

Friday Morning Watch

Follow the Detours In Your Life

“Follow the detours and they’ll guide,
with God right there by your side”

Here we are... our final morning of CAMP.

Today we pack up, say goodbye, and head back into what we call the “real world.” School, jobs, routines, responsibilities. It’s easy to wonder how we take this feeling—this closeness to God, these friendships and memories—and hold on to it.

All week long, you’ve followed some detours—some expected, some confusing. But look where they’ve brought you: New friends. New memories. New perspective. And maybe... a stronger sense that God really is walking beside you.

Now it’s time to head home. And even though CAMP ends, the journey doesn’t. You’ll face detours there too—at school, with friends, in your own heart.

When that happens, remember what you’ve learned here:

- It’s okay not to have it all figured out.
- Detours can lead to blessings you didn’t see coming.
- No matter the roadblock, follow through.
- God doesn’t stay at CAMP. He goes with you.

This morning, before you say goodbye, take one last quiet moment and thank God:

“Thank You for walking with me this week. Help me keep following You, even when the road turns.

“The Lord will guide you always... You will be like a well-watered garden.”

— Isaiah 58:11

“God goes with you wherever you detour—trust that He sees the road ahead.”

— Unknown

“By followin’ His roadmap for our lives, He catches us as we slip. We’re followin’ His roadmap for our lives, & we’re enjoyin’ the trip!” – Janny Brizius 2002

NOTES: