

The Clare Castle is a Norman castle built in 1250 on an island on the River Fergus just south of Ennis, Ireland.

The strategic location on the narrowest navigable part of the river was carefully selected to protect the Limerick, Bunratty & Clonroad regions.

The Castle was of such significance in the area that in 1590 the whole region was named County Clare after it.

Today the Clare Castle is mostly in ruins but the adjacent small town of Clarecastle is thriving.

The Clare Castle, Port Melbourne was built in 1875 and when it first opened it was known as "the finest establishment in the area."

The present custodians of this fine old building provide a direct ancestral connection to County Clare hailing from Cooraclare, a tiny village not far from the Clare Castle.

It is their fervent hope that after nearly 150 years, the renovations together with great food and great service means The Clare Castle, Port Melbourne can once again rightly claim the title as:

"The finest establishment in the area."
