Meet Tombstone - a 13 year old gelding standing 14.3 hands and built like a brick house with legs. He's worked salebarns daily, opens and shuts gates like it's his side hustle, and genuinely loves having a job. When the work is done, Tombstone switches gears into trail horse deluxe. Deep water, big logs, steep ditches that make you rethink your life choices— he crosses them all while taking care of his rider the entire way. He's been on overnight camping trips and been hauled all over. Tombstone is soft in the bridle, and has been used outside his entire life. He can go right back to work or hit the trails, it honestly doesn't matter to him as long as he gets to go along. Tombstone is priced accordingly as he isn't for the faint of heart on the ground. He snorts at you like he's seen ghosts every time you go to catch him, saddle him and I think may require a more advanced home.. He's not a dangerous horse by any means but definitely isn't going to be your "teddy bear" type gelding. He has Zero buck and aims to please. Loves trails and is your catch, get on, and go type. Tombstone gets along well with others in a pasture setting and has no maintenance.

MO
16 y/o Paint Gelding

Mo is a 16 year old paint gelding standing 15 hands. Mo is literally a legend in these parts. This guy has been on the Paramount string and working sets ever since the first series of Yellowstone. He is well loved and deeply respected for his incredible, pure nature, and he has more than earned the very best family home a horse could dream up. He's recently become somewhat infamous for the circumstances surrounding his retirement from sets - primarily because he is too unspookable. Mo famously big-time messed up a scene when a building on set blew up and caved in and he had absolutely no reaction. He literally only moved one foot and had to be replaced with a horse that would spook and react more "appropriately" for the camera. This is one of the very few horses we've ever represented where the term bomb proof is about as close to accurate as it gets. Mo excels in commotion and high-pressure environments and stays exactly the same no matter what's happening around him. He has also been used by countless actors learning to ride at the "Cowboy Camps" and has long been a go-to mount on their string when they need a horse for their most precious cargo. Mo is an exceptional horse, and whoever ends up with him will truly enjoy watching the Paramount productions and hunting this one down on screen.

"Witt" is a 17 year old AQHA registered mare, standing 15 hands. Originally started in reining but the trainer said she did not have a competitive spirit. Since she did have such a gentle nature she would make a good horse to have around. She was used in playdays and penned cattle. For the past ten years she was primarily used as a trail horse, kept for anyone that wanted to ride and be safe. Doesn't matter your experience, from zero experience to professional rider she is a pleasure to ride. ANYONE CAN RIDE HER. With that being said, I am not advertising her as a "bombproof" or "kid horse" simply because I haven't had her long enough to guarantee her. If asked "do you trust her with your 7 year old child?" My answer is "ABSOLUTELY."!! She is a super sweet natured mare. Witt is easy to catch, loads easily, and stands for the farrier. There is no drama with this girl. She can go long periods of time without being rode and it's like she never missed a day. She will go and do whatever you ask of her. She does not care for crossing water. She will try to jump it if possible but doesn't get out of control. If you are looking for a horse to use on a daily basis or just to ride on occasion then Witt is the girl for you. When I bought her she had not been rode in 18 months. Since we brought her home she has been gently rode by my son and a few family members. When Witt is legged up she is built like a freight train and with little effort could have that muscle tone back before summer. She is a good girl and would make a great addition to anyone's barn.

He previously went through a rigorous testing and training program to qualify for being used on set and he is an exceptionally good-minded, solid individual who will work well for a broad range of riders and jobs. He was also used for "cowboy camp" here at Bosque Ranch, teaching actors to ride. He is exceptionally smooth gaited, is very forgiving, and has a wonderful, easy-to-operate handle on him. Prior to being a movie horse - he was used outside on a cattle ranch, pasture roped off of, and was well started on the barrel pattern. This horse has a wonderful history and a unique background and training. His new owners can enjoy watching these acclaimed and highly anticipated productions, while also hunting scenes looking for Hidalgo in them. Please check out our social media pages at Buster Horses for additional pictures and videos. Winston is a nice 10 year old gelding standing 14 hands. He comes to a bucket of feed and the kids pet and feed him carrots in the opened field. Winston rides and reins well, but not for beginners as he is a fast little horse. My daughter lost interest in Winston so he hasn’t been rode in a year. In the video her dad just got on and rode just fine. We bought him 2 years ago, we were told he was a 2D barrel horse and a heel horse. We’ve never done anything with him except trail ride. He is an independent horse who doesn’t spook by himself on the trails.

Tex is a striking 6 year old gelding standing 14.2 hands with exceptional disposition. He has recently completed 90 days of professional colt starting and is progressing nicely both on the ground and under saddle. Tex got a late start due to an injury to his right hind leg as a 2½ year old. The leg has since been thoroughly X-rayed by Dr. Hanna, in Brenham, and he has been given a clean bill of health. The injury is not expected to affect him moving forward. Tex has an outstanding demeanor and a great mind. On the ground, Tex is gentle, quiet, and loves being around people - he'll happily stay in your pocket. Under saddle, he is willing, honest, and eager to learn, always trying to please his rider.
