

William Wu, Director & Co-Writer

William Wu, is a Vancouver-based award winning director and screenwriter who graduated from the Motion Picture Arts program at Capilano University. During his studies, he has worked alongside industry professionals and Universities in producing videos for social media and documentaries. He believes that the first step in creating a story starts with an idea, but the next steps afterward, is to surround yourself with a passionate film crew and cast. William is beyond grateful for everyone who was involved in the making of Go For Broke, and he continues to pursue directing as a career.
