

The two sadly went to their families and got ready to leave for their new home. The group of turtles traveled for a very long time, and Shelly and Shelldon wondered if they would ever find a place for their families. They were so tired and blue. They missed their home and the way it used to be.