

Juliana Elisa Raffaghelli

Researcher at the Universitat Oberta de Catalunya (Spain), Faculty of Psychology and Educational Sciences. PhD in Education and Cognitive Sciences (University of Venice).

She has covered roles in research, coordination of international and European projects, Learning Design and teaching at the University of Florence, the University of Trento, the Institute for Educational Technologies (Italian National Research Council). Her research interests focus on professional development for the use of technologies in teaching and diversified work contexts, with a strong presence of international / global collaboration; Open Education and Science; critical literacy for the use of technologies, with particular reference to Big and Open Data issues.