

Hosebib or Mixing Valve Aftercare

While frost free hose bibbs & mixing valves are fantastic additions to your home, as they will extend your watering season, they are not indestructible. At the end of the season (September/October- before the temperature drops below zero at night), we advise all of our clients to drain down their hosebib lines thoroughly (& do not leave your garden hose hooked up through the winter!), to avoid ice building up during the extreme temperatures that we experience here in Alberta. Ice build ups split water lines.

Extra tips

- When leaving your home for an extended period of time (vacation, hospital stay, etc.), be sure to shut the water off to your home- especially in winter, to ensure you do not come home to a flood. NEVER shut the heat off in winter- your pipes will freeze & burst.
- Regularly check your sump pump (if you have one), to ensure you do not experience any back ups.
- If your hot water tank is new or under 5 years old, be sure to flush it once a year, to extend its life & productivity.
- Install shut off valves to all toilets & sinks, to stop leaks without turning the water off to your entire home.
- Have your main water shut off valve tested once a year to ensure that it can be turned off in an emergency, or when you are leaving for an extended period of time.
