IMAGINE: IT'S FRIDAY NIGHT, THE BUSY WEEK IS BEHIND YOU, AND YOU'RE READY TO RING IN THE WEEKEND WITH A BIG PARTY TUNE. YOU ARE FEELING THE VIBE!

Your friends showed up at your place with bubbly. The coffee table is pushed aside to make room to move. You put on Louis Pax's latest banger, BAD THINGS, at a volume where the upstairs neighbour also feels that juicy bass line thumping. The drums make you wanna dance – the beat overtakes your body.

Bad Things feels poppy and fresh, yet that classic disco beat pulsing makes you nostalgic for a decade long before you were born. And when that guitar solo hits, you feel transported to another classic decade: on a speedboat, shirt unbuttoned, wind in hair, racing across the azure waves - you are living Miami Vice!

On October 21st, Louis Pax — a newly independent Swedish band made up of two brothers and their childhood best friends - will present to you this modern yet retro dance-pop song.

While the vibe is upbeat and gets you moving, the enigmatic lyrics hint at some darker themes.

Bad Things is Louis Pax's second single after MOTION, which the band released in July 2021 and it is believed it will follow in the footsteps of its predecessor. Motion garnered positive reviews from blogs and was added to several popular playlists, such as AlexrainbirdMusic (over 1 M followers on Youtube). Motion even ended up on their Good Vibes playlist with above 270,000 streams!

The music video for Bad Things will be released on 4th November. At least 3 new singles will be released in 2022 and a tour is in the works. Under their previous name, "Royal Prospect", the band have performed extensively internationally, appearing on stages in Taiwan, Canada, Tokyo, Ireland, Hungary and New York. They have also been featured on popular Spotify playlists such as "New Music Friday" and "Made in Sweden" with previous singles.

*"Even at this early stage, this confident song points to them becoming stadium-fillers in the none-too-distant future"
