Pastor's Corner

Recently my sons and I, watched the live action movie version of Aladdin. We loved all the singing and dancing! We also loved talking about what our three wishes would be, if we were to ever come across a genie and a lamp. The genie reminds us that we can't wish for more wishes. We can't bring anyone back from the dead and we can't force someone to fall in love.

These questions help us to dream big! We are offered the opportunity to think way outside the box. I love structure, but like the genie says about his lamp. 'Greta power, but itty bity living space.' Our structure gives us power, but we can also become trapped by our structure and we do the same things, the same way, all the time. What would you do or wish for, if it could be anything in the world? Given almost no boundaries, limits or expectations- what would you do with the power at your fingertips?

A new year has a similar effect. As we prepare for the start of 2020, what do we wish for in the coming year? What would we do as individuals, as a church, if we could do anything? As we prepare for the Annual Meeting these are the questions we are asking ourselves. What did we do? What do we want to do?

We don't have a genie with a lamp, it won't be so easy as making a wish. Anything we do will take time, talents and treasures. However, we do have something even better. We have the gifts God has given us to make miracles happen every day. 'Do your little bit of good where you are; it's those little bits of good put together that overwhelm the world.' -Desmond Tutu

We don't have to wait for a genie to give us power, God has given us power. God has given us the power to love one another as Christ has loved us. In loving one another we can overwhelm the world with kindness. May you find ways this year to share the good news- God loves you.

Peace, Pastor Leah

Women's Circle

At the November meeting, Circle members heard a request from the Community Action Agency office in Waterloo seeking emergency baby supplies for its Center Street pantry. We agreed to support this effort and Circle treasurer Barb Van Kirk will send a check for $60. Barb also read a letter of thanks for our recent donation to the R.I.P. Medical Debt organization. Since donations of items for the Newark shelter are piling up in the social room, Ginny Konz and Joyce Lohr said they would get them delivered. Plans were made for the Holiday Luncheon in December to which all the women of the church are invited on December 2nd in the Hawley Room, and are asked to bring a dish to share and infant/toddler size diapers.

In the study portion of the meeting we discussed several chapters of the Jen Wilkin book, Women of the Word and will finish reading for discussion at the January 2020 meeting.

In looking forward to a new year in Circle, let us bear in mind this statement from the National Office of Presbyterian Women:

Forgiven and freed by God in Jesus Christ, and empowered by the Holy Spirit, we commit ourselves to nurture our faith through prayer and Bible study, to support the mission of the Church world-wide, to work for justice and peace, and to build an inclusive, caring community of women that strengthens the Presbyterian Church [U.S.A.] and witnesses to the promise of God's Kingdom.

We continue to be grateful for everyone's donations of food and other items to the House of Concern each month and to Wayne Lohr, for delivering them. We'd sometimes like to see the baskets a bit fuller because each item combined with others, help so many families looking to the House of Concern for help. We ask Newsletter readers to be reminded as the worship bulletin asks each Sunday: "Please remember the House of Concern when doing your shopping!" We always greatly appreciate the donations from congregation members on Communion Sundays; Thank You!

In January please bring: Pasta & Sauce for the House of Concern

We hope you'll join us for the next Circle meeting on Monday, January 6, 2020 at 12:30 in the Hawley Room. Bring your lunch!

Wishing every one blessings and grateful hearts in the New Year !

Ministry is Done Together

By John McCall | Presbyterians Today

I got off the train after a four-hour ride along the Pacific Ocean and headed to the exit to be met by a pastor from Bunun Presbytery, an aboriginal presbytery on Taiwan’s east coast. I was on my way to lead the fourth pastors retreat in three weeks.

The Bunun tribal pastor (Bunun means “person” and is the name of one of the 16 tribes among Taiwan’s indigenous people) greeted me and drove us to a nearby noodle restaurant, where we met four other pastors for lunch. We then left the small town of Yuli and headed up steep mountain roads to the farming hut of one of the church elders. Other pastors were waiting for us there in the middle of a mango grove. The view from the hut was spectacular, a deep blue sky with white clouds hanging over high mountains.

Many of the church gatherings tend to have a main speaker lecturing and the participants passively listening. I try to craft a retreat that gives plenty of time for small group sharing and a good amount of time to pray, sing and worship together. I do give a few talks, but I encourage them to respond to the talks.

Aboriginals love to sing, so we began our time together with one pastor leading us in song. We sang in both the Bunun tongue and in Mandarin. These pastors serve churches in villages sprinkled throughout these eastern coastal mountains. Many of their members are farmers, but a good number are also teachers or police officers or are working at other jobs. It is easy for me to tell the different aboriginal people apart both by their looks and their customs. The Bunun tribe tends to be a communal tribe that enjoys doing things together.

After we sang, I shared with them Jesus’ words from John 15:15: I do not call you servants any longer ... but I have called you friends. We spent the rest of the retreat thinking about what it means to be a friend of Jesus and not just a servant. In Asia’s hierarchical society, it’s much easier to think of Jesus as the teacher and to see ourselves as the students. So for us to be considered Jesus’ friend is a rather radical thought. We also talked about how Jesus calls us to be friends to one another. Again, this is not easy in a context where confidentiality is often not honored, and there is not always deep trust between pastors or other co-workers in the church. On the second day of the retreat, the oldest pastor in the presbytery had been invited to lead the morning devotions. I had not met Pastor Ma before, but as he began to preach, I could tell that, at age 86, he is a man of great faith, hope and love. He has served in these mountains for 50 years, and he has a dynamism that is infectious. He said that the church has enough critics, and that instead we need to be people of one heart and mind, people of deep and faithful prayer, and people who recognize the power of the gospel to change lives and communities. As I listened to him preach and looked around at the younger pastors, I gave thanks for such a wonderful leadership model. When he began his service, there were no paved roads in the mountains. It could take a day or more to hike to the next village. And yet, he still showed up.

As I boarded the train back to Taipei, my body was tired, but my spirit was thankful for the opportunity to be with Taiwan’s pastors. Their roads are not easy in this non-Christian land, and they need encouragement and someone to speak hope, but they get up every day and seek to live out the love of Christ in their families, churches and communities.

John McCall is a PC(USA) pastor who has been serving in Taiwan for more than 20 years. He spends a lot of time on trains, buses and subways as he travels throughout Taiwan teaching courses on ministry and spiritual formation.
