

Stephanie M. Kawasaki

Creative Energy

Stephanie brings Creative Energy while connecting with people. She is an Innovation Coach and Facilitator who helps people see the abundant possibilities and facilitates teams from large brainstorming sessions to laser focus action planning.

She served with the Department of Defense as a Federal Service Civilian for over 30 years during which time she found many opportunities that demonstrated her distinct value. She created an environment in which individuals became team members and collaborated to achieve goals. Her energizing and unorthodox approaches helped people visualize what success looked like and identified the value of each person and how they contributed to the team. The projects she has led has consistently delivered savings of time, money, manpower, or a combination of all.

Prior to retiring from Federal Service in 2018 during which time she served as a process improvement practitioner and assessment analyst for 12 years. she started noticing recurring messages within teams, issues that were like issues you'd find among high schoolers. That is when her creative energy kicked in and Hope Inspired Coaching Resources LLC mission was formulated. Its' mission aims to provide solution-focused outcomes that support a culture of engagement in the workplace. This was her way to pay it forward and invest in future generations. She believes if you have a culture of engagement within your organization, you are likely to have employees highly motivated to innovate. And it all starts with one person at a time.

As an optimist and innovator, she sees challenges as opportunities and instinctively leverages her influence to encourage colleagues and clients to see big picture outcomes and impacts that benefit all parties involved.

Some of her core values are living with a growth mindset, to always learn something in every situation, live a life that inspires hope in others, and believes if you actively seek the natural beauty around you, you will see what truly is important in life.

Stephanie is a Fascinate Certified Advisor that uses various innovation and branding assessment tools to deliver high value content to clients. She continuously seeks opportunities to invest in herself and in others with a goal of Building a Culture of Engagement in the workplace.
