

Moorcock quoted "Dregs" as the forward to his book "The End of All Songs." Other authors have quoted Dowson's work also, famously the phrases "Days of Wine and Roses," and "Gone With the Wind."

I created the song for "Spirits Burning" and informed them I intended to record my own version for release.

Albert Bouchard, BOC's founding member and former drummer got me involved with Spirits Burning, and I had previously contributed vocals and guitars on earlier releases. He provided the drums on "End of Every Song." I engaged Danny Miranda for bass guitar, and Bear McCreary for orchestration, which added a rich element to the production. I worked with Bob Clearmountain for the mix, and Ted Jensen mastered the song.
