears as co-lead vocalist on "Glory to God Forever" from Tye Tribbett's Grammy Award-winning All Things New.

Now, Sharon Ann steps into her own as a solo artist with the release of her debut album, Sacred Disruption: When Kingdom Invades Culture!

Produced in collaboration with Grammy-winning and celebrated producers such as Asaph Ward, Joshua Brown (GoldenBoi Beats), Darryl "Lil Man" Howell, Jevon Hill and more, this body of work defies categorization. The album includes previously released singles "Peace Be Still" and "So Good" - a cinematic journey through trauma to healing, and a 70s-funk-meets-gospel anthem. Each song fuses multiple genres: gospel, inspirational, funk, hip-hop, soul, cinematic sound - a musical melting pot anchored in Kingdom purpose.

"I don't believe Christ can be confined to one sound or expression. It's bigger than culture. It's Kingdom."

At her core, Sharon Ann is more than a vocalist or songwriter, she's a vessel who believes her purpose on Earth is to awaken the overlooked, affirm the misfit, and release heaven's sound into the Earth. Through music, ministry, and creativity, she challenges limitations and confronts cultural boxes to spark transformation.

Sharon Ann is building bridges between generations, genres, and hearts, ushering in encounters with Christ that transcend tradition.

Her assignment is clear: shake systems, stir spirits, and sound the alarm.
For Christ. For the Kingdom.
