At approximately 10 a.m., patrol officers with the Windsor Police Service responded to the 2500 block of Ouellette Avenue for a report of a woman believed to be a victim of human trafficking.

Through investigation, police determined a number of offences relating to human trafficking had allegedly occurred. A male suspect was then identified and arrested without incident at a local hotel, police said in a news release on Monday.

The adult female victim was transported to hospital for medical assessment and was connected with community partners to assist with her recovery.

A 37-year-old man from London, is charged with uttering threats, advertising another person's sexual services, and two counts each of sexual assault, trafficking a person by exercising control, and material benefit resulting from human trafficking.
