PREPARE for IMPACT! Isn't that what we do daily in our nonprofits – literally and metaphorically?

Even though every day is about impact, figuring out how to talk about it is difficult for many nonprofit professionals. What to measure, how to track it, and then to effectively frame the information in grant proposals, on the website, for the community, to partners, through fundraising messages, and more can be daunting and time-consuming.

Besides the word "storytelling," its buddy "leverage" gets the eye-roll almost as often in the nonprofit world!

However, leveraging is crucial for your organization or project if you want to be around a year or ten years from now! And understanding how (and where), when, and why to leverage partnerships is key.

Different aspects of your organization generate varying partnerships. Not all are created equal, nor are all leveraged exactly the same.

FROM SWOT TO SWOON:

USING YOUR SWOT ANALYSIS IN GRANTOR, DONOR, LEADERSHIP, AND BOARD MESSAGING

2-hr workshop

Thurs., Nov. 13, 2025

10 AM - 12 Noon EST

Online, interactive format

LIMITED SPOTS - Register NOW

Your SWOT Analysis is just a few clicks away from being the narratives that secure grants, major gifts, community partners, even board members and volunteers!

During the workshop, you will develop a SWOT Analysis; then turn your nonprofit's Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities, and Threats into compelling, comprehensive talking points in a few easy steps.

Cost Per Unit of Service (CPUS) might be your new best friend, and not one of those high-maintenance friends that take up a lot of time or cause you quiet frustration!

Many nonprofit professionals think they need to be math majors or quantitative geniuses to be able to confidently calculate or talk about how much it really costs - uh, what a funder's support can do - to accomplish the mission.
