They provide their service to the owners of vans, busses, semi-trucks, etc. Because of the mobile nature of their business, they save their customers money by providing their service during down times when the vehicles are parked and the drivers are not working.

The business is currently only operated on weekends, as the owner has another job. All this business needs is someone who can give it the time needed. Although this business is currently located in Utah County, it could be easily moved anywhere. There is a huge demand for this service all along the Wasatch front. The owner has been involved in the pressure washing business for years, and is willing to train on how to acquire customers.

The sale of this business includes two trucks with pressure washing systems mounted on them. Due to the lack of attention the owner has given it in the past few years, it is being sold for the price of the equipment.
