MY HUSBAND AND CHILDREN
Dear Reader:

Here is your copy of the Zweifel genealogy; namely TREE TALK. It is not a large book, but I hope that you will find it interesting.

Please excuse any typographical errors. Any of you who have had the experience of typing on an electric typewriter after using a manuel for many years, will realize how frustrating it can be. It seemed the letter "J" was always in the way, and I threatened to remove the key, but someone suggested that I might need it to spell "John"! The printers said that an electric typewriter with a carbon ribbon made the nicest looking copy, and I agree. As these books have been made up using the instant litho printing process, I will have to assume the responsibility for any typing errors, as each page is an exact duplicate of the original typewritten sheet.

This book is the culmination of nearly seven years of time. I checked back through my work sheets and found that the first record that I received from Glarus Switzerland was August 5, 1965. Naturally, if this were my business, I could have done it in less time, and more extensively, but there would be long periods when it seemed there wasn't much spare time to work on it.

There are extra sheets in the back of the book for additional records for your own personal use. However, the people that I have visited with feel that it would be a good idea to try to keep our book up to date. If every family would send me the happenings for the year, I would make an effort to have a supplement made up to send to everyone who has a book. Please send your records to me so that I will have them by February 1, 1973 for the year 1972, and by February 1 for each succeeding year. Be sure to write clearly, using full names, including maiden names of brides and all mothers. Please spell the month when giving dates, as using figures for both can be very confusing.

Thank you again for your cooperation. It really would be wonderful to meet all of you.

Sincerely,

Lona Smith

FOREWORD

Many of us are ardent readers, so we find ourselves familiar with the style and manner of presentation of material in the particular books that we enjoy reading. Invariably, when we pick up a novel, we thumb through the introductory pages to see what information we can glean about the author, to see if a synopsis of the story has been given, or to whom the book has been dedicated. We usually find a page which bears a message much like the following:

"All characters in this book are fictitious, and any similarity in names, places, and incidents is purely coincidental".

Now, contrary to fiction, if a page for a similar purpose were to be found in a book given over to the genealogy of a specific family, the lines, without a doubt, would read:

"All characters in this book are real. Similarity in names, places, and incidents is certainly to be expected. Each person has lived, and has done his small part to preserve and insure the continuance of the family heritage".

The cast of characters in this book include you, your ancestors, and your descendants. You should be proud to be a part of it.

I would like to take this opportunity to tell you that I have enjoyed compiling the material for this book. Granted, there were many times when I was doubtful of the outcome, and was disheartened because it progressed so slowly, but with the combination of time, patience and perseverance, the end result has been most rewarding. It is by no means a masterpiece, but rather a very commonplace piece of work.

It is almost a certainty that there will be some errors, as many times records were contradictory, and handwriting of contributors was often difficult to decipher. The author does not assume any responsibility for errors that may be found in the material contained herein. All records have been accepted in good faith as given by family members, and have been reproduced as accurately as possible.
INTRODUCTION

This book is about the Zweifels of Linthal, canton Glarus, Switzerland way back THEN, and the descendants of those Zweifels in the United States as of NOW. THEN goes back to about 1555; NOW is 1972. Many changes have taken place during the interim; a fact that is well established as you read about the death of one generation and the birth of another.

I have given you the earliest records that was possible for me to obtain from Glarus, Switzerland. The Swiss people are to be commended on their early awareness that it was important and beneficial to record all of their vital statistics. I read about one lady (she must have had the patience of Job) who had obtained 60,000 names of Swiss ancestors, all of whom had been thoroughly identified. Some records go back as far as 1520. From this, I feel very fortunate to have gone back as far as about 1555. You will note, as you read, that I have taken just the male Zweifels in direct line until we come to the Adam Zweifel who came to America. From this generation on, I have tried to include every descendant of our Adam Zweifel. You will also become aware of the fact that several of our early Zweifels married Zweifels, but Dr. Edward Fisher of the archives office assured me that there were many, many Zweifel families in Switzerland, and occasionally they did intermarry, but were never closely related.

On the following pages, I have given a key for you to study, which explains the abbreviations that I have used. Also, I have given an example showing the system by which the records have been set up. Please read it carefully; then I would suggest that you look in the back of the book for the index. All names are alphabetized (last name first) and numbered; so choose a person whose record you are familiar with. Find the number for the person that you have in mind, then check carefully, comparing notes with the example given. You will find that the system is quite simple, and it will be no trick at all to locate any person listed in the book. I think it will be well worth your time to take a few minutes to familiarize yourself with the procedure before beginning to read. After you have become acquainted with the style of writing used, I sincerely hope that you will have many hours of pleasurable reading from the pages of TREE TALK.

KEY TO READING LINEAGE

The generations are listed in direct line by male Zweifels only until the Adam Zweifel who came to the United States. Beginning with his children, the family tree branches out to include every descendant.

Following is given a brief outline as to the system used in relating the genealogical records for each person mentioned in the book. Reading this will help you to locate any person and his connection with the Zweifel family in a very short time.

An underscored number, such as 10 is a family number; a number in parenthesis, such as (10) indicates the parent's number; and a plain number, such as 10, is for a child. The children's numbers continue in sequence from one family to the next. The spouse's names are given in all capital letters.

In the back of the book, you will find an index listing each person, last name first. Each name has been given a number for easy identification. Let us say, for example, that we want to find the records for Hans Heinrich Zweifel. We look in the index and we find: Zweifel, Hans Heinrich 5. We turn to the front of the book, and we find

5. Hans Heinrich Zweifel (2)
   19. Johann Rudolf*

5 underscored is the family number for Hans Heinrich, (2) in parenthesis tells us to go back to 2 where we find that his parents are Fridolín Zweifel and ELIZABETH STEUSSI. Although Fridolín was married three times, we can identify the mother of his children because her name is given in capital letters.

Returning to No. 5 we find the entire record for Fridolín and the list of his children. Child 19, Johann Rudolf, is identified by an asterisk, so from this we know that he is the child for our direct line. In a very few minutes we have located Hans Heinrich Zweifel, his parents, his birth, death, marriage, wife and her dates, and their children. Supposing that you want to continue with his grandchildren, simply look for 19, and you will find the same information for Johann Rudolf. Every generation for each family continues in this manner.

When listing the children of a family, a birthdate and to whom married, has been given when known. This has been done so that ages can be compared and spouses found readily without having to look for the individual family records, which carries the same information. In cases where a child has died without being married, the death date is also given for him with this listing.

Adopted children are not given individual numbers in sequence as they are not in direct line. They have been given the family number followed by an "A". Children, who are not old enough to marry, have never married, or have died, have been given a number, and will also be indexed with their parent's number. However, they will not be mentioned again. This explains why the numbers will not always run in sequence in the left hand margin of the pages as they are specifically family numbers. Wives and husbands of persons in direct line will also use the family number.

At this point in the Zweifel history, it would be well to quote the pages from Millard Tschudy’s book "New Glarus, Wisconsin" (Mirror of Switzerland) in order that you will be able to better understand the reasons for so many of the Glarmers to leave their homeland to come to the United States. I am sure that Mr. Tschudy spent many hours compiling the material for his book, so I am grateful for the opportunity to pass it along to you exactly as he has written it.

Quote:

CHAPTER 1

PRE-EMISSION

Pre-emigration Glarus

When Nicholas Duerst and Fridolin Streiff, natives of canton (state) Glarus, Switzerland, sailed for the United States early in 1845, they carried with them the hopes and prayers of their fellow-Glarmers for a new home free of the ever-tightening shackles of poverty in the fatherland.

Glarus, by 1844, was in deep economic trouble. Food was scarce, employment dwindling, morals sinking.

Surrounded by the rugged Alps, Glarus had long been populated by families of diverse origin. There were Beckers, Stauffachers, Kunderts, Duersts, others of Germanic ancestry; Heftys, Stuessys, Kublys, Tschudys whose lineage suggested Latin sources.

Centuries of near-isolation, except for occasional military ventures, most notable being the victory of eight hundred Glarmers over several thousand Austrians at Naefels in 1388, had produced a hardy, industrious people capable of adapting to a harsh environment.

The 19th century Glarner, a frugal, sturdy individualist, had learned self-reliance by the time he had learned his alphabet. He had a solemn respect for his neighbor and a strong loyalty, bordering on chauvinism, to his canton. His pleasures were few, his tastes, largely, unsophisticated.

Historically, Glarus was a rural canton. But arable land, owned for the most part by parishes and communes, had been divided and re-divided so often to accommodate increasing population that a family’s allotment was seldom more than a few acres, often only a garden-sized parcel.

To better their economic position, the Glarmers had turned to weaving cloth for export. Unfortunately, the advantages of industry were short-lived. Factories utilizing the numerous swift-running mountain streams as a source of inexpensive water power, mechanized, throwing 2,000 weavers out of work. General economic chaos sweeping across Europe like a tidal wave, had struck remote Glarus.

An 1842 government report reveals that in Matt (population: 800) there were 69 families on the poor list, 21 beggars, and over 100 persons who owned no land. Other Glarus communities fared no better. The desperation of the working people was intensified by a crop failure and higher food prices.

Little grain growing in Alpine areas, most breadstuffs were imported, usually from Hungary and Italy, and even in prosperous times these were limited. Chief food products of the soil were potatoes, beans and other vegetables. Potatoes were of major importance—so much so that a government decree forbade a grower from harvesting his own crop until it had fully matured so that maximum value would be realized. As potato harvest time approached, watchmen stood twenty-four-hour guard over fields to prevent stealing.

Genuine coffee was all but unknown and the beverage used in its place was a concoction made of chicory with little or no sugar available for flavoring. Few meals were complete without schab-zieger, an interesting Glarner cheese packed with vitamins and spiced with pulverized leaves of Melilotus coeruliflora, a pungent clover-like plant growing in the Glarner lowlands since its introduction to cloister gardens in the 11th and 12th centuries by crusaders returning from Asia Minor.

The basic ingredient is skim milk coagulated with acid whey. Left to ripen for several weeks, the mixture is molded into small cones to dry and mature until dark green and hard enough to be grated. Glarner schabzieger found its way to Zurich markets by 1429, two centuries later to Germany and the Netherlands. Also called sap-sago, the ancient delicacy, nibbled by New World Swiss, is imported from Glarus and sold in New Glarus shops today. Konrad Schindler, 18th century physician, prescribed it for weak stomach, constipation, fever and ague, dropsy, and melancholia. A Swiss-German verse, possibly an early sales pitch for schabzieger, goes like this:

"Heider oder weider
alte, guete, herte Glarner Schabzieger?
Thr chaend ne use nih,
Thr chaend ne aen all Waend haere khlie--
Und er tuet ech nued verhiie."

Roughly translated:
Do you have or do you want good, old, hard Glarner Schabzieger?
You can take it out,
You can handle it,
You can throw it against a wall
But you can't break it.

Glarner Seek, Find Solution

Glarus officials, seeking a solution for the canton's grave crisis, arranged public meetings. Traditionalists quoted an old proverb: "Bleibe im Land und Ernahe dich redlich" (Remain in the land and support yourself honestly). Progressives had a ready answer: "Bleibet im Land und fresett einander" (Remain in the land and devour each other).

Questionnaires requesting information about founding a colony, forwarded to Swiss consulates throughout Europe and overseas, brought answers from New York, Philadelphia, Madison Co., Ill., Mexico City, Rio de Janeiro, Alexandria, Algiers, Naples, Lisbon, Marseilles, Brussels, Odessa and St. Petersberg. Glarners, wherever they were, dispatched information from their area.
Since most prospective colonists were interested mainly in America, U.S. reports aroused the greatest enthusiasm. Most promising were from middle-west informants. From Madison Co. came word that earlier colonists from Zurich, Bern and Aargau were prospering happy, well-adjusted; ample tracts of rich, inexpensive land were readily available, opportunities for success almost unlimited.

Glarus newspapers carried stories of emigrants departing for America. "This morning two families, fathers, mothers, five children--the oldest, five years--and a grandmother left for America," The "Glarner Zeitung", March 15, 1844, reported: "Today fifty-seven persons from Kerenzen... left for the USA. Accompanied by friends and relatives, the emigrants made a last visit to the cemetery to pay their respects."

Emigration, occasionally suggested, was more and more discussed. A list for names of persons interested in organized emigration was circulated. The March 20, 1844, edition of the "Neuen Glarner Zeitung" printed this notice: "Persons who have signed to join an emigration to North America, others who wish to join, those with any interest in such a project are requested to attend a meeting at noon, Sunday, March 24th, at the Schwarzen Adler in Glarus. Purpose of this meeting is to discuss ways and means of organizing an emigration unit to found a 'New Glarus' in the American state of Missouri.

More than 100 persons attended, ready to forsake their ancient ties in Glarus for the welfare of their families. On April 16, delegates from Diesbach, Elm, Ennenda, Haslen, Luchingen, Mollis, Netstal, Nidurn, Schwanden, and Sool agreed to support an emigration.

Swiss government officials reported that several independent emigrants had been swindled into paying for passages on non-existent ships and advised prospective emigrants to act as a unit. The U.S. consul in Basel warned against signing any papers not fully understood, pointing out that in the past, port city "labor-brokers" had signed trusting emigrants into virtual bondage.

The "Glarner Zeitung" on July 19 announced that an organized emigration would have several important advantages: costs could be held to a minimum, supervision and assistance simplified, homsickness and general despair reduced.

Rules governing the emigration:
1. Emigration shall be as a unit to found a community, preferably in Ohio, Missouri, Illinois or Indiana.
2. Every family is to receive twenty acres paid by the Emigration Society, the amount to be repaid by the colonists. Expenses of travel to be paid by emigrants.
3. Expenses of two advance men to be paid by the society.
4. All agreements are to be ratified by participating communities of Glarus and the Glarus government.

Judge Nicholas Duerst, forty-eight, and M. Marty, English-speaking teacher who withdrew shortly to be replaced by Fridolin Streiff, twenty-nine, a blacksmith, were selected to precede the main body to locate and buy land to fill the needs of the entire group.

Instructions to Duerst and Streiff:
1. Agents will travel from Switzerland, via Havre to New York.
2. They will find $2,500 deposited with the Bourry & Ivernois Credit Co., New York City.
3. Agents will not draw money before land has been or is about to be selected.
4. On arrival in New York, agents will seek out William H.
Blumer, Allentown, Pa., and follow his advice on how to proceed.

5. Agents will consider climate, soil adaptable for grain and cattle.
6. Agents need not necessarily buy government land but must not exceed $1.25 per acre, the price of government land.
7. Agents must get land in one tract near readily available means of communication and transportation.
8. Land is to be divided into timber, bottom, and field land to make partition as equitable as possible.
9. Agents will escort emigrants from St. Louis to new home and supervise fair land distribution.
10. Agents will supervise families on arrival and until colony is established, but colonists are to defray their own expenses.
11. In all difficult matters, agents are to consult Blumer and the credit company.
12. Agents must allocate land for raising food and feed.
13. Land purchases are to be made in the name of "Emigration Society of the Canton of Glarus." Duerst must have lands platted, divided into lots, numbered, recorded with names of owners. Heads of families will draw lots for twenty-acre parcels. Costs and money advances to be repaid in ten years with no interest charges. Streiff is to keep a copy of said plats and all papers; also an account of all land owners, changes in families, and other pertinent data.
14. Agents will provide, as soon as possible, for a church and school and relief of the poor.
15. When agents agree that the above instructions have been executed, Duerst will return to Switzerland.
16. Streiff will remain with the colonists, reporting to the society from time to time on the progress of the colony.
17. Duerst will receive one dollar per day, plus expenses until his return. Streiff will receive whatever remuneration the executive committee feels just and proper.

Duerst and Streiff: Old Glarus to New Glarus

Duerst and Streiff, on March 8, 1845, set out from Switzerland for the eight-day coach journey to Havre, France, and March 16 boarded a packet ship bound for the U.S.

After a stormy seven-weeks-long voyage the pair debarked in New York, May 6. Following instructions, they sought out William Blumer in Allentown, long time resident well qualified to advise the foreigners.

On May 10, at Easton, Pa., Duerst and Streiff were joined by Josua Frey, who travelled with them in the search for land. The trio proceeded by mail coach to Somerville, N.J., City, boarded the steamer EMPIRE to Albany, again by rail, arriving in Buffalo, May 14.

Frey's journal affords an interesting account of their travels to the middlewest:

"Took passage on steamer BUNKER HILL for Detroit same evening (May 14), arrived at Detroit, May 16. Next day proceeded across the state of Michigan by stage and rail to St. Louis.

"Thence by steamer to Chicago, arriving there on the morn of the nineteenth. We went to the United States land office in that town and examined maps and plats, and found that nearly all timber land in that land district was either pre-empted or sold, but a great amount of prairie land was yet open for entry.

"Next day we took stage for Dixon, on Rock River. On the way we crossed immense prairies, reaching an unbroken level so far as the eye could see. The main road passes through Aurora, the neighborhood of which is quite well settled.

"Arrived at Dixon, May 21, having rode all night. We went to the United States land office and found an immense quantity of prairie land yet subject to entry, but the woodland was mostly taken. The same afternoon we traveled northward along Rock River to Oregon City. May 23, we again return to Dixon.

"The land on both sides of Rock River is very fine and productive. May 24, we went by stage to Princeton, a little village surrounded by rich lands. Twenty-fifth, being Sunday, we rested.

"Twenty-sixth, examined a tract of timber known as Devil's Grove, but found that it was already entered; could have bought 240 acres for $1,000. Twenty-seventh, went to Peru on the Illinois River. Twenty-eighth, as the water was too low in the river for boats to land, we hired a team to take us to Hennepin.

"Thirtieth, went on steamer to St. Louis, where we arrived June 1. As the expected emigrants had not yet come, we authorized Mr. Wild of that city to take charge of them when they arrived to send us word of their arrival, and to provide temporary quarters for them."

Exploration continued by stage, horseback and on foot into Missouri, passing through St. Charles, Warrenton, Danville, Mexico, Florida, Palmyra and Marion.

The trio boarded the steamer DI VERNON for Keokuk in Iowa Territory, went across country to Winchester, Fairfield, and Mt. Pleasant; east to Bloomington on the Mississippi, and Galena, early communications, transportation and commercial center.

They explored the Wisconsin Territory, going through Plattenville and Belmont arriving at Mineral Point, June 16, to find a letter from Blumer advising that the emigrants should be at Milwaukee.

Failing to find their countrymen, the three left Milwaukee, June 24, and three days later arrived west of Exeter in Green Co. Here, in town four, range seven they discovered a large tract of land, healthy climate, numerous fresh springs, fertile soil; ample timber and convenient routes to markets at Mineral Point, Miwaukee and Galena.

After reconnoitering a few days in the Como, Ill., area and up along the Wisconsin river, they returned to Mineral Point where on July 17, Duerst and Streiff visited the government land office and purchased 1200 acres of land and 80 acres of timber they had inspected June 27.

In Mineral Point Streiff took the first step toward becoming a citizen. He understood little English and was not required to take the usual oath but expressed his fealty by kissing the Bible.

Before leaving for the newly purchased site, Duerst, Streiff and Frey met Theodore Rodolph, an Aargauer who lived in the vicinity for over a decade and offered to guide and assist them.

Here is Rodolph's description of what followed:

"In the summer of 1845 I was visited by two Swiss gentlemen, Messrs. Fridolin Streiff and Nicholas Duerst. They were sent out by the government of the canton of Glarus, in Switzerland, for the purpose of selecting a tract of land whereon to settle a colony of emigrants. I prevailed on my brother, Frederick, who still lived on the farm on which he had settled in 1834, to place his horses at the disposal of these gentlemen and carry them wherever they wished to go. I also engaged a competent surveyor, Arntzi Comfort, to accompany them.

"...We reached a valley in Green County which united all the essential features we needed. There were some squatters whom I knew. One was Stephen Armstrong and his wife, who had been our neighbors in 1834.
The other was a French Canadian whose wife, Boleta, had been a domestic in my mother’s family. We bought the claims of Armstrong and Boleta’s husband, and, having arranged everything satisfactorily, returned to Mineral Point."

Streiff, Duerst and Frey headed for the colony, their last journey together, for Frey was to leave on Aug. 6th for his Pennsylvania home.
Surveyor Comfort arrived July 24th and with Frederick Rodolph measured the site and helped plan a road to Green’s Prairie (southeast York township).
Duerst and Streiff began erecting crude shelters on what is now the south lawn of Swiss Church for the colonists who were soon to come.

CHAPTER II

EMIGRATION

Glarus to Holland

The Emigration Society had agreed to delay emigration until spring 1846 to give Duerst and Streiff ample time to explore carefully all promising areas and complete preparations for the arrival of the colonists.

However, many persons, favoring emigration, threatened to leave, family by family, independent of cantonal control or aid, and pressure for early action increased so rapidly that the sailing date was advanced to April 16, 1845.

The night of April 15, all arrangements complete, 140 persons on emigration rovers and their friends proceeded north toward Ziegelbruecke to Biasche, a landing on the Linth Canal linking the Walensee and Zurichsee, to await the next mornning’s departure. They chose George Legler, Sr. and Jacob Grob spokesmen to settle disputes and speak for the group when united action was required.

Wednesday, the sixteenth, dawned cold and grey. Rain and snow spread a chilly mantle on the somber parting of life-time friends. By sailing time 53 Glarmers had made an overnight decision to forsake the land of their birth for a new life in a new land, so 193 persons turned their backs on the harsh, yet beloved Alps that had dominated their lives, and jammed the ship FELDER bound for Zurich.

As they neared the city, the weather worsened, and Cosmos Blumer, Canton Glarus representative in the Swiss legislature, accompanying his people on the first leg of the journey, arranged for covered wagons to transport women and children to Basle.

The rest shivered through the snowy night, trying to sleep, sitting on the crowded, open deck of a barge. Mathias Duerst, shrewd observer, and as it turned out, competent historian of the group, recorded day-to-day events in pencil in German. His description of the arrival in Basle:

"Just before we got to Basle we caught sight of the wagons wherein our people were packed, going over the Basle bridge. We all arrived at the same time at Basle to our great satisfaction."

April 19, all boarded a Rhine steamer for Rotterdam. It ran only during daylight hours, stopping every night, usually near a town where passengers purchased provisions for the next day. There were no berths or beds, so the Glarmers slept on the hard deck or in lodging houses when the rates were low enough. Travel was slow and tedious, weather cold, wintry, damp. During the eleven days between Basle and Rotterdam, morale deteriorated so far that there was dangerous disorder and threatened mutiny.
From Duerst’s diary:

"On the 30th Apr. we arrived at Rotterdam. Thieves abounded, and several of our people had articles stolen."

They transferred to two coastal boats which were to take them to New Dieppe and their trans-Atlantic ship.

"The night of the 30th to May 1st was to us a night of terror, about midnight a severe storm struck and madly stormed until morning. An anchor was dropped 100 feet from shore, then a rope was thrown to shore and by means of a windlass our vessel was drawn to land and fastened. Only our ship was so fortunate, the other—containing mostly Little Valley people was obliged to cast anchor about 100 rods from land; we were able to get refreshments but not so the others."

At New Dieppe they were delayed while their schooner, the SUPERB, was fitted with berths. Finally, on Tuesday, May 13, everyone chafing at the bit, the SUPERB was pronounced shipshape and pulled by tug six miles, sails set, and the Swiss left Europe.

On the Atlantic

Aboard, each family was responsible for its own meals, often only dried meats and fruits, and cheese. An adult's weekly ration of two-and-one-half pounds of salt pork (almost inedible), eight ounces of flour, two pounds of rice, and rock-hard ship's biscuit did little for the health; dysentery and other disorders being commonplace.

Duerst's observations on the food:

"We greatly wished for our Green Sap Sago cheese to give a better flavor to our rancid, watery potatoes and to strengthen our stomachs."

Wednesday, May 28, just six weeks after departure from Glarus, death struck twice.

"On the 28th we realized the results of our bad lot; we sorrowed over two victims, Anna Beglinger, Rudolf Stauffacher's wife of Matt, after suffering many deaths for several days gave up her spirit this afternoon at 3 o’clock. She was wrapped and sewed into a large linen sheet; three pails full of sand were placed at her feet so as to sink her body. We carried her on deck, laid her on a plank, we sang the first two verses of the 140 hymn, leader Grob read our home funeral service, and so one hour after her death she was sunk into the ocean, where she will undergo no decay, and her bones need not first be sought and gathered at the resurrection.

"On the same day at 7 p.m. the half-year old child of Henry Stauffacher of Matt died. It was bound into a pillow and placed over night in a small boat on deck, the next morning committed to the waves with like services as before; we sang the 142 hymn."

The following Wednesday a baby was born prematurely to the wife of Hilarius Wild of Schwanden, but lost the struggle for life and was consigned to the waves June 5.

Two weeks later:

"This evening the little son Rudolf of Henry Hoesli of Diesbach died;
he declined a long time and suffered from convulsions. It was sad to see him when sick and not able to give him any relief. He was on the morning of 20th (June) with the customary services committed to the waves. We sang the 136 hymn.

"Barbara, mother of the dead child, alone had to watch and care for the dying child. Her husband was confined to his bed by sickness; other friends were weak and seasick. Many a time when no one else would venture on deck in the fierce storm, in greatest danger of being thrown down and washed overboard, she went to cook some warm food for her beloved child."

One Saturday, damp sea air gave way to summery land breezes, warming the bodies and spirits of the Swiss. Two days later, June 30, after a tempestuous, hardship-filled 49-day voyage, they debarked at Baltimore.

They had reached their Promised Land!

To The Middle West

The emigrants had orders to proceed to St. Louis for directions from Duerst and Streiff guiding them to the colony site. Buying passage was difficult. They had clothing, bedding, kitchen utensils, furniture, sets of tools—an accumulation of tons of excess weight. Several days of negotiation netted a contract for transportation at $20 per adult, half-fare for children four to twelve, no charge for youngsters under four. Excess baggage to be carried at a dollar per hundredweight.

Before leaving Baltimore, they witnessed an impressive event. Duerst's observations:

"This day we saw in Baltimore a ceremony performed such as none of us had even seen...funeral obsequies for the late President Jackson. Seven thousand horsemen in vests and white jackets trimmed with black ribbons and crepe rode on splendid white horses. Column after column rode."

Again:

"We had two families who were bare of all money, and could travel no farther than Baltimore, they were Andr. Stussel of Rieden, and Andr. Kundert of Rueti, each had a wife and child, one of them had an offer of employment. Our leaders agreed to give the two men 15 francs which they received and divided."

The colonists left the city on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, their first time on a train, fascinated by broad fields of grain, extensive orchards, and what seemed by comparison to Glarner huts, large homes, to the Susquehanna river and a 14-cent supper at the Golden Eagle tavern in Columbia, Pa.

Of their arrival on canal boats in Pittsburg, Wed., July 9, Duerst noted:

"As we floated into the city our singers sang several Swiss songs which attracted hundreds of people to the border of the canal and to the windows of adjoining houses."

Across the Alleghanies, by Ohio river barge to Cincinnati, and steamboat to St. Louis

Wednesday, July 23:
"We arrived this evening at St. Louis, and many Glarus people who lived there greeted us kindly, C. Wild, Henry Hoesly, Fr. Blesi, Paulus Kundert, Fr. Schiesser."

But the only communication awaiting them was a month-old letter from the two advance men explaining that they were still searching.

After two weeks without definite "go ahead" orders from Duerst and Streiff, the colonists' morale was shattered by a rumor that the two had lost their lives. A longer delay and the group would disintegrate; indeed, some families, through fear, uncertainty, finding work along the way had already seceded.

At a hastily called meeting, Paulus Grob and Mathias Duerst were appointed to search for Duerst and Streiff and immediately booked passage on a steamer for Peoria, arriving the night of July 31.

Next day, the 554th anniversary of the founding of the Swiss confederation on Ruetli meadow by patriots of Uri, Schwyz, and Unterwalden, the pair set out on foot to conquer the seventy-five miles to Peru. Duerst reported:

"About 2 p.m. we came to a farmhouse where we drank some buttermilk and by signs asked the lady of the house to give us some dinner, which she promptly did and prepared us a good meal. We had coffee this time and also salad. In our Glarus land there is many a so-called hotel that could not entertain and provide as well as is the usual custom in even the poorest log houses here."

Checking in at the Peru post-office, Aug. 3, they learned that Duerst and Streiff had passed through on their way to Mineral Point. Grob and M. Duerst's travels would have ended there except for financial assistance from John Freuler, a Swiss employed in Peru. They went on to Galena, Aug. 6, continued northward through the lead-mine area into Wisconsin, reaching Mineral Point, 9 p.m., next day, to find that Duerst and Streiff were thirty-five miles farther on, had already purchased land along the Little Sugar river, and were awaiting the colonists.

Journey's End

Grob and Duerst sent word to their comrades in St. Louis to start for Galena, and, guided by Theodore Rodolph, set out for the site. The trio hired a German named Schwarz and his team, headed for the colony, covering twenty-five miles before darkness forced a halt near a settler's hut, where they stayed overnight.

Once more Duerst's diary, Friday, Aug. 8:

"Judge Duerst and Mr. Streiff saw us floundering along, and supposing that we were people of their company, they came to meet us. The feelings that then arose in us, I cannot and will not describe. To all of us came tears of joy. We went into the hut they had made. We had supper; Judge Duerst baked the bread. The same evening we walked a short distance over our land--it is beautiful beyond expectation. Excellent timber, good soil, fine springs, and a stream filled with fish. Water sufficient to drive a mill. Wild grapes in abundance. Much game, deer, prairie chicken and hares."

The men agreed that Grob and Freuler would help Streiff with the huts and Judge Duerst and M. Duerst would proceed toward St. Louis to guide the colonists to their new home.

They arrived at Galena early next morning, headed for the steamboat landing and heard that a large party of immigrants had arrived on the St. Louis-Galena steamer the night before. They were the Glarners.
That afternoon, eighteen men started on foot for the settlement, sixty-two miles away. They hiked all night, and the next day, reaching Wiota in Lafayette Co., and rested overnight in a stable.

The next morning they hired a guide, went on, crossed the Yellowstone river where they bought flour. They noted that everyone they met fled in terror at the approach of bearded, unkept, ragged strangers struggling through the frontier, resembling more a group of possessed thugs than poor, honest immigrants. Late in the evening they reached their goal; weary, footsore, but happy.

The newcomers pitched in helping Streiff, Freuler and Grob erect a second and larger shelter near the site of the Pioneer Monument. They dug a large excavation into the hillside, inserted posts into the ground, enclosed the area with boards dragged from Galena, roofed it over with boughs and wild hay. The floor was split poplar logs, and there were no windows or chimney.

The remaining colonists, driving teams hired at Galena, came with provisions, pots, pans and anything else they could transport.

Friday, August 15, 1845, marked the finale of an almost uninterrupted ordeal, over 5,000 miles of which had been on water—Linth Canal, Zuricchsee, the Rhine, Atlantic Ocean, the Susquehanna, Erie Canal, the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. Only 112 miles were on land—50 by rail from Baltimore to Columbia, Pa.; 62 from Galena to New Glarus.

One hundred eight Schweizers (seven more than the Pilgrims) had endured a journey beset from the beginning by disaster, hardship, disappointment. A few had lost their lives, others had dropped off along the way. Some who had parted company with the group rejoined the colony within a few years and helped to build America’s most historic Swiss community.

END OF QUOTE

NINTH GENERATION

An account given by Dr. Edward Fisher, of the archives office in Glarus, Switzerland, states that all of our Swiss ancestors were respectable people, and were employed in honorable occupations. By this, I do not mean that they held positions of high prestige, but rather, vocations and means of livelihood that were honest and dependable, many of them being farmers. As Millard Tschudy has pointed out, their little country was fast becoming overpopulated, and out of necessity, the farms were being divided into smaller parcels, and the day laborer was being tormented with an ever-increasing fear of not being able to provide for his family.

Our Adam Zweifel worked as a carpenter and day laborer, so finding himself among those faced with this perplexing situation, it is easy to understand why he decided to cast his lot in America. According to the Swiss records, he brought his family to the United States in 1853. The same record gives the names of five of his brothers, namely: Peter, Fridolin, Albrecht, Jost and Bernhard, who also deemed it necessary to make a change, so followed suit shortly thereafter. They all settled near New Glarus, Wisconsin, and are properly identified in the records of the Swiss United Church of Christ in New Glarus. In "The History of Green County" by Helen Bingham about 1877, Adam Zweifel is listed with those having the largest farms in New Glarus Township, Green County, Wisconsin in 1876. His farm was 160 acres. He is not listed with the Civil War regiments as are two of his brothers.

According to tradition, Adam Zweifel and his wife, Verena, left for America with their four children, Heinrich, John, Adam and Ursula, in 1853. John and Adam, according to the story, were taken ill and died during the voyage, and consequently were buried at sea. We will have to discredit this story about John, however, as his death is recorded in the records of the Swiss church in New Glarus, and he is interred in the New Glarus cemetery. There are birthdates given for a second John, Adam, and Ursula, all born in New Glarus. As a death date cannot be located for the first Adam and Ursula, perhaps they are the two who perished on the voyage. The author has searched diligently for the captain's log for the ship in which they sailed so that this theory could be verified, but to date it has not been located. Until we have definite proof otherwise, the family of Adam Zweifel and Verena Duerst will be listed in the following manner:

59. Adam Zweifel (50) b. 18 (19) (29) Apr. 1819, d. 20 Feb. 1900 (1899) m. 9 Oct. 78. Verena, b. 5 Sept. 1863; m. Jacob Schuler
79. Barbara, b. 27 Nov. 1864; m. Jacob Merkle

Adam's second marriage:

Louisa Christina Figi was born Hosli (Hosely) and was the widow of Johannes Figi of Haslen. They had seven children, five of whom were still living when she married Adam. The youngest, Margaretha, was adopted by Adam, which fact is substantiated by the following excerpt from the probate record of the estate of Adam dated June, 1901 (spelling as given on document): That said deceased left surviving him: Magdalena Klaesey, daughter; Henry Zweifel, son; John Zweifel, son; Adam Zweifel, son; Verena Smuler, daughter; Barbara Merkel, daughter, and the following grandchildren, children of Ursula Meier, a deceased daughter; Christina Luella, Verena Emilia, and Christian Edward, all of them being minors, and also Margaretha Figi Hosely, a step daughter and adopted as an heir at law by special antenuptial contract.

In this same probate record it states "that the son, Henry Zweifel, has not been heard of for thirty six years, and his residence and abode are unknown to the heirs of the said Adam Zweifel, and to the court, after diligent search for him, and that he is now dead; and that the balance of the heirs are entitled to his share of the estate of said deceased".

Another point of interest in this document was the related fact that John Luchsinger Esq. of Monroe, Wis. had been duly appointed special guardian for Christina Luella Meier, Verena Emilia Meier and Christian Edward Meier, minors.

I TOID YOU THAT I WAS SICK, ELIZABETH

This is the inscription taken from a tombstone in an old cemetery at Plymouth, Mass.

A MISER'S EPITAPH

Here lies one who for medicines would not give
A little gold, and so his life was lost;
I fancy now he'd wish to live,
Could he but guess how much his funeral cost.
