CHRISPUS NYAANGA

Chrispus Nyaanga (born 2001) is a Nairobi-based visual artist whose practice explores the simplification of life's complexities and the relationship between individuals and their communities.

His work reflects on the social, cultural, and environmental influences that shape these connections.

Nyaanga's artistic vision is deeply rooted in his upbringing within the informal settlements of Nairobi, an experience that continues to inform his focus on architectural structures and cultural narratives.

Working primarily with acrylics and collage, he employs a sharp, vibrant color palette, often integrating text and cut-outs that echo the internal dialogues and unspoken conversations of daily life.

He has participated in a residency program at St. Andrew's Turi and has held a solo exhibition at the Mombasa Art Gallery titled Breaking Expectations. His group exhibitions include Don't Be Squared at Akka Project (Italy), pop-up shows at Nord Rhein-Westfalen (Germany), Open Studio (USA), the National Museums of Kenya, the International School of Kenya, Mukuru Art Collective, and Banana Hill Art Gallery.

EXHIBITION STATEMENT

Home / House / Houses / Home invites us to look beyond the structures of corrugated iron and reclaimed wood to see the living, breathing organism of a community. In the slum, walls are translucent—stories spill across thresholds, voices carry through alleys, and daily life is shared as naturally as breath. This exhibition maps the intimate networks that bind people together: courtyards that become collective living rooms, alleys that double as playgrounds and marketplaces, and the single water tap that anchors ritual, gossip, and camaraderie.

Each work explores a facet of this ecosystem:

- The Home – a private sanctuary filled with meaning.
- The House – a physical entity, born of ingenuity.
- The Houses – in their multitude, creating interdependence and shared responsibility
- Home again – expanded into the neighborhood-wide embrace of belonging.

This is not just shelter. It is solidarity, resilience, and the profound dignity of lives woven together. Welcome to a reimagining of Home—where many houses become one home.
