

Copyright and Intellectual Property Policy

The International Journal of Legal Expatiate (IJLE), published by M/s Author Lens, is dedicated to disseminating high-quality research in the fields of social science and law, with a specific focus on contemporary legal issues related around the globe. To protect the rights of authors, readers, and the journal, IJLE follows a comprehensive copyright policy in line with the guidelines.

1. Author's Copyright:

Authors who submit their work to IJLE retain the copyright of their articles. By submitting their manuscripts, authors grant M/s Author Lens a non-exclusive license to publish the work if it is accepted for publication. This means that authors can freely use their own work for non-commercial purposes and share the post-print version (the final accepted manuscript after peer review) on personal websites, institutional repositories, or non-commercial platforms. Any other commercial use of the article will require proper citation and permission from the journal.

2. Open Access Policy:

IJLE operates under an Open Access model, providing unrestricted access to all published articles to readers worldwide. This enables the dissemination of research findings to a broader audience and promotes the advancement of knowledge.

3. User Rights:

Readers and users of IJLE's content have the right to read, download, copy, distribute, print, search, or link to the full text of the articles without seeking permission from the journal or the authors. However, users are expected to adhere to fair use practices and provide proper attribution to the original source.

4. Commercial Use:

Commercial use of any material published in IJLE is restricted without prior written permission from M/s Author Lens. Commercial entities seeking to use the journal's content for commercial purposes, including reproduction or republication, must obtain appropriate licensing or permissions.

5. Plagiarism and Copyright Infringement:

IJLE takes issues of plagiarism and copyright infringement seriously. Submitted manuscripts are screened using plagiarism detection software, and authors are expected to ensure that their work is original and properly cited. If any copyright infringement or plagiarism is detected, appropriate actions will be taken, including rejection of the manuscript and notifying relevant authorities, as necessary.

6. Archiving and Preservation:

M/s Author Lens, along with its technology partners, maintains archival arrangements to ensure the long-term preservation and accessibility of published content. This allows the journal's content to be available for future generations of researchers and readers.

7. Open Access Agreement:

By implementing this copyright policy, IJLE aims to protect the intellectual property rights of authors while fostering the widespread dissemination of research in the areas of social science and law.

At IJLE, we are committed to promoting open access to scholarly research, allowing for widespread dissemination of knowledge and facilitating the exchange of ideas. To achieve this, authors who wish to make their articles open access are required to sign an Open Access Agreement with M/s Author Lens. This agreement ensures that the article is made available under one of the Creative Commons Licenses, thereby meeting the terms of open access publication.

Creative Commons Licenses are a set of standardized licenses that define the permissions granted to users regarding the use and distribution of the published content. The two Creative Commons Licenses used by IJLE are as follows:

CC-BY-NC (Attribution-Non-Commercial License): With this license, others can remix, adapt, and build upon the work for non-commercial purposes only, as long as they provide appropriate credit to the original author(s) and indicate any changes made.

CC-BY-NC-ND (Attribution-Non-Commercial-No-Derivatives License): This license permits others to download the work and share it with others, as long as they provide appropriate credit to the original author(s), do not use the work for commercial purposes, and do not make any changes or adaptations to the original work.

Authors choosing to publish their articles under open access in IJLE can select the most suitable Creative Commons License for their work during the Open Access Agreement process. This empowers authors to retain copyright while allowing others to access, use, and build upon their research under the terms specified by the chosen license.

At the time of preparing these guidelines, IJLE, as published by M/s Author Lens, follows the principles of open access, ensuring that research findings are accessible to a global audience, fostering collaboration and knowledge sharing in the fields of social science and law.
