

Rought Thought #4

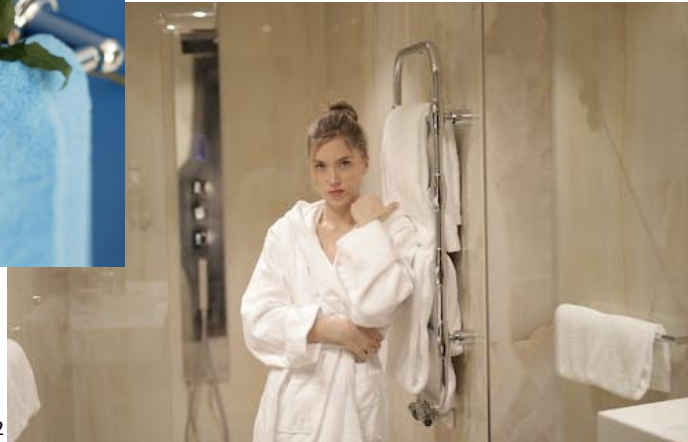

Bathrooms are not functional – Towel Bars

People use their towels and then hang them on a rod or hook to dry, letting nature do the work. This concept works great in areas with very low humidity, but in places with medium to high humidity, the towel will still be damp the next day, and it's had 24 hours for microscopic things like mold to start growing, and then they use this towel rubbing this all over their bodies and hair. My thoughts are not new as there are plenty of towel drying rods equipped with fans and similar system. My thought is why they are not standard equipment in bathrooms. Even higher priced houses do not have these. Quality drying cabinets or stations will need to be designed into the bathroom layout, including electricity, and not as an afterthought after construction.

1

2

Randy Rought
REALTOR®

303-503-6210 / Rought2@aol.com

Air Force Retiree still Serving my Community

1) <https://images.freemages.com/variants/27fy2Niyyev7p8B4M8NUX3e/f4a36f6589e0e50e702740b15352bc00e4bfa6f6f58bd4db850e167794005993d>

2) <https://images.pexels.com/photos/3940696/pexels-photo-3940696.jpeg?auto=compress&cs=tinyrgb&w=600>