Welcome

Welcome to the 13th annual Women in Construction Conference. On behalf of the Board of Directors and the Programming Committee, I want to thank you for coming!

Our theme this year is “We’re Building the Future.” We have an exciting day planned for you. We have brought together some of the leading women and men in the area who are focused on making the construction industry better, more inclusive and a place where women can showcase their talents and enjoy the rewards of hard work and dedication.

But first, some sad news. We are dedicating this conference in memory of our board member and colleague, Sue Oliver, who was a civil engineer by training and a Senior Project Manager at Whiting Turner, who passed away from liver cancer on October 5. She had been doing much better, and returned to work, only to suffer setbacks in August. Undaunted until the end, she told her 3 boys, her husband and her friends, who surrounded her at her bedside on the day of her death, that “everything would be ok.” Our memory of Sue is of someone who led by example, who was a mentor to women in our industry, and who never accepted mediocrity from herself or those around her. There is no doubt that Sue’s passing leaves our industry with a gaping hole, and her shoes will be difficult to fill. Our thoughts and prayers are with Sue’s family and Whiting Turner at this sad time.

Over the past decade, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, women have made huge strides in the workplace and now represent more than 46 percent of total employees across all industries. However, in construction, women constitute only 10 percent of the workforce. The reasons for this small percentage have encompassed everything from health and wellness to stereotypes and concerns regarding safety. What we have found year after year here in this forum and as the construction industry continues to evolve, is that women excel in sales, marketing, business, leadership, management, strategy and more. All of these skills and expertise are critical in the construction industry, and in everyday life!

Our goal today is to continue the conversation. We cannot overlook the challenges we face nor can we let them limit us. For those of us who have been here for many years, or for those who have joined us for the first time today, we want to be a source of inspiration, information and inclusion. We want to empower all of us to break through the barriers and create opportunities inside our organizations, within our communities and across our industry.

With the Mid-Term Elections looming, it is time for us, as women, to find a voice. I encourage you to follow your conscience, and regardless of your party affiliation, to speak your mind and vote.

My hope is that you leave today smarter, more informed, with a better network than when you arrived, and with a few new tricks up your sleeve that will prepare you for tomorrow and beyond.

Sincerely, Barbara

Welcoming Remarks

Barbara Werther

Barbara Werther is recognized as one of the leading construction and government contracts attorneys in the United States with more than 35 years of experience in construction and government contracts law. She has been resoundingly and consistently recognized as being one of the top lawyers in construction law. She is a Fellow in the American College of Construction Lawyers, and a Fellow in the Construction Lawyers Society of America and the College’s President for 2018, as well as recognized by Chambers and listed in Best Lawyers in America, Construction Law (2012-2017). Barbara has lectured extensively to clients and various trade associations on a variety of construction law topics. Her expertise and experience is reflected in her comprehensive practice. She is known as an expert on contract terms and conditions for developers and owners, and focuses on contract drafting and negotiation. She also represents owners, contractors and subcontractors in litigation involving scheduling, delays, inefficiencies, changes, differing site conditions, and terminations for default.

Lori Gold

Lori Gold is the Founder and Principle of Lori Gold Consulting, Inc (LGC). Lori splits time between philanthropic consulting and civic activism. She founded a series of NYC-based initiatives, turning her sister’s untimely death, which inspired sweeping NYC Building Laws [Local Law 10(80), LL11(98)], into measures for keeping the streetscape safe: Barnard College’s Grace Gold Memorial Scholarship Fund annually helps educate female students interested in the building professions; Grace Gold Way (Broadway W115-W116) reminds the public why there is LL11, blowing the whistle on those who forget. Lori is working with a NYC Council Member on LL11 modifications, to address business owners’ concerns while protecting pedestrians. Lori was a founding board member of DC-based non-profit 100Reporters, an investigative reporting platform focused on corruption, accountability and transparency, and its signature program: Double Exposure: Investigative Film Festival and Symposium. In DC (2016), Lori also adjudicated capacity grants for DCCAH, and purchases from local artists for DCCAH’s ArtsBank.

Kathy Durdin

Kathy Durdin uniquely combines a varied background in management consulting, leadership development and arts, and applies all of these experiences and disciplines to meet her clients’ needs.

Kathy has had a broad based career encompassing client service and organizational management in both the consulting and non-profit environments. After over twenty-five years of management consulting experience, Kathy changed her focus to an area about which she has always been passionate – enhancing and encouraging individual development, and expanding inclusive leadership. Over five years, she envisioned, developed and implemented the Women’s Leadership and Diversity & Inclusion Programs at Navigant, emphasizing leadership development. Working with small groups and one on one, she coached individuals on career and skills development to achieve their desired objectives.

Now, she is sharing her experiences with others, helping organizations better engage with employees and assisting individuals in furthering their careers, find or reconnect with their passions, identify their goals and achieve their own objectives. Kathy is a Certified Hudson Institute Coach and an Associate Certified Coach by the International Coaching Federation. Her goal is to help others through programming that supports the organization and the individual in their evolution to meet the business and talent development needs of the twenty-first century. Among her focuses are individuals in transition – both within their careers and in their roles beyond their careers.

Kathy has a Bachelor of Business Administration with a concentration in Accounting from the College of William and Mary. She is a CPA in Virginia and Florida, a Certified Fraud Examiner and a Project Management Professional.

Olympia Scott

Olympia Scott was the first woman in history to win two Women’s National Basketball Association (WNBA) Championships with two different teams. She played a total of 10 seasons in the WNBA and 11 seasons in six different European countries during her WNBA off-seasons. Also acting as her own sports agent during the second half of her basketball career, both in the U.S. and overseas, Olympia negotiated her contracts with WNBA teams and teams in five different European countries.

Very active in the community, Olympia has received awards from both the WNBA and other groups for community service. She has given back to the international community as well, by serving as a sports ambassador for the U.S. State Department, WNBA and NBA, traveling to other countries to provide basketball clinics, mentoring, motivational speaking, and Super Parenting seminars. On October 4, 2013 Olympia was inducted into the Stanford University Hall of Fame.

Now retired from professional basketball, Olympia is President and CEO of Super Parenting LLC, the premier online parenting education company she co-founded with her mother Jacqueline Parker Scott, Ed.D, MBA. Together, they published their first book SUPER Parenting: Raising the Next Generation.

Olympia is also an Executive Recruiter at GPAC, which stands for growing people and companies. She places professionals in the construction industry by partnering with general contractors, developers, design-build firms and subcontractors to surface the right people at the right time. She negotiates directly with key decision makers in multi-billion dollar a year construction companies to enter into a contractual agreement with them.
MORNING BREAKOUT SESSIONS

Let them hear you roar – How to be assertive in your career or on a job site

Some women struggle with being assertive in this male-dominated industry. It can sometimes be difficult getting people to listen or to take us seriously. This session will focus on techniques to overcome these obstacles, to get people’s attention, and, most importantly, to get them to listen to what we are saying.

Speakers: Jen Doran, Hinckley Allen; Wendy Venoit, Hinckley Allen; Ava Abramowitz, GW Law; Lisa Mingoia, Skanska

How to avoid major issues on a construction project

This “gender-neutral” topic is critical for anyone in the construction industry. If you are a project manager, lawyer, consultant, engineer, accountant, etc., you need to learn what to avoid, how to document issues, what to do if something starts to go wrong, etc.

Speakers: Jeffrey E. Fuchs, PE, CPA, Delta Consulting Group; Dakus Gunn, Delta Consulting Group; Gabriele Alves Abdelaziz, Delta Consulting Group

Aging infrastructure and what to do about it

This informal discussion will offer participants the opportunity to learn more about our aging infrastructure and expand their knowledge on questions related to this hot topic. For example, how can remediation and replacement of infrastructure be executed when sufficient government funds are not available? Answers to this question and others will be discussed.

Speaker: Emily Wohlfarth, Rimkus

Examine risks associated with construction project performance and how to protect against performance risk – Discussion of surety bonds and other performance security

Participants will examine risks associated with construction project performance and how key stakeholders, including Owners and Contractors, can protect themselves from these risks.

Speakers: Martha Gaines, Aon; Nancy Schnee, Aon
AFTERNOON BREAKOUT SESSIONS

Identifying and avoiding construction contracting pit falls

Participants will engage in an interactive discussion on the primary areas of risk in construction contracting. Speakers will facilitate a discussion on the common issues that arise from both owner and contractor perspectives.

Speakers: Lisa Glahn, Foley & Lardner; Olivia Luckett, Foley & Lardner

How are innovations in health and wellness for the workplace driving better personal and professional decisions?

The panel will discuss wellness in the construction industry, from rating certification systems for the built products themselves to wellness for the construction workers, designers, lawyers, developers, etc., behind the products.

Moderator: Catriona Winter, Clark Construction
Panelists: Fernando Arias, Clark Construction; Eugenia Gregorio, Tower Companies; Naomi Hirabayashi, Shine

Stuck in a rut - Is it too late to make a career change?

Do you sometimes feel you are stuck in a rut in your career? Have you thought about making a career change? You are probably not the only one. This open discussion lead by two professional business leaders who got out of their ruts will offer participants the opportunity to share their experiences with the challenge many of us have been faced with.

Speakers: Iris Pattillo, David Pattillo & Associates; Jill Sorenson, Capitol Select Companies
About Women In Construction, Inc.

Women in Construction, Inc is the Mid-Atlantic region’s premiere forum for educational, professional development, and networking for women in the construction industry. The association empowers women to continue to grow and achieve success in the community with a motto of: “By Women, for Women.” The intent and goal is to help women in architecture, engineering, construction, the trades, real estate, lawyers, and consultants build skills and develop relationships that will help both their firms and themselves in their continued success. Women in Construction, Inc activities includes an annual conference in Washington, D.C.; periodic round table discussions, mentorship programs within the industry, and ACE Mentor Program scholarships to encourage students to enter the industry.

Annual conference for networking and empowering: Since 2006, the conference has provided an avenue for younger women to learn from senior executives and industry professionals, and offers networking and mentoring opportunities to all attendees. More than 300 men and women attend the event each year. Representing every discipline, the attendees include general contractors, subcontractors, developers, architects, engineers, as well as representatives from trade associations, nonprofits, construction consulting companies and law firms from across the U.S. and Canada. Over the years, the feedback has been enthusiastic, heartfelt and consistent: The Women in Construction Conference is an incredible experience.

Prominent keynote speakers have included Tamika Tremaglio, Principal, Forensics & Investigations, Deloitte; Judge Marian Blank Horn, U.S. Court of Federal Claims; Paul Choquette III, President, ACE Mentor program; Cathy Lanier, Chief of Police of the District of Columbia; Deryl McKissack, Founder, President and CEO of McKissack & McKissack; Barbara Bennett, Chief Financial Officer of the Environmental Protection Agency; Senator Mary Landrieu of Louisiana; Muriel Bowser, Mayor of Washington, D.C.; Linda Rabbitt, Founder and Chief Executive Officer, Rand Construction; and Courtney DeBord, Director of Design & Construction at U.S. GSA.

Round table discussions: Periodic gatherings throughout the year serve as forums for discussing hot topics to learn from each other and shape the broader industry conversations.

Mentorship within the industry: In addition to many natural mentorship relationships grown through Women in Construction, Inc, the organization also matches those interested in mentor/mentee relationships. Some individuals are seasoned in their careers and others are new. This allows mentors to give back by encouraging young professionals in the industry.

Scholarships for young women to enter the industry: A portion of the proceeds raised from registration and sponsorship will be put toward the ACE Mentoring Program to provide scholarship and mentorship opportunities to high-school and college students interested in architecture, construction and engineering. The purpose of the scholarship program is to ensure that the industry has young, talented individuals entering the workforce with the necessary educational and practical knowledge. Overall, WIC has donated more than $20,000 to the program.
