BLUF: The prevailing mindset in the world of “modern medicine” backed by the medical industrial complex and a vast majority of doctors is “will survive.”

On a Fox News interview Dr. Higgins, Chief Clinical Officer at City of Hope Cancer Center in Atlanta said, “70% of people diagnosed with cancer will survive five years or more.” Often, the Great Oz will not even take the time to climb out of the medical silo and read non-conventional treatments for various diseases.

Stop and think about the statement. What does Dr. Higgins mean by “will survive”. Obviously, they will live longer, but she leaves out the quality of life of the 70%. Furthermore, what about the 30%. Are their lives just written off – a very crass way to write off 30%. BTW Dr., with that statement you wrote off my wife and thousands of other victims of the Medical Industrial Complex (MIC) who died because of the poison the MIC and the pill pushers pushed onto the patients. Many of those 30% who are not helped but the MIC and the Association of Pill Pushers, die a morphine aided death.

This mentality is so prevalent in the medical community, I refer back to a previous commentary where I wrote, “Doctors feel good about prescribing more pills and go home feeling good about themselves; while the patient goes home to another round of medicine that makes them sick, lose weight and “survive” another few months!

How about this statement, in 1971, when President Nixon declared “war” on cancer, there has been a trillion dollars¹ “invested²” and we can FINALLY proclaim, “we have a 70% survival rate”; however, that is not for all cancers and certainly not a cure or a record to be proud of. I would say that is a p!ss poor return for the taxpayer’s money, for the patients, especially the 30% that were so casually dismissed, like my wife, BUT very lucrative for PBM, hospitals, drug companies, cancer clinics to mention a few.

The chasm³ between Medical Industrial Complex (MIC) and the patient must now be bridged, not with another trillion-dollar B.S. research bridge, but a humbling of the American Medical Association and all of its dues paying, pabulum drinking doctors who refuse to acknowledge or even read studies on non-chemo, non-radiation treatments for cancer.

The perfect storm is forming thanks to the arrogant mentality of the MIC and its siblings AND the anger of patients stuck with unconscionable prices for drugs. Perhaps the Honorable Robert F. Kennedy Jr. of the HHS and his leadership along with Make America Healthy Again effort will break up the MIC cartel and expand care beyond the MIC for cancer patients.
