

Upset Prevention & Recovery Training Network Code of Conduct

UPRN will demonstrate our commitment to the safe and professional operation of our aircraft by the continuous development of safety, training, and evaluation programs for dissemination to the members of UPRN.

In order to achieve our Mission, the Upset Prevention & Recovery Training Network and its members must accept the responsibility to conduct themselves in the most professional and ethical manner as described below.

We pledge to develop and maintain:

- Integrity
- Adherence to regulations, limitations and rules of basic common sense
- Personal responsibility and accountability, conservative practices and personal minimums leading to a safety mindset
- Tools for risk management, and aeronautical decision making, leading to the highest levels of safety
- An environment that promotes excellence, professionalism, and higher education rather than minimum standards
- A system for educating and mentoring of all levels of curious aviators
- A commitment to continuing education through evaluation and personal improvement, including recurrent training
- Opportunities for members and clients to experience challenging scenarios in a controlled learning environment
- Respect for the privilege of flight
