About the Seminar

Delhi-NCR is densely populated and its infrastructure and services are overburdened and government is lagging behind in supplying desirable quality of drinkable water to the citizens as well as in proper reuse of wastewater. Considering these challenges, it is necessary to examine the present quality water supply and disposal situation in Delhi-NCR, and the available options for ensuring quality water sufficiency in the future.

You may be aware that we have successfully organised ECO-22 (National Conference on Air-Water - Soil) on 23-24 September 2022 at J C Bose University of Science and Technology YMCA ,Faridabad. The conference was attended by many prominent experts and researchers across India.

The Seminar “Jal-Amrit-23“has been planned in continuation of above conference with a purpose to focus on the subject of water in Delhi- NCR. It will help in appreciating the problem of water quality and availability in this most important region of the country. The programme is likely to be attended by experts on water and stake holders.

The seminar will provide a forum for experts and stake holders, to discuss the issues related to water quality and availability from various natural and manmade resources, it’s utilisation, conservation and protection in Delhi - NCR.
