

Mike Smith and the members of the team he leads are among the very best in the field of 'Open Source Intelligence,' or OSINT. And with extremist groups like the Islamic State generating so much activity in social media and the Internet, the ability to collect and analyze OSINT as impressively as Mike and his team do is hugely important. Their insights are absolutely invaluable.

—Former CIA Director General David H. Petraeus, USA (Ret)*

Michael S. Smith II is a terrorism analyst, open source intelligence specialist, an internationally recognized expert on the influence operations of Salafi-jihadist groups, and lecturer in Johns Hopkins University's MA in Global Security Studies program. An international consultant in the fields of preventing and countering violent extremism, his recent projects include providing assistive guidance to the Ministry of Security in Bosnia and Herzegovina under the auspices of a USAID Office of Transition Initiatives-funded program. Since 2009, his work with prominent think tanks and as Principal and COO of Kronos Advisory, a private national security consultancy he cofounded in 2011 with Medal of Honor recipient Major General James E. Livingston, USMC (Ret), has been at the nexus of strategic and tactical threat analysis, technical mitigation support, and the formulation of United States national security policy. During this time, his insights on al-Qa'ida's and Islamic State's activities, along with opportunities to more effectively manage threats posed by them have been regularly sought by members of the United States Congress, officials with the Executive Office of the President of the United States, and governments comprising the Global Coalition to Defeat ISIS, for which he served as keynote speaker during a counterterrorism practitioners conference hosted at the United Kingdom Foreign and Commonwealth Office headquarters in March 2017. Mr. Smith's work for members of Congress has been entered into the Congressional Record, and used as a source document for national security legislation signed by President Barack Obama, titled The Countering Iran in the Western Hemisphere Act of 2012. In October 2017, he provided expert testimony during the Senate Committee on the Judiciary, Subcommittee on Crime and Terrorism's high-profile hearing focused on terrorists' and Russia's online influence operations. In December 2019, he presented his analysis of how conflict in Syria is impacting such phenomena as international terrorism during the NATO Parliamentary Assembly's 19th Annual Parliamentary Transatlantic Forum. His work assisting policymakers and perspectives on international security issues have been covered extensively by major media, including The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, The Washington Post, NBC, CBS, PBS, CNN, Fox News Channel, BBC, NPR, The Associated Press, Reuters, Voice of America, Newsweek, Foreign Policy, Time, Channel 4 (UK), CBC (Canada), France 24, Agence France-Presse, The Times of London, The Guardian, Bloomberg, 9 News Australia, ABC (Australia), El Mundo (Spain), and Corriere della Sera (Italy). In 2016, for his collaboration with hactivists who infiltrated Islamic State social media networks to gather information about attack plots and recruitment activities, Foreign Policy listed him among the "Moguls" in its annual list of the "100 Leading Global Thinkers," and Fast Company magazine ranked him 14 on its annual list of the "100 Most Creative People in Business." In addition to serving as a speaker during academic and government conferences hosted in the United States, Europe, and Africa, he has published with a diverse mix of high-impact factor academic, as well as influential policy and news publications, including Foreign Affairs (US Council on Foreign Relations), Lawfare, World Politics Review, The Times of London/Sunday Times, CNN.com, FoxNews.com, The Washington Times, and The Christian Science Monitor, and his scholarly work includes a chapter on Islamic State in the first edition of the Routledge Handbook of International Relations in the Middle East (2019). In addition, contents of both his open source investigation archives and his Twitter feed, @MichaelSSmithII, have been featured in reporting by major media, including The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, CNN, Fox News, BBC, Foreign Policy, and Newsweek, among others. Since 2018, he has also served as a consultant to the International Spy Museum (Washington, DC), where he assisted museum education staff with development of an open source intelligence practitioner simulation exhibit. Mr. Smith received both his MA in Intelligence and Security Studies and Graduate Certificate in Intelligence Analysis from The Citadel. In recognition of his academic accomplishments as a graduate student he was inducted into the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, the United States' oldest and most selective multidisciplinary collegiate honor society.

Consultant, International Spy Museum (2018-2019)

Assisted the museum's education staff with the development of an open source intelligence practitioner simulation exhibit that was launched following the museum's reopening at its new facility in 2019.

Guest Lecturer, Proseminar Instructor, Johns Hopkins University, Advanced Academic Programs (2016-2018)

Guest lecturer for graduate courses on intelligence and counterterrorism taught by former CIA senior counterterrorism analyst Cynthia Storer. Proseminar instructor for seminar covering open source intelligence collection and exploitation focused on Islamic State's online recruitment and incitement program.

International Security Program Fellow, New America (2017-2018)

Research focus: Terrorists' exploitations of popular open source and "dark" social media platforms.

Principal & COO, Kronos Advisory (2011-2016)

*Kronos Advisory was a consultancy established in 2011 by Smith and Major General James E. Livingston, USMC (Ret) to assist policymakers and US national security managers with terrorism-related issues. A member of a team of companies that was awarded an IDIQ by SPAWAR Atlantic (United States Navy) in 2013, the firm was described by Foreign Policy magazine as a "leading open source intelligence consultancy."

Research Fellow and Government Relations Officer, The NEFA Foundation (2010-2011)

NEFA was a nonprofit research institute engaged in independent investigations of groups and individuals who planned, funded and executed terrorist attacks targeting Americans and their allies, with primary focus on Salafi-Jihadist groups and their supporters. In addition to his work conducting research and participating in briefings provided to members of the United States Congress, Smith secured a $500,000 gift from a private donor to fund the foundation's research. Titled Bin Laden's Bookshelf, a collection of materials published by the Office of the Director of National Intelligence highlights al-Qa'ida's senior leaders were particularly interested in NEFA's reporting on al-Qa'ida and affiliated elements.

ADDITIONAL EXPERIENCE

Peer Reviewer, Perspectives on Terrorism

Peer-reviewed online journal of the Terrorism Research Initiative (TRI)

Editor and main contributor, Downrange

www.insidethejihad.com

Expert, Congressional Taskforce on Terrorism and Unconventional Warfare

Reported and briefed on terrorist elements active in the Syrian Jihad, the Iranian regime's sponsorship of terrorist groups, Iran's nuclear program, Russia's support of Iran's nuclear program and Russian influence operations in the Middle East. Assisted chairman's office with its development of a terrorism preparedness manual for his civilian constituents.

Expert, Congressional Anti-Terrorism Caucus

The ATC consisted of approximately 100 members of the House and Senate, and functioned as Congress' semi-official think tank on terrorism. Produced reports and provided briefings on al-Qa'ida's activities. Notable reports and briefings focused on a plot targeting the 2010 World Cup (identified by NEFA Foundation investigators before an al-Qa'ida member captured in Iraq shared details about the plot), and Iranian regime-senior al-Qa'ida echelon relations.

Senior Analyst (Terrorism, Middle East, Iran), Wikistrat

Wikistrat is a geostrategic analysis firm that purveys analytic services to government and private sector clients. In this role, Smith participated in a war game exercise observed by US military officials.

Smith has also worked as a copy editor and features writer for a newspaper part of the Evening Post Publishing Company's product mix. EPPC is the parent company of South Carolina's largest daily newspaper, The Post and Courier, in which Smith has published book reviews and opeds.
