The Parson's Place

HAPPY SUMMER!

Please make sure to let me know your pastoral needs, as they arise, and please also continue to pray for one another. I believe in the power of prayer! If you've never tried the 7:30 service, Morning Prayer, Evening Prayer, or Compline online, etc. please treat yourself to these things. ALSO, let's renew our concerted effort to welcome people on Sunday mornings, to stretch out our hands and eyes and hearts to those in our midst during the Peace, and to invite folks to coffee hour! The term "Coffee Hour" doesn't obligate one to stay for an hour, but to simply meet one another, maybe share a snack, and to smile and share and chat. Please come into Martin Hall if you've never been a part of this. Please know that you are most welcomed! This month features Independence Day, a Little Egg Harbor Yacht Club Sunday (14th), and our Church Anniversary on July 9th!

Gracious God we give thanks as we celebrate the anniversary of Holy Innocents' Church on July 9th and the journey that started so many years ago - and so many plans ago - and so many dreams ago. We celebrate all the joys that have been birthed in these wonderful years. We celebrate all the happy times, all the accomplishments, and all the triumphs. Thank you, Lord, for blessing us. We acknowledge that there have been and will continue to be struggles. Yet, we have traveled together under your protection and love. Thank You, Lord, for being with us in good times and bad. We ask, Lord, that you would continue to protect us, guide us and sustain us as we go forth from this day. Amen.

In Treasuring God in Our Traditions, Noël Piper names God as the inventor of tradition. In Exodus 12:42, for example, God wants his people to remember all his works, to honor him for what he's done, and to tell their children and grandchildren what they have witnessed.

That particular scene is about the Passover, but how can we apply the same principles to our other anniversaries? Anniversaries are about remembering our vows before God.

I periodically pull out my ordination vows from the BCP and my ordination bulletin and examine them again, bit by bit. Clergy do this together each Holy Week in the annual diocesan Chrism mass where we also renew our ordination vows. We discuss and read how to remain faithful, and we pray for my colleagues, for you, and for myself.

Have you tried that on important anniversaries or days of celebration? Check in with the friends and family who celebrated a major event with you. Laugh and reminisce about the day, look at pictures that highlight the joys experienced, learn from the hard lessons, hope for continued strength and rejoice in your fellowship together!

Church Dedication Anniversary Prayer
by Paul Berchtold, February, 2011

Let us celebrate a grand feast,
From the greatest to the least,
Let us rejoice, on this happy morn,
The special day our church was born.

God bless those who planted the seed,
And those who gave to every need,
And those who labored, with such care,
To build this church, God's House of Prayer.

May we follow their example bright,
Generously live, do what's right,
Like them, may we, give God our best,
So our souls can find his rest.

May all who come find peace and light,
May God's presence and his might,
Gently guard this holy place,
May all find joy, abundant grace.

Thank you, God, for what's been done,
Here at this place, through your Son,
May your work, keep on growing,
Love and peace overflowing. Amen.

We prepare and donate 75 bagged meals to Bright Harbor on the second Wednesday of each month. Those meals are then distributed to Ocean County residents living outdoors, at risk families, and a youth group.

On June 12, thanks to the generous donations from Holy Innocents' parishioners, we also delivered:

- over 1200 diapers
- 75 containers of baby wipes
- 140 jars of baby food
- 3 cases of formula

Containers of baby lotion and baby powder

These items will be sent to the NJ Mental Health Association/Ocean County division MORE project which is providing support to mothers in recovery.

So far in 2024 we have produced 420 bagged meals. Please join us from 9:30 until 11 on Wednesday, July 10 for our next gathering. We make sandwiches, peel and slice carrots, bag cookies, stuff bags, and manage to laugh a lot. All are welcome. Contact Alexa Fahner for additional information.

In the Spotlight

Parishioner Spotlight is a regular feature in The Post. The purpose is to provide insights into the background and personalities of our fabulous parishioners!

We hope you enjoy getting to know the people of Holy Innocents'!

July Parishioner Spotlight ~ Anne DeSouza

I grew up in the suburbs of Pittsburgh. I received a Bachelor's degree in nursing and subsequently got certified as an occupational therapist, because I wanted to create and plan programs for patients. Unfortunately, I then had brain surgery at the age of 24. After my recovery from this surgery, I moved to Philadelphia because the public transportation was good there.

I worked as an occupational therapist and got a job with the State of Pennsylvania in Norristown, PA. While living in Bryn Mawr, I met my husband Al, and we were married in 1994.

We moved to Beach Haven in 2013. I started going to Holy Innocents' because it was close to our home and I really liked Father Frank. I also like

One of my favorite scripture verses is Psalm 23.

I have some issues with a pinched nerve at this time but would be happy to help in any activities at church once I am feeling better.

enjoyed the game nights that we used to have. I also like coffee hours and have enjoyed many of the concerts that are presented in the spring.

I like to eat anything I don't have to cook, and enjoy many of the local restaurants. I enjoy the Surflight Theater and the Barnegat Lighthouse. I also joined the Healthy Bones program (offered through the LBI Health Department and the State of NJ) a few years ago, and it is very important to me.

I like rock and roll and especially folk music from the '60s. I have really enjoyed the Messiah Sing every year at Holy Innocents. Al usually sings with the tenor section.

Sustainable Air Conditioning Solutions to Try This Summer

By Maureen Wise

Summer is one of the best times to get outside and enjoy nature's wonders. Hiking, biking, camping, and kayaking are all great ways to enjoy the outdoors with your friends and family. But, once you're indoors, you likely head straight for an air-conditioned space to cool down. Eco-conscious individuals may wonder about the environmental impact of air conditioning and how to choose more sustainable options. We've rounded up some sustainable air conditioning solutions as well as ways to cool your home without using as much electricity.

Impact of Air Conditioning Use

According to the US Energy Information Administration, 87 percent of homes in the United States use air conditioning equipment. On average, use of this equipment accounts for 12 percent of our overall home energy usage. This equipment can also have a significant impact on the environment. Project Drawdown, a research initiative working to both rank problems and create solutions for climate change, put refrigerant management in the top ten climate change mitigation measures. To cool air, window AC units and whole-house systems use fluorocarbon refrigerants. Older varieties of these refrigerants—such as hydrofluorocarbons—are being phased out after 2020, reports the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency. This is because they are known to deteriorate the ozone layer in the stratosphere, which warms the planet and reduces the atmosphere's ability to shield us from UV rays.

AC Alternatives - There are a number of sustainable air conditioning solutions you might consider as alternatives to traditional air conditioners powered by fluorocarbon refrigerants.

Evaporative Cooling- This cooling system is best in arid climates where humid air feels cooler than dry air. The solution cools warm, outdoor air by moving it over or through water-saturated pads. The air evaporates the water and is cooled by 15 to 40 degrees Fahrenheit! This cooler air is then pushed into the home as warm air is pushed out, creating a breeze effect that also cools the space. This system requires only a quarter of the energy needed for traditional refrigerant systems, according to the Department of Energy \(DOE\).

Whole House Fans - Typically, a whole house fan is installed in the attic and moves air up and out of the house. These large fans move the air automatically, creating air movement that causes a cooling effect. The DOE compares the cost of a whole house fan to a traditional window air unit. The fan system costs about one to five cents per hour of use, while a traditional system costs more than seventeen cents per hour.

Geothermal Cooling -Like geothermal heating, this system takes advantage of the constant 54-degrees-Fahrenheit temperature underground to cool liquid-filled pipes. While geothermal systems use energy to move liquid around, little energy is introduced to cool air. According to the Energy Environmental Corporation, geothermal cooling is 43 percent more efficient than traditional methods.

Radiant Cooling According to the DOE, radiant cooling works by absorbing heat in a room through systems installed in the floor or ceiling. Typically, these systems use aluminum panels that circulate chilled water to absorb the heat. This type of cooling is best in arid environments, since condensation and mold can be a concern. In spaces that already have radiant heating, a similar radiant cooling system can also be installed. Oorja Energy Engineering reports that radiant cooling uses 30 percent less energy compared with refrigerant-based AC units.

Ceiling Fans - Fans placed at the top of a room move air around the whole space as opposed to the limited circulation of a window fan. The DOE tells us that, when used in conjunction with an air conditioner, ceiling fans make the room feel four degrees cooler, meaning you can use your AC less.

Tips for Reducing AC Energy Use

If you're not ready to install an AC alternative quite yet, you can still reduce your home cooling costs. Keep a running tally of how long your AC unit is running, and then calculate your cooling energy costs with this Energy Use Calculator. Try putting some of the following ideas in place and see how much you save! (Be sure to use comparable temperature days.)

Keep blinds and curtains closed during the day to prevent sunlight from heating your room.

Sip icy drinks.

Have a water balloon fight, dip in a pool, or play in the sprinkler with the kids.

Check your attic ventilation. Warm air rises to the top of your home. If your attic remains hot, the rest of your house won't be able to get as cool.

Open windows on opposite sides of the home and across rooms to create cross breezes.

Keep the oven off.

Put your pillow in the freezer to cool it down before going to bed.

Change the air filters on your home air handling system (furnace or otherwise) on a regular schedule. This will improve how it runs and can help both your AC and your home heating system work more efficiently.

Install a programmable thermostat to let your home get warmer while you are away and only lower the temperatures when you are there.

Seal and caulk around doors, windows, and foundations to keep the warm air out and the cool air in. Similar to home heating, you want the air that you are cooling to stay in your home—not escape.

Why It's Good - Using less energy to cool your home can help you save money and reduce your family's carbon footprint. Submitted by: Caroline Carson

On Saturday, June 15th, a CPR/AED Training Class was held in Martin Hall from 9:00 am to 12:00 pm. Eleven people learned how and became certified in giving CPR on both adults and infants and how to use the AED (Automated External Defibrillator). It was a great class! We hope to have another class in the future and expand into basic first aid as well.
