To whom it may concern,

Legacy Tactics has provided training in surgical building clearances for our SRT Team. This training focused on the techniques associated with SRT deployments into structures against opposition. It significantly aided our team and addressed issues we had not been aware of before, providing life-saving knowledge that we have used on a deployment after training.

In addition to discussing SRT tactical movement and team leader development, Legacy also provided our office with courses on tactical emergency medicine, focusing on interventions that provide life-saving outcomes for law enforcement or civilian casualties. Their Chief Medical Officer, a 30-year Special Operations trauma surgeon, provided this training, which we had never previously had access to and was a wealth of knowledge.

If afforded the opportunity, we will continue to use Legacy for our training and officer development.
