Talkology Communications & Media Limited are a provider of digital media and communications and whilst this means we are dedicated to creating interesting and meaningful content for our readers, viewers and subscribers, it also means we are a way for businesses and companies alike to reach out to those readers, in essence, we are an advertising platform.

Offering these services is not an unusual practice within the publishing industry. The magazines that we publish are produced in the first instance digitally and are available on our website, we also produce and provide complimentary hard copies of the magazines to the Award winners as the publication becomes due. These are available for the general public to read and are sent out to our circulation base via email.

Those companies who win our awards do so on an entirely free of charge basis. This is not a 'pay to play' opportunity, all winners win their award entirely on a free of charge basis, there is merely an option available to them to purchase trophies, logos, advertorial etc., this is not obligatory.
