Julie,

I am going to try to create a response that focuses on whether we can push back when a request is more about harassment and over burdensome for public agencies. I have similar issues with requests that have been pushed on the school district. I am not afraid to just say no and then try to push a case forward to the Supreme Court in order to get the Court to accept there should be reasonable restraints on what records should or can be released. If we just continue to sit back and do nothing then we will never get any change in the law. Even if we fail, we might trigger a response at the next legislative session to get some limitations imposed in the law. Do not worry. The work would be done by my office. All you need to do is grab the reins and hold on for the ride.
