

CHARACTERS.

Unless specified below, casting is color blind. The goal should be an overall diverse cast, reflecting the diversity of a modern American city.

DANI, female, 24, an aspiring writer, played by an actress of color.

JEFF, male, 20's, Dani's maybe/maybe-not boyfriend.

CASEY, female, 24, Dani's friend/coworker at Randy's. Band member. Also plays JESSICA, mid-20s.

MILES, male, late 20's, Dani's coworker at Randy's. Band member.

WAYNE, male, late 20's, Dani's coworker at Randy's. Band member.

CHARLIE, male, late 20's, Dani's coworker at Randy's. Band member.

RANDY, male, mid to late 30's, owner/manager of Randy's Daily Grind. Also plays the "music agent" customer.

ERICA, female, 24, college acquaintance of Dani's, played by a white actress.

ANNE, Dani's sister, 29. Double cast with Erica. Also plays RACHEL WHEELER, late 20s.

MOM, Dani's mother, 60's.

BABY, Anne's infant son. Double cast with Randy.

KATHERYN HOYT, female, 41, professional writer/editor. Double cast with Mom.

ENSEMBLE. Optional. 3 or more, any part not specified here can be played by an ensemble which, in addition to the cast, can be used as coffee shop customers, background dancers, BookWise audience, etc. An ensemble is not necessary, however.

SETTING.

A large American city, 2019, last Tuesday.

Suddenly, Randy opens the staff door and it slams against the wall. The music instantly cuts and the gang freezes. Randy is controlled frustration.

He paces to the stereo system and turns on new music – soft, easy listening music. Randy takes a deep breath to bring down his anger levels and enhance managerial impactfulness.

RANDY. Everybody, please get over here. (They shuffle to one corner of the bar) Can someone remind me the rule about store music?

Beat.

CASEY. ...Pre-approved / music only.

RANDY. (ending Casey's sentence with her) Pre-approved music only, thank you, Casey. And what was I hearing from the back room?

CASEY. Jams.

RANDY. Not pre-approved jams, Casey. You know I support your music. I respect the fact that you all have a creative interest outside of work (frustration mounts) that takes all your focus away from this even though it's your actual job (pulling back) and I'm sorry, we're back on topic. When you play your music on the loudspeaker, that's not what Randy's Daily Grind is about.

CHARLIE. Word.

RANDY. Please save your comments 'til the end, Charlie. My brand – the Randy brand-y – is great coffee at fair prices with excellent service. Okay? I encourage your creativity – that's what makes us different from our corporate competitors. But we need to be “on brand”, to use your generation's vernacular. Can we strive toward that goal?

Dani bursts in. They all turn and look.

DANI. Sorry there was a delay.

RANDY. You've gotta be freakin' kidding me, Dani!

Maybe some of the customers hear and turn. Randy storms off and slams the door. He quickly reopens it.

RANDY (cont). I'll be back, soon. Have an empowering day.

He slams the door again.

DANI. Randy's pissed.

CASEY. Yeah, he's on crack today.

DANI. He put this music on?

Dani changes it with her phone to a grooving instrumental of 'Gotta Go Fast'. The Coffee Shop Gang looks a bit wary. Maybe someone eyes the back door to see if Randy's about to come back out.

DANI. It's pre-approved, don't worry. I'm the Randy whisperer.

WAYNE. Charlie, see how many people listened.

CHARLIE (checking his phone). Whoa. We're at four monthly listeners.

WAYNE. Boom! That's four people we got in less than thirty minutes.

CASEY. That's just us.

WAYNE. Exactly! We're not even breaking a sweat. Do the math. Imagine if we kept this pace up.

CASEY. No, Wayne. The four listeners are just us.

Wayne processes and then deflates.

CHARLIE (trying to bring back the cheer). But that demo!

DANI (looking at the phone). You're on all the streaming apps, now?? This looks really legit, guys.

CHARLIE. Yeah the 'official' release is tonight after the show. This morning's the... um... (he looks to Wayne)

WAYNE (still a bit crestfallen). Soft release.

CHARLIE. Soft release.

DANI. You said the show's tonight?

CASEY. Yeah. We're opening for Jeff, fool.

DANI. What!?

CHARLIE. Didn't you see the flyer?

Charlie hands her the flyer.

DANI. Charlie, this still has last month's date on it.

CHARLIE. That's my bad, team.

CASEY. But you got a facebook invite, right?

Casey looks at Charlie.

CHARLIE. That's also my bad, team.

The others shake their head.

DANI. It's fine! As long as it's before Jeff's set, I can make it.

They ad lib 'yes!', 'thank you, Dani', 'hell yeah'.

MILES. You're still like our only fan who's not related to us so much appreciated.

CHARLIE. And then we can all hang at the partayy!

The others express their enthusiasm (e.g. 'woo!', 'yeah, you know it'.)

DANI. What?

CASEY. Seven-year anniversary of working for Randycakes!

DANI (almost involuntary out of disgust). Seven?!

CASEY. Yeah, I know. It's super sad. But we plan on getting insanely wasted!

The others laugh and agree.

WAYNE. And it's also the official demo release after-party.

CASEY. Sure.

DANI (trying to get it straight). So, the soft release is... here, right now.

Wayne affirms.

DANI (cont). The official release is the show. And then there's a release party after the show.

WAYNE. And a pre-livestream before the party.

CASEY. What?

CHARLIE. Wait, now I'm confused.

Randy peaks his head out the back door.

RANDY. Are we being professionals right now?

*They all ad lib mutter (e.g., 'yup', 'yep', 'we're working') as they shuffle away from each other.
Randy slowly shuts the door again.*