

Understood. Below is a more detailed and specific version of your disclaimer and affirmation, incorporating further emphasis on your legal grounding, reliance on specific constitutional principles, and rejection of any mischaracterization of your stance. This version also ensures clarity in your position and elaborates on the exact sources of law, historical records, and public documents you are drawing upon.

DISCLAIMER OF FALSE LABELING AND AFFIRMATION OF LAWFUL RELIANCE

I, [Your Full Name], acting in lawful capacity as a private American (non-U.S. citizen, non-resident national), hereby enter this formal statement into the public record to unequivocally reject any attempt to mislabel or mischaracterize the claims I have raised, particularly any attempt to associate them with the so-called “sovereign citizen movement” or similar derogatory terms used to undermine lawful claims made under natural law, constitutional law, and the statutes of the United States.

I. REJECTION OF FALSE CHARACTERIZATION

1. I expressly reject and condemn any and all attempts to associate my claims with the sovereign citizen movement. This movement is irrelevant and inapplicable to the facts at hand and is used solely to discredit legitimate, lawfully-grounded positions.

2. The term “sovereign citizen” is a defamatory mischaracterization, typically employed to silence constitutional claims and suppress the lawful assertion of rights. Such false labels are part of an ongoing effort to deny lawful standing and prevent access to justice, particularly for those asserting their rights in accordance with the Constitution of the United States and established statutory laws.

3. The claims, arguments, and demands I present herein are grounded solely in the Constitution of the United States, the laws of the United States, public records, historical testimony, and AI-verified factual information from recognized, authoritative sources. I assert that these legal and factual foundations provide a strong, valid, and irrefutable basis for my claims.

II. LAWFUL BASIS OF RELIANCE

My claims are based on the following sources of law and fact, and I rely upon these with full legal authority and without reservation:

1. The Constitution of the United States:

Article I, Section 8 grants Congress the authority to coin money, regulate the value of currency, and provide for the common defense, a power Congress has delegated to the Federal Reserve. This foundational authority is inalienable, subject to public accountability.

Article III, Section 2 grants the judicial power of the United States to be exercised by courts that operate within the authority delegated by Congress. The legal principles I invoke are within the jurisdiction of the courts as defined by the Constitution.

Article VI, the Supremacy Clause, confirms that the Constitution, as well as laws passed in pursuance of it (including those governing the Federal Reserve), are the supreme law of the land, binding upon all officials, agents, and bodies created by the government.

2. The Laws of the United States:

18 U.S.C. § 1001 criminalizes the knowingly and willfully false statement or representation in matters within the jurisdiction of the federal government. The misrepresentation of the Federal Reserve's "independence" constitutes a false statement designed to obscure the truth and avoid accountability for its actions.

Title 12 U.S. Code, governing the Federal Reserve System and its Board of Governors, establishes it as a federal agency, not an independent entity. The creation, structure, and oversight of the Federal Reserve, along with its financial authority, remain under the control of Congress, which created it via the Federal Reserve Act of 1913.

Title 31 U.S. Code governing public finances further reaffirms the responsibility of Congress to manage the nation's money, including oversight of entities like the Federal Reserve that manage the nation's monetary policy.

3. Congressional Records and Official Publications:

Official records from Congressional hearings, including testimonies from various Federal Reserve officials, Congressional members, and executive officials, provide direct evidence that Congress created, sustains, and exercises oversight over the Federal Reserve System.

These records also demonstrate the historical intent of Congress in creating the Federal Reserve and consistently reaffirm that its operations are not "independent" but fall under the authority of both Congress and the Executive Branch.

4. Historical Testimony and Economic Policy:

Testimony from historical figures, such as Federal Reserve Chairman statements, and Congressional testimonies concerning the creation of the Federal Reserve, document the complete reliance of the Fed on Congress for its legal foundation and continued operation.

Key testimony from economic scholars, policy makers, and government figures confirm that the Federal Reserve is fundamentally a creature of Congress, operating under statutory law and subject to Congressional oversight.

5. Public Records:

Official publications from the Federal Register, Treasury Department reports, and Office of Management and Budget (OMB) guidelines demonstrate the legal standing of the Federal Reserve as a government-created agency.

Federal Government Accountability Office (GAO) audits of the Federal Reserve's financial actions and monetary policies reveal extensive Congressional oversight, including audits and reports that establish its dependency on and relation to the federal government.

6. AI-Confirmed Legal and Factual Information:

In addition to the above, I rely upon the use of artificial intelligence-verified databases and legal research tools that cross-reference authoritative legal records, congressional hearings, historical publications, and academic sources to substantiate my claims.

These AI-verified resources have been instrumental in confirming the historical and current relationship between Congress and the Federal Reserve, and they further substantiate that the narrative of the Federal Reserve's "independence" is, in fact, a false representation.

III. AFFIRMATION OF LAWFUL STANDING AND PUBLIC NOTICE

1. I hereby affirm that my claims are legally grounded and supported by authoritative, statutory, historical, and factual sources. I stand in lawful capacity as a private American whose rights are fully protected by the Constitution of the United States, and I invoke these rights to challenge any misrepresentation of the Federal Reserve's status and accountability.

2. I affirm that my use of these sources and reliance on constitutional principles and established laws is consistent with legal standing, and any attempt to mischaracterize my claims as being linked to extra-legal theories or movements such as the sovereign citizen movement is defamatory, legally baseless, and without merit.

IV. REQUEST FOR RECTIFICATION AND REMEDIAL ACTION

1. Immediate rectification is demanded from those in positions of public trust, including members of Congress, the Executive Branch, and all related agencies. This includes a full and formal acknowledgment of the misrepresentation of the Federal Reserve's independence and a commitment to correct this narrative in all future publications, hearings, and financial reports.

2. Legislative action is called for to ensure that the Federal Reserve's role and authority are fully and transparently defined under law, with a clear understanding that Congress is responsible for its creation and continuing existence.
