Verigation in the Garden

An easy way to add interest to your landscape is by adding plants with variegated leaves. Here are some easy plants to grow: Song of India, Trinetta, and Flax Lilly. To compliment these, use with dark green foliage plants or for color pair with bromeliads and caladiums. Some other variegated plants that you might like are the arrowhead syngonium, crinum lily, dracaenas, or Aztec grass (12 to 18" tall). All are easy to grow and propagate. We'll be talking more about these in our next meeting.

Chinese Evergreen
(Aglonema)
This plant likes the shade.

Shefflera Arboricola Trinetta

This is a popular landscape plant that grows very well in South Florida. It adds interest to a landscape.

Caladiums are seasonal bulbs available in a variety of white/green and red/green

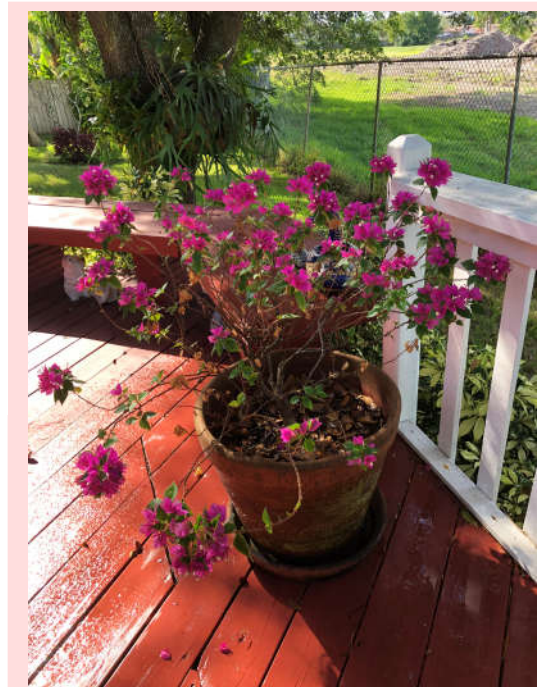

Song of India

This is an interesting plant that grows in clusters randomly in every direction.

Flax Lily

The leaves with their downward curve gives a tropical feel. You will see the flax lily everywhere in the S. Florida landscape. These are readily available at local nurseries.

Bougainvillea are beautiful, but these beauties can be very unruly and can take over. There is a bush type that can be contained in a pot and placed anywhere in the garden or patio. Give it a try.
