Pastor's Corner

Gracious and Loving God, thank you for another day, another year, and another opportunity. Surround us with your love as we serve you in all we do. Bless us with healthy minds, bodies, and spirits so that we have the strength to do your work. Help us and guide us as we seek to have a deeper relationship with you. Thank you for being present and giving us the courage to answer your call. In your loving name we pray, Amen.

Blessings on the start of a new year!! There are so many things I am looking forward to in 2023 and I hope you are too. Here are a few of the things I am excited about!

- Fellowship Opportunities
- Coffee Hours
- Pi Day- Pie Sale
- Work with the Presbytery, Synod, and General Assembly
- Continuing studies in Missional Leadership at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary
- Being a Representative from the Spiritual Community for the Town's new Comprehensive Plan
- Implementing the Mental Health Grant trainings
- Growing our outreach in the community

Joel 2:28- And afterward, I will pour out my Spirit on all people. Your sons and daughters will prophesy, your old men will dream dreams, your young men will see visions.

The Spirit of God is always at work; what dreams are you making into reality with God this year? Dreams written down become plans. What are you looking forward to in 2023? For the church? For yourself? For your family?

We have been dreaming and planning together since Jan 2, 2011. I never know where God is going to lead us, but I know we will continue to lean into the mission God has placed before us to do this work. In 2023, we will continue to Be Welcoming; Be Compassionate; Be You (bravely); and Be Community. Let us celebrate the good news of God's amazing grace!

Peace, Pastor Leah

Women's Circle

Will not have a regular meeting in January

We met on December 5th in the Hawley Room at church for our annual Holiday Luncheon. There was Ginny, Michele, Barb, Joyce, Kae, and Pastor Leah from Circle, and we were joined by Peter Snyder, Susan Sholar, Zoe Van Kirk, Carolyn Seem, and Hope Wilson. Ruby had another commitment that day and was unable to come. Former Circle member, Barb Lohr had sent a card to Leah expressing warm greetings to us. We all wrote a note and signed a Christmas card to send to Barb.

Earlier that day, Pastor Leah set up a festive Coffee & Tea Table replete with coffee maker, electric tea kettle, and cups. Everyone came toting a dish to share and/or something sweet for the dessert table. Some of us had set up the long tables with festive covers, holiday decorations, and candles on Sunday, following the Advent Workshop. In keeping with our cultural diversity efforts, Joyce brought an Eastern Europe (Rumania) Christmas music CD, but we were unable to get the church player working and Susan Sholar came to the rescue with music from her smart phone! Thanks again, Susan!

Following lively conversations up and down the row of tables during a delicious lunch, Peter played Santa and passed around a bag of small gifts, which we were encouraged to swap if we wished, and many did so. Michele got the picnic apron from Peter and Zoe got the old movie book from Barb. There was a good deal of laughter all around. Joyce announced that Circle's donation to the kids who played games all day at the manse to raise money for the Children's Hospital in Puerto Rico helped to put their total over $1,000 and we received an email thanking us from organizers at the United Methodist Church.

Time slipped away and our plans for assembling Personal Care Kits for the women's shelter in Waterloo were postponed. We'll set a date in January to do them, we decided. Everyone helped to clear away the tables and some, led by Carolyn, retired to the kitchen and the dish pan to do the washing up of cups and silverware.

We'd been asked to each bring a package of Infant or Toddler size DIAPERS for The House of Concern. And we did so; filling the big chair in the Hawley Room corner. Later, Ginny would deliver them to the HOC.

Another jolly Holiday Luncheon and another year gone by! And we are feeling grateful: for our Pastor, for each other, and for our church and its opportunities for worship and spiritual nourishment, fellowship, study, and service.

January item for The House of Concern is PASTA & SAUCE

There is a basket at the TOPS card table and crates in the social rooms
FOR OUR NEIGHBORS IN NEED

Thanks to everyone who donated DIAPERS in December!

If grace is so amazing...Why is there not more of it?

By Donna Frischknecht Jackson | Presbyterians Today

It was New Year's Day 1773. The faithful in the English town of Olney, though, were not thinking about old acquaintances being forgotten. (It would be another 15 years before Robert Burns would write his poem that would forever become synonymous with New Year's Eve revelry.) They were thinking about grace and all its amazingness.

It was on Jan. 1 that their preacher, John Newton, introduced what would become one of the most beloved hymns in history, "Amazing Grace." (The tune to which we sing Newton's words came later in the 1800s.) Newton often wrote hymns to accompany his sermons, and on a day full of high expectations for the remaining 364 days to come, he found himself preaching on how God's grace could find those who were lost and make the blind see. Newton was preaching from experience as he himself, once a slave trader, was redeemed and led to share God's saving grace for the rest of his life.

As 2023 begins, I'm not reflecting on the haunting words of "Auld Lang Syne" as I usually do. Rather, I'm reading Newton's words. I'm doing this not just to mark the 250th anniversary of "Amazing Grace." I'm doing this because in our denomination – from presbyteries to synods to local congregations – grace seems to be lacking.

I remember hearing a story of how C.S. Lewis, an Anglican lay theologian and author of "The Chronicles of Narnia" novels, once walked into a discussion where clergy were wondering if there was a belief that would be considered uniquely Christian. Lewis replied, "That's easy. It would be grace."

There was a time I would have agreed with Lewis. Grace is that unmerited divine forgiveness that Christians believe. Grace is what makes becoming God's new creation possible. And once we have experienced grace, we should then extend it to others. Yet today if Lewis walked into such a conversation with his cronies, would he give "grace" as his answer?

I ask this because I have noticed many articles from researchers revealing that humankind is more short-tempered and carrying rage. Experts believe it is the fallout of the long pandemic we have been in. I've even read somewhere that this pandemic anger is being coined "pangry" – a blending of the words "angry" and "pandemic." And so, I wonder. Where's the grace to a pastor who might be a dynamic preacher, but falls short when it comes to pastoral care? Where is grace toward someone who spoke too quickly out of frustration? Where's the grace on social media that helps us to respond in love to things we misunderstand, rather than casting stones of judgment?

A new year is upon us, and I find myself thinking about grace, the lack thereof and the need for more. On a personal note, I also think about the grace that has been extended to me as your editor.

The hardest thing for an editor to write is their first editorial and their last – well, this is the next to last editorial before Presbyterians Today takes a sacred pause in April, and it has been just as challenging. But I want to thank you for allowing me this space to speak from the heart. In some small way, I hope I have lightened your load, eased your worries and ignited your courage. I pray that you have found a glimmer of hope amid the pages. It's been a deep joy and humble honor to serve you this way. But remember, the Good News will continue being told, with or without the magazine, because God's grace abounds (thank you to our General Assembly co-moderators, the Rev. Shavon Sterling-Louis and the Rev. Ruth Faith Santana-Grace, for coining that phrase) and because of that, "We've no less days to sing God's praise, than when we first begun." Until we meet again, my friends, keep singing those praises.

The March/April issue of Presbyterians Today will be the last issue you receive in 2023 before the magazine goes through a "sacred pause."
