A Minute With... Nicole McMahan, Redline Mechanical

Q: Briefly describe Redline Mechanical.

Redline Mechanical is a family-owned business we started in May of 2017. Our team provides commercial plumbing and piping services tailored to the needs of our clients and their buildings. We are proud to have strong leaders both in the field and in the office that are empowered to offer smart and innovative solutions for our customers.

Q: What has been a highlight since you started your business?

The highlight of starting Redline Mechanical is working together every day, building lasting relationships with great employees and clients based on trust, open communication, and a collaborative spirit.

Q: How do you manage work/life balance?

Our lives are pretty much the same, work hard and play hard. As a family business our youngest Dylan goes to work with us every day for online schooling, Cody is at Boise State studying Mechanical Engineering and Ashlie is working as a dental assistant in Enumclaw.

Q: What do you miss most from pre-pandemic days?

Probably the face-to-face interaction with friends in the industry, the zoom life does not really let you communicate as freely and joke around like the pre-pandemic days.
