

Robert Igo (2016)

Feb 12, 2020: Planning in the Centre Region

Bob and his wife Chris (a true lifer) are longtime residents of the State College area and currently live in Shingletown.

Bob is a seasoned professional with extensive experience in finance, operations, and education in both the corporate and academic institutions. Holding a BA in Labor Studies from Penn State and an MBA from Saint Francis, Bob has also earned certifications in Production and Inventory Control and Statistical Process Control.

Bob has held significant roles throughout his career, including positions at Penn State, Murata Electronics, and Centre Engineering. At Penn State, Bob managed finance, contracts, and compliance administration from 2004 to 2020 and served as an instructor for business and economics at Penn State. Additionally, he represented the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and Penn State to the Southern Region Education Board from 2016 to 2018.

His career also includes a long tenure at Murata Electronics, where he oversaw operations and materials management, and earlier roles in human resources and production management at Centre Engineering.

Beyond their professional achievements, Bob is deeply committed to community service. He has been involved with the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Special Olympics, Centre County United Way, and several advisory roles at Penn State. He also held leadership positions in various organizations, including the President of the Penn State Liberal Arts Society and Labor studies Affiliated Program Group, and currently with the Harris Township Planning Commission and the Spring Creek Water Commission. Bob is an active member his church where he leads Bible study groups and has served as a Deacon and Elder at the State College Presbyterian Church.

In addition to church and community involvement, Bob is a frequent fly fisherman and a member of Spring Creek Trout Unlimited.
