

Jabroczy family in Slovakia and beyond.

By Vladimir Riha

According available baptism church records the oldest occurrence of Jabroczy family name is in town of Kežmarok in Northern Slovakia (Spiš region).

Hungarian historian Iván NAGY writes about Jábroczky family in his book Magyarország családai czímerekkel és nemzedékrendi táblákkal. (Families of Hungary with coats of arms and genealogical tables.) Budapest, 1857-1868. p. 273 :

The Jábroczky family comes from Dalmatia, who came to Spiš from there. The son of Luis Jábroczki, Benedikt, received a noble title and coat of arms from king Sigismund in Bratislava in 1411 (in festo ded. S. Michaelis Archangeli - 29 September 1411) for his merits. Benedikt's brother Albert was captain of the king's personal guard. He fought with the king at Nikopol and fell there. Benedikt was captured and suffered in captivity together with the king in Siklós castle. His descendants lived in Kežmarok in Spiš before 1600.

Adam the Elder was in 1601 the court captain of Stephan *1581 - †1651 (possibly also Sebastian *? - †1607) Tököly and is mentioned in a document of Rudolf II, according to which he is obliged to pay 2,000 florins to Pethö of Gerse as compensation for the injury of Francis Pethö. According to the aforementioned documents, Adam the Elder had three sons, Daniel, Adam and Job. In 1681, Adam the Elder was beheaded by the Tököly family.

The coat of arms of the family is, according to the description in the coat of arms, divided horizontally into two halves, the lower one is golden, the upper one is silver; From the lower half, a blood-red rock rises like a pyramid to the silver half, and on it a pelican is seen sitting in a nest with outstretched wings, feeding its three young with blood from its breast. Above the halves are two helmets with a visor, of which a double cross stained with blood is depicted on the crown of the right one, and from the left crown a naturally coloured two-tailed lion emerges, which holds the severed head of a Turk in its right forepaw and a bloody halberd in its left. The coat of arms is depicted and also described in the supplement to Siebmacher's Wappenbuch catalogue.

Kežmarok family tree:

Jób Jábroczy was not found in the church birth register.

Records have been preserved about some members of the Jábroczy family, describing events in their lives:

Samuel Jabroczy is listed as Civis Nobilis in the census of the free royal city of Kežmarok in 1715 and 1720.

Michael and Adam Jabroczy * 1680 (1683) studied in Košice catholic gymnasium and later became members of Jesuits order. They were in probation in Trenčín. Adam Jabroczy worked as notarius in Jasov premonstrate monastery.

Adam Jabroczy *1670 with Helena Matyasovszky founded his branch in Košice:

From this branch following persons became significant:

János Norbert Jabroczy * 1718 was in 1761 - 1774 the deputy director for legal affairs of the Spiš Chamber (Causarum Regalium vicedirector) in Košice. Gábor (I.), husband of Katarína Semsey, was in 1793 - 1798 the school inspector in the Košice school district and his son Gábor (II.) *1757 - †1819 was a judge in 1800.

Pavol Jabroczy *1720 in Veľká Ida. He became jesuit and during his career he became a teacher poet and superior of jesuit house in Sárospatak until the jesuit order was abolished by the pope in 1773.

According to Iván Nagy, Adam Jabroczyk moved to Transylvania, where he married the noblewoman Erszébet Kapy. His son Gábor asked the crown to renew the coat of arms.

He received the new coat of arms in a document of Leopold I in 1700. In the copy of the document from the monastery in Kolozsvár from 6 Dec 1721, their other family relationships are listed: Applicant - Gábor, son of Ádám Jabroczký of Jabrod - senior, Erszébet Kapy - mother, Gábor Kapy - grandfather, Ezsébet Mindszenti - grandmother, Dániel Jabroczyk of Jabrod - brother of Adam senior.

From this branch following persons became significant:

Adam Jabroczy, *1724 in Vice in Transylvania. In 1739 he studied in Kolozsvár, where he joined the Jesuit order, in 1740 - 1741 he studied at the gymnasium in Trenčín, in 1742 in Skalica, in 1743 - 1745 philosophy in Vienna, in 1746 in Bratislava. In 1747 - 1748 he taught in Kolozsvár, in 1749 at the college in Eger. In 1750 - 1753 he studied theology in Vienna, in 1754 - 1755 he worked at the college in Banská Bystrica and as a missionary in Šahy. In 1756, he was a missionary in Transylvania, where he died during an epidemic in the same year.

Ivan Nagy described fortunes of some other members of this Jabroczy branch, but their relevancy is difficult to prove by now.

Now then we fully described the fortunes of Jabroczy family members originated from Adam Jabroczy from Kežmarok, let us study possible offsprings back in Spiš region.

The oldest occurrence of family Jábroczy out of Kežmakok is found in Stará Ľubovňa (Lubla) in 1712.

In the literature dealing with the history of the Reformation and Counter-Reformation movements and the Tököly uprising, three men with the surname Jabroczy are mentioned in Spiš. One of them, Daniel Jabroczy, could have been the father of Laurentius Stephanus Jabrocki. BRUCKNER Győző in his book “History of the Reformation and Counter-Reformation in Spiš Region (1520 – 1745) vol. I. - A reformáció és ellenreformáció története a Szepességben. I. kötet (1520–1745-ig). Budapest 1922. p. 450” describes how in 1710 captains Gottlob and Jabroczy captured the envoys of 13 Spiš towns sent to the Polish king Augustus II. with a complaint against Teodor Konstantin Lubomirský for not respecting the rights of free choice of their religion given by the king.

The envoys were captured and taken to Lublo (Stará Ľubovňa). At that time, Stará Ľubovňa was under the administration of the Polish king based on the pledge agreement of Sigismund of Luxembourg from 1412, together with 34 Spiš towns and villages (Spiš Pledge 1412-1773). Stará Ľubovňa was under the command of T. K. Lubomirsky, the last mayor of the Province of 13 Spiš towns (1702—1745) from the princely family of Lubomirsky, captain of Lublin Castle, son of Stanislav Heraklion Lubomirsky. The Polish king August II. learned about the imprisonment of the envoys and ordered their release. Despite this, T. K. Lubomirsky released them only in 1712.

Further on no direct connections between Laurentio Stephanus Jabrocki and other Jabrocky family members in Stará Ľubovňa were found.

First Jabroczy family branch continued thru centuries is family of Franciscus Jabroczy and Rosalia.
