The ancient samurai was a warrior, with roots in Buddhism, and the eternal search for the union of body and soul. The Way of the Samurai is an approach to life by combining a human activity with a spiritual purpose and connection. It was the goal of the Samurai to ultimately conquer Ego (the sense that we are separate from the world) and the Fear of Death. For the last 12 years, Taum Dell'Armo has trained in this, the rarest of all the Japanese martial arts; first as "combat-sword" and now a more spiritual discipline known as Zen-Sword.
