Department Of Transportation

Our work with the DOT is how we do our part in the community, by helping the directional boring crews and utility crews adding new lines; so that new utilities can ultimately be provided to new and old housing developments and businesses that stem off of these main roads.

Whether its new utilities or new roads being put in place or re-paved, we are prepared to help mitigate any situation involving utility crossings or conflicts. We strive to look ahead of our clients and make sure every possible utility is well identified. Avoiding utility strikes is everyones responsibility, and we believe in due diligence by all parties involved. Utility strikes can affect everyone nearby and even miles away in certain cases. The direct result of utility strikes is destruction of property and even loss of life or lives, the long term results can be an ultimate monetary cost to the public, families affected, and businesses damaged or closed from the monetary cost.

When you decide to partner with PRO GPR, you make the decision to partner with a company who understands the risks and serious nature of our profession. We show up with a peace of mind, knowing we have training and protocols set in place to ensure the success of all involved parties.
