ROAD AND HOUSE NUMBERING

County and township roads are numbered according to a grid system designated by the numbered index appearing along the county boundaries. The grid interval is nominally one mile. Roads running east and west are assigned an even number and roads running north and south are assigned an odd number. For example, Twp. Rd. 150 runs east and west and is approximately 1.5 miles south of the north county line. Roads ending in "75" are diagonal or meandering roads. These roads do not fit the grid system, but their general location can be determined using either the horizontal or vertical grid indexes. State and federal highways do not conform to this system.

House numbers are assigned using the same grid numbering system.

Facts About Ashland County

Ashland County was formed by the Ohio General Assembly on February 24, 1846 from portions of Richland, Wayne, Huron and Lorain Counties. The three northern townships belonged to what was known as the Connecticut Western Reserve and their inclusion in Ashland County was bitterly opposed as the "Rape of the Firelands". Ashland County's southern most boundary line was originally a part of the Greenville Treaty Line, which was signed in 1795. It permitted northeast Ohio to remain as hunting grounds for the Indians. The City of Ashland, formerly known as Uniontown, was laid out in 1815 by William Montgomery. In April of 1846, Ashland was selected over Hayesville as the county seat by a majority of 680 votes.

Ashland County is divided by the continental divide into two primary watersheds by a range of uplands extending in a northeasterly direction from the middle portion of Clear Creek Township to the middle portion of Sullivan Township. The lands lying north of this divide are primarily level, sloping gently to the north and draining into Lake Erie. Progressing south from the dividing line, the terrain ranges from gently rolling to rugged and hilly, draining south to the Ohio River. Ashland County, with its many acres of prime agricultural land, is proud of its rural heritage.

Ashland County has excellent outdoor recreational areas such as Charles Mill Reservoir and Pleasant Hill Reservoir, which provide boating, fishing and camping facilities. Mohican State Forest, covering nearly 6,000 acres in Hanover Township, provides numerous activities including camping, canoeing, picnicking, hiking and horseback riding. The Loudonville area, known as "The Camp and Canoe Capital of Ohio" attracts many tourists to the area.

The City of Ashland has gained fame as the "Balloon Capital of the World" with its latex industries. The annual Balloonfest celebrates our world status and is a major attraction to our area. Ashland is also a leader in water pumps, medical supplies, and the publishing of children's books. Ashland University, founded in 1841, brings students from all over the world to study in a safe and beautiful environment.
