

One day, Shelly and Shelldon were told a story. Before they hatched, their families had to leave their old home. There was a lot of plastic and bad ocean water that could hurt their shells. Their families couldn't stay anymore and left.

Ever since they learned about it, the pair were worried that something terrible would happen to their home as well.