Homicide detective charged with fraud

Deputies: Sgt. illegally obtained painkillers

Updated: Tuesday, 06 Apr 2010, 1:47 PM EDT
Published : Tuesday, 06 Apr 2010, 11:34 AM EDT

SARASOTA - Authorities have arrested a Sarasota homicide detective for lying to doctors and illegally obtaining prescription painkillers.

Sgt. Chris Hallisey, a lead investigator in the murder of Carlie Brucia, was charged with fraud for concealing information to obtain prescriptions, the Sarasota County Sheriff's Office said. He was released on $360 bond Monday morning.

According to deputies, Hallisey had been under investigation by his own supervisors for several weeks as the Sheriff's Office contacted doctors who were believed to have provided Hallisey with oxycodone.

Deputies say Hallisey was placed on administrative leave last week. He was hired by the Sheriff's Office in 1990.

true that scott!

Scott Hallisey May 7, 2010
why dont you know the full details of the story instead of voicing your ignorant opinion on the situation. all the murders he investigated out the window? thats the one of the stupidist things ive heard in my day. yea, lets forget about the 20 years of service he did to keep your stupid ass safe!

Why no mugshot????, Why no Doctor Shopping charge (instead he is charged with Fraud), Why was he notified of the investigation????, Why the low bail ????. If this was John Q. Public instead of Johnny Law, I bet the result would have been stacked charges, NO Bail, and an UGLY mugshot published for all to see. Now all the murders he investigated will go OUT THE WINDOW. He will plead to some misdemeanor charge, and keep his pension..
