Spreading true Hope across the world, beginning in our backyard.

Together, every year we launch the broadcast season of The Public Square® Media Network with a unique two-hour multi-media variety show called Christmas in America. Each episode we go looking for the Manger in a specific year in American history. The 2023 edition is titled, Christmas in America 1928 and was recorded with the encouragement of two sellout audiences in Nashville, Tennessee and Cleveland, Ohio.

The only way to explain this amazing celebration is to simply invite you to pull up a chair around your Christmas tree, or fill up your coffee mug for a drive and tune in and listen. If we could share just one gift this year with dear friends just like you, it would be this broadcast.

Here is how you can listen to Christmas in America 1928 and share this celebration with everyone you love.

Will the day arrive when children will no longer know the words to “Silent Night”?

We all know America is at a critical point in history. Not a day goes by where we don't hear from people totally frustrated with the conglomerated media stranglehold over the news, elections, and public

*"Man shall not live by bread alone but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God."
- Mt. 4:4, Deut. 8:3, Lk. 4:4*

Dear Arlene,

Have you ever stopped to wonder where hope comes from? Can a person or any people or society survive without hope?

For most of human history, individuals, families and societies have wrestled with this question. In almost every instance, the concept of hope has flowed from a source outside the individual person. Most often people have turned to a source that is above and beyond the human experience.

So where is hope to be found in America today? Is the answer found in "Science" or perhaps in "Government"? Is hope found in a series of academic degrees or institutions or perhaps in amassing economic wealth? Where does hope come from for those without wealth or degrees or youth and health or strong families?

In human history, there is one moment of hope that stands apart from all the rest. It is both a culmination and a beginning. That moment is wholly above this earth yet lands squarely on the ground. It comes from the heavens and meets all humanity on earth.

That day is still celebrated by billions of people every year as the day the calendar of history was split into forms of time. There was a day when Hope was formed at best in a question. Then a day came where Hope would forever be defined as an answer.
