A Journey Between Love & Breakups

“THOUGHTS INKED IN POEMS AND TALES”

“In this captivating book, Mousey has exceptional use of words capture by detailed observation of the subject, defining feelings, emotions, actions, and ideas poetically in a very fresh prose, swinging the reader between happy moments of love and sad moment of solitude and nostalgia.”

—AMAZON REVIEW

Prose poetry on love and heartbreaks that takes the readers into a journey of ups and downs, touching the bitter and sweeter moments, embracing the duality of a heart that joyfully falls in and out of love with a sidekick of pain. 104 pages filled with ink and illustrations that embraces the contrast of life and submerged in an ocean of feelings!

MOUSEY was born in Brooklyn, in a Haitian household on April 17, 1972, as Jerry Jean-Baptiste. He was the youngest of six siblings raised in Queens, New York. A high school graduate with a deep love for poetry. After having a tragic car accident that left his left side of the body motionless and numb, he successfully exploited his writing potential filled with love as his diction captivated peers.
